Fails to Rise After Diving in Manoeuvres Off Plymouth.

SEARCHERS GIVE UP HOPE

A7 Not Located at Nightfall, When Operations Are Suspended—Air Supply for 12 Hours Only.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PLYMOUTH, England, Jan. 16.—The submarine A7, with her two officers and nine men, is at the bottom of Whitesand Bay, five miles from this port, and all hope of rescuing them was abandoned to-night. This makes the eighth serious submarine accident in the British navy since 1904.

The A7 was at torpedo practice this morning, accompanied by the tender Pigmy, when she failed to rise to the surface after a dive. The first indication of an accident came when the crew of the Pigmy saw oily bubbles on the surface of the sea. These bubbles apparently drifted with the tide, and the submarine, being no longer directly beneath them, it was impossible to locate her.

All available salvage craft were pressed into service, but the A7 could not be found. The search was continued up to a late hour to-night without success, and the salvage vessels returned to Plymouth to resume operations to-morrow morning, at which time a boat capable of lifting her, if discovered, will be in readiness. Circumstantial but erroneous reports were circulated in Plymouth that the submarine had been found, and that signals had been exchanged with her crew.

Submarines of the "A" class are believed to carry sufficient air to enable them to remain under water without danger to life from seven to twelve hours. As the sunken vessel was understood to be furnished with air locks and safety helmets, it was hoped that her crew might make their escape through the conning tower by this means, and the fact that they did not do so gives rise to the theory that they must have been overcome by gas fumes, and that possibly at the time the boat went to the bottom she was not actually under control.

Naval authorities advance the theory that the ballast tank pump refused to act, and, the submarine having filled her tanks in order to dive, was unable to blow these out again when she wanted to come to the surface. Another theory is that she dived too sharply, and that her nose stuck in the mud so fast that she could not rise.

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 16.—The submarine A7 was in charge of Lieut. Gilbert M. Wellman, who has as an aid another officer. A number of the seamen aboard were making their first trip in a submarine.

The A7 is one of a class of nine boats. She was built in 1904 and measured 150 feet in length. Her submerged displacement was 204 tons. Her engines developed an indicated horse power of 600, giving her a surface speed of 16 knots and a submerged speed of 9 knots.

The cause of the accident is not known. Whether the submarine's machinery became disabled or whether she tore a hole in herself on some sunken object, is the merest speculation. Naval officers said that in case the vessel's hull had not been punctured the men on board her might live at least twelve hours beneath the water.

This is the sixth submarine of Class "A" which has come to grief, and the question is being raised here whether the Government ought not to abandon this type of boat in favor of the more modern vessels of the "C" and "D" classes.

Some confusion was caused when the accident occurred to-day by the announcement that the A7 went down in Cawsand Bay, on the western shore of Plymouth Sound, and that the depot ship Onyx had succeeded in getting into communication with the submerged men. This confusion was dissipated to-night by a report from the Admiralty that the accident had occurred in Whitesand Bay, which extends from Ramshead to Looe Island, off the coast of Cornwall.

The flotilla of submarines left Devonport at 8 o'clock this morning for manoeuvres. Arriving in Whitesand Bay, the A7 separated from her sister ships and made a dive for the purpose of firing torpedoes. There was a moderate sea running, and the conditions otherwise were favorable for submarine operations. When the A7 had been below for half an hour—an unusual time for vessels of her class—officers aboard the other boats tried to communicate with her. Failing to get a response, and realizing that an accident had happened, they placed a buoy where the submarine had dived and steamed hurriedly for Devonport for assistance.

When the salvage vessels reached Whitesand Bay a rather heavy sea was running, and this, apparently, had washed away the marking buoy from the spot where the A7 had made her plunge. Grappling operations were carried on without success, and finally the seamen took cross-bearings of the vicinity. By these they think they fixed approximately the position of the sunken craft. As darkness was closing in, however, the salvage operations were abandoned for the night.

200 KILLED IN TEN YEARS.

French and British Navies Have Been the Principal Sufferers.

Submarine accidents in the different navies of the world have caused the loss of more than 200 lives during the past ten years. Collisions and explosions on board and the inrush of water through the open ports have been the common causes of these mishaps. The navies of France, Great Britain, and Russia have been the principal sufferers in the number of lives lost. In five serious accidents France has lost eighty-two officers and men, and Great Britain, whose submarines have given that country the most serious trouble, has lost seventy-seven men.

The American navy has had a few submarine accidents, but the loss of life was small, compared to those which have befallen the French and British navies.

HER DIVORCE INVALID HERE.

Court Won't Recognize Mrs. Bastine's Western Verdict.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich ruled yesterday that a divorce obtained in any other State upon a charge not statutory in this State was not binding in this State. The case was that of William J. Kitchener, a composer and violinist, of 157 West Eighty-fourth Street. He sued Mrs. Alice Wilson Bastine for a divorce. The evidence showed that Mrs. Bastine had procured a divorce in California and had later married Arthur R. Bastine, a real estate man of 1,178 Broadway.

Objection was made to the suit on the ground that a divorce had already been obtained by Mrs. Bastine. But Justice Giegerich held that this divorce could not be recognized here, and that Mr. Kitchener was entitled to a divorce by the admission of the defendant that she was living with Bastine. He held that Mrs. Bastine must remarry Bastine again outside this State at a date subsequent to the divorce obtained by Kitchener in order to have this State recognize the marriage as valid. The decree against her forbids her from marrying again in this State while her husband lives. This order may be modified at the end of five years, but not before.

Kitchener has a suit pending for $10,000 against Bastine for alienating the affections of his wife.

FORD BONUS DEFERRED.

Difficult Bookkeeping Delays Profit-Sharing Payments Until Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 16.—To-day was to have been the first pay day under Henry Ford's profit-sharing plan among his wage earners, but the distribution had to be postponed until Monday. The readjustment entailed so much bookkeeping that it was impossible to get the new four-day pay roll in shape.

The men received only the amounts they have in the past. They are paid in sections, of about 2,000 men each. To-day's section will not lose the additional money expected, but will be paid for a larger number of days on their next pay day.

The fact that to-day was set for the opening of the new era disclosed some interesting conditions. Gathered at the plant, waiting for certain men to come out, were constables with writs, bill collectors, book agents, representatives of installment houses, and wives, all seeking money by striking while the iron was hot. They were a disappointed crowd when word went around that there would be no distribution till Monday.

BANDIT ROBS PASSENGERS.

Georgia Train Robber Escapes After Pistol Duel with Deputy.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 16.—A bandit boarded a Western & Atlantic train at Vinings, Ga., to-night, robbed the passengers in one of the coaches, and after engaging in a pistol duel with a Deputy Sheriff on board, jumped from the train at Bolton, Ga.

The bandit entered the chair car, drew a pistol, and began to collect valuables from the passengers. He had robbed more than a score when C. C. Heard, an Atlanta deputy, who was returning from Rome, Ga., opened fire upon him. Half a dozen shots were exchanged, Heard being wounded slightly by a bullet which passed through his cheek. Whether the bandit was hurt is not known.

The robber did not enter the express or mail cars. The amount stolen from passengers is believed to have been small, although one man reported that he had given up $300.

Passengers and trainmen said the robber wore a mask, and were uncertain whether they could identify him.

The authorities at Bolton, which is seven miles west of Atlanta, have taken into custody a man said to answer the description of the bandit.

The train runs from Chattanooga to Atlanta, and most of the passengers are residents of Chattanooga and intermediate towns. The Western & Atlantic Railroad is part of the Chattanooga & St. Louis system.

BEARDSLEY OFFERS TRUCE.

Willing to Surrender if His Brother Comes to Care for the Children.

MAYVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Edward Beardsley sent out word from his barricaded farmhouse at Summerdale this afternoon that he was ready to talk surrender with the Sheriff provided his brother, James Beardsley, was brought here from Titusville, Penn., to look after the children.

Sheriff Anderson believed that Beardsley's offer was the first sincere one he had made since he barricaded the house after the shooting of Poormaster Putnam on Tuesday afternoon, and he at once sent a Deputy to Titusville to ask the brother to come here.

The sufferings of the nine hungry children in the house, the Sheriff believed, drove Beardsley to consider surrender.

"I'll surrender if you fellows allow my brother James to come here and take possession of the children," said Beardsley. "If you don't, there'll be more trouble. I have plenty of ammunition."

While this parley was going on the Deputies heard the children crying in the house.

Ethel Austin, the woman who escaped from the Beardsley house on Tuesday afternoon, said that four of the children there were hers and five belonged to her sister, who also had been known as Mrs. Beardsley. All are under seven years old.

TO RESCUE MOTHER JONES.

900 Miners Threaten Force if She Is Not Set Free at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 16.—Nine hundred union miners in Fremont County announced to-night that unless the military authorities at Trinidad liberated Mother Jones in twenty-four hours they would set her free by force of arms. This ultimatum came to Gov. Ammons and Gen. Chase from a meeting of strikers at Rockvale to-day. Nine hundred men attended the meeting and adopted resolutions demanding freedom for the aged woman labor leader.

"The imprisonment of Mother Jones is unlawful. The God-given rights of American citizens are being trampled under foot," said the resolutions.

David Robb, leader of the strike forces in Fremont County, presided at the meeting.

CUTS RULE OF REASON OUT OF TRUST LAW

Stanley, After Seeing Wilson, Presents Amendment Barring Monopoly "in Any Degree."

EXTENDS INITIATIVE ACTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—After an hour's conference on the anti-trust question with President Wilson at the White House to-day, Representative Augustus O. Stanley of Kentucky, who conducted the investigation of the United States Steel Corporation, introduced late this afternoon his anti-trust bill in a revised form that attracted immediate attention.

The Stanley bill proposes to amend the Sherman law so as to apply it to restraint of trade of all kinds and in any degree. This is intended to eliminate the "rule of reason" applied to the anti-trust law by Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case.

The other change that the Stanley bill seeks to accomplish is to enable individuals affected or damaged by alleged restraint, and District Attorneys, to institute proceedings under the Sherman law. The existing statute only allows the Attorney General to take such action.

The Stanley bill would amend the second and fourth sections of the Sherman law. In Section 2, which the Supreme Court interpreted with the "rule of reason," the words "in any degree" are inserted so that the section would read:

> Every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize in any degree any part of the trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Discussing his bill to-day, Mr. Stanley said:

"The most salient two features of that most remarkable act designated as the Sherman law are its universality and its brevity. It covers the whole field in a few sentences, like the Ten Commandments. It has been repeatedly interpreted by the Supreme Court, which, except in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases, has strengthened the act and defined its meanings by interpretation.

"Legislators should have a wholesome dread of weakening the Sherman law in any way or endangering it by wholesale amendment. President Wilson, in his public utterances has expressed the same opinion. While I hesitate to amend the substantive part of the Sherman law, the procedure under it can be altered without impairing the law itself.

"In my opinion, Chief Justice White's discussion of 'reasonable' restraint of trade in the Standard Oil case was obiter dicta, because that question was not raised by the pleadings, nor was it essential to the determination of the suit. In the opinion of many lawyers the Supreme Court so interpreted the Sherman law in that opinion as to make it apply only to contracts which reasonably or unduly restrain trade.

"Until the decision in the Standard Oil case any contract in restraint of trade was in violation of the act. The decisions had been uniform in holding that commerce should be absolutely unfettered, and likening commerce to a stream that must neither be choked nor impeded in any way.

"To be effective as a criminal statute especially the law must be so interpreted. To determine what is reasonable or unreasonable restraint of trade would be to have as many laws as Judges, and leave the law in inextricable confusion and doubt. For that reason I have suggested in my bill an amendment to the law which would provide that all contracts that restrain interstate commerce of the United States in any degree must be considered as violative of the act.

"This proposed change in the law would not make it more drastic than it was before. It is a well known fact that the Sherman law was never enforced by Attorneys General who doubted its efficiency. It was demonstrated in the Tennessee Coal & Iron merger that it was in the power of the Attorney General to sheath the Sherman law as a sword to render it absolutely impotent to prevent the formation of the most formidable monopoly. That was due to the fact that President Roosevelt and his Attorney General had a twenty minutes' conversation with Messrs. Gary and Frick and then determined that, on account of the special condition surrounding the merger, and special relations between the President and high officials interested in the deal, it would not be wise to enforce the law, and that an action under the fourth section of the Sherman law could only be brought by the Attorney General of the United States. That provision should never have been in the Sherman act, and it is stricken out in this amendment to the law, which I offered to-day.

"An individual can now invoke a court of equity for the protection of his property against threatened wrong at the hands of an individual. But under the law as written unless he can persuade the Attorney General he cannot invoke this great statute to protect himself against a monopoly. The independent industry whose existence is threatened by a covetous combination and whose right to an independent and competitive business is the first to know and feel a violation of the Sherman law and by invoking that act as I propose to amend it can protect its property and the freedom of trade at the same time."

Under the proposed amendment this section of the Sherman act would read:

> The several Circuit Courts of the United States are hereby invested with jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of this act, and it shall be the duty of the several District Attorneys of the United States in their respective districts to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations.
>
> Such proceedings may be by way of petition setting forth the case, and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of shall have been duly notified of such petition, the court shall proceed as soon as may be to the hearing and determination of the case, and, pending such petition and before the final decree, the court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be deemed just in the premises.
> Any person who shall be injured in his business or property or shall be threatened with such injury by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared to be unlawful by this act may bring suit in equity in any District Court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides, or is found, to prevent and restrain violations of this act and for other appropriate relief.
> All evidence showing or tending to show that such restraint was partial, or that it was not undue or unreasonable, shall be admissable for the purpose of determining the quantum of damages or the character of punishment to be inflicted and for no other.

After another White House conference on anti-trust legislation late to-day it was announced that the President would read his address on this subject to Congress next Tuesday, and that the House Judiciary Committee would begin hearings on proposed measures later in the week. President Wilson again conferred with Chairman Clayton and Representatives Curlin and Floyd, members of the House Committee, on certain features of his address. Mr. Clayton said that he would probably be ready to make public several bills pending before the committee within the next few days.

GOETHALS ALONE TO RULE CANAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Whatever doubt there may have been that Col. George W. Goethals, the builder of the Panama Canal, would not be continued in charge of the administration of affairs in the Canal Zone after the authorized permanent government became operative there, was cleared away to-day after a conference between President Wilson and Secretary Garrison. Although official announcement is lacking, President Wilson is understood to have accepted Secretary Garrison's recommendation for a "one man" administration, with Col. Goethals as the "one man."

To-day's conference apparently marked the end of a contest that at one time seemed to portend trouble. Although the Panama Canal act of 1912 provided that the permanent government of the Canal Zone should be under a Governor with supreme authority, recently there were signs that an effort would be made to substitute a commission form of government for the system authorized by law.

Richard L. Metcalfe of Nebraska, the civilian member of the Panama Canal Commission, who, as the head of the Department of Administration, has the courtesy title of Governor, recommended, soon after his arrival on the Isthmus last year, that the permanent government should be of the commission form. At first it was supposed that Mr. Metcalfe had crossed swords with Col. Goethals, who was supposed to favor the "one-man" idea of government, but subsequently it appeared that the views of Mr. Metcalfe had not been submitted of his own initiative, but at the request of Col. Goethals. One report was that Mr. Metcalfe had advocated a commission government at the instance of Secretary Bryan, with whom he had been associated in newspaper work.

Although the authority to organize a permanent government has been on the statute books since August, 1912, that authority has never been exercised. President Taft was ready to establish the new Administration, and had chosen Col. Goethals for Governor, but Democratic opposition in the Senate to any Republican plans involving appointments at the end of the Taft term, brought the matter over into the Wilson Administration. Secretary Garrison made a trip to the Isthmus to look into the situation, and returned to Washington impressed with the view that the permanent government should be in accordance with the "one-man" head law, and that Col. Goethals should be appointed Governor.

It is probable that the plan of government which President Wilson soon will institute through an Executive order, will provide for retaining the present members of the Canal Commission as an advisory council until the formal opening of the canal on Jan. 1, 1915. The importance of making the permanent government effective as soon as possible lies in the necessity of training pilots and other members of the force that will operate the canal, about 2,500 persons in all. Col. Goethals has been anxious over the delay in establishing the new organization. It is estimated that it will take a year to thoroughly train pilots, lock keepers, engineers, and others in their duties.

GORGAS AS SURGEON GENERAL.

Man Who Cleaned Up Panama to Head Army Medical Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Col. William C. Gorgas, Medical Corps, U. S. A., the distinguished sanitary expert who has a monument in the health arrangements established by him in the Panama Canal Zone, is to become surgeon general of the army, to succeed the late Brig. Gen. George H. Torney.

The decision to nominate Col. Gorgas for the highest office in the Army Medical Corps was reached at a conference to-day between President Wilson and Secretary Garrison. It is the only reward for Col. Gorgas within the President's gift, but it is the belief in Administration circles that after the Panama Canal has been opened to commerce some Congressional action will be advocated to provide greater recognition for the man who changed the Isthmus of Panama from a breeder of epidemics to one of the most healthful ports of the world.

Col. Gorgas is now in South Africa for the British Government, arranging a system for improving sanitary conditions in the diamond mine sections. He has been an officer of the Army Medical Corps since 1885. He reached the grade of Colonel last March.

Several witnesses testified Mr. Gates had declared he considered Beaumont his home.

TAFT'S TAX TOO HIGH.

Auto That Cost Him $2,000 Assessed at $4,950 in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—William H. Taft is dissatisfied with the tax levied on his automobile by the city. Recently he received a tax bill showing that the Assessors had valued his machine at $4,500. To this 10 per cent. had been added upon his failure to appear within the required time and swear to his tax list. This brought the assessment up to $4,950.

In a letter to the Assessors Mr. Taft informed them that he purchased the car second hand, paying only $2,000 for it, and failed to understand how they could rate it at $4,500.

THIEVES BAND HELD WITH $10,000 LOOT

Confessions Give a List of 65 Harlem Flats They Have Robbed Recently.

The sight of a studious-looking youth entering the pawnshop at 2,108 Third Avenue late yesterday afternoon, carrying on his arm two suits of clothes of good cut and texture, aroused a curiosity in Detective Guarniere, assigned from the East 104th Street Station to keep an eye on the pawnshops of that territory, and he followed in to make inquiries.

His inquiries led to the arrest before midnight of four men, accused as members of a band of burglars, and a city-wide search for two more men. Before midnight, also, the police had confessions from two of the four arrested, they had twelve complainants all ready to appear in court, and they had at the station stolen goods, either actually or in pawn tickets, amounting to more than $10,000. Also they had a list of sixty-five flats in four Harlem precincts which, according to the confessions, the band had visited within the last two months.

The man whom the police regard as the leader calls himself Samuel Cutler, and is called "Blackhand" by his pals. He was arrested in his furnished room at 4 East 112th Street, and in that room the detectives found four suitcases full of unpawnable loot, but they have learned that this room was only one of six maintained by "Blackhand" as storage for his plunder and as a series of retreats to which he might go whenever the police picked up his trail. Several times they had picked up his trail in the last few weeks, and each time when they settled down to watch the suspected room no one returned to it and there was never any one to arrest.

When Guariere went into the pawnshop after the studious-looking bespectacled youth he showed his shield at once and began to ask questions. The youth became flustered and tried to convince the detective that a man had just given him the clothes to pawn. The detective was not convinced, and finally after a long session behind closed doors in the detective's room at the station the youth broke down and talked and talked. He said he was Joseph Levine, and that he lived at 120 East 110th Street, and he told about this band of burglars.

According to his description, the method was simple, and the hours of work were those between noon and sundown. Push-button apartments were always selected. If there was the click-click at the latch, young Levine, as the highly presentable member of the party, would be sent upstairs to apologize for having rung the wrong bell. If there was no click-click, the thieves would go up together, jimmy the door, and take what they could find. They never risked pawning jewelry, the police say, but preferred to build up a clientele among the gangsters and gamblers, to whom they would sell watches, rings, and scarf pins at about a third their value. They chose this market because the buyers were of the sort given to jewelry, and not at all given to talking with policemen.

It was Levine's story that led to the arrest of "Blackhand," who is only 21. After a deal of bluster Cutler, too, confessed, the police say, and his story implicated two more, Frank Lipshitz of 239 East 121st Street and Paul Liebman of 1,350 Eighth Avenue. The former is better known as "Young Lippe," a pugilist who was in his ring clothes and was just crawling through the ropes at a garden in upper Park Avenue when Lieut. Herale tapped him on the shoulder and told him that a far better fight was waiting for him at the police station.

Clothing, jewelry, and odds and ends were picked up in the rooms of both these prisoners, which the police were satisfied to describe as "loot." All told, fifty pawn-tickets were found, and redemption was stopped on them. They will be followed up to-day. Three of the prisoners were locked up charged with burglary, but Liebman, who is only 15, was turned over to the Children's Society. The oldest of the four is Cutler, and he is only 21 years old.

By way of making sure that complainants would be in court to-day to appear against the prisoners the detectives started in to visit the apartments mentioned in the list of sixty-five. They stopped for the night after visiting the first twelve, for they found the list verified in every case. The first three to visit the station were Samuel Abramowitz of 22 East 103d Street, robbed of goods worth $300 on Thursday; Buyan Kavalasky of 56 East 103d Street, robbed on Tuesday afternoon of good sworth $200, and Samuel Nudelman of 18 East 108th Street, robbed on last Saturday of goods worth $1,000.

RESCUES BOYS IN ICY WATER

Driver Jumps Into the Thoroughfare in Atlantic City to Save Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 16.—P. E. McHale, driver of a laundry wagon, jumped into the inside Thoroughfare here to-day and rescued Correll Reed, 7 years old, the son of David C. Reed, a banker, and Richard Martinet, 9 years old, who had fallen through the ice.

McHale was making deliveries near the Thoroughfare and, hearing the screams of the boys as they sank, unbuckled the lines from his horse, made them fast to a fence which projected over the water, and grasping the other end of the line jumped in. He had to break his way through about forty feet of ice before he got to the boys. He took them under one arm and then wound the line around his free arm and pulled himself in.

McHale put the two boys in his wagon and covered them with a blanket and started his horse on a run for their homes. He helped to undress and roll them in blankets and surround them with hot water bottles before taking any thought of himself. McHale, who is a native of Michigan, said he did not mind the cold plunge.

JAIL FOR GRAFTERS IS GLYNN'S ORDER

Highway Inquiry Not to Stop Until Every Scoundrel Is Behind Bars, Says Governor.

CARES NOT WHO IS HIT

No Partisanship in Crime, He Asserts, Ordering Statewide Fight on Contract Corruption.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—Stirred by the disclosures of graft made by the Delaney and Osborne highway investigations, Gov. Glynn to-day directed John H. Delaney, Commissioner of Efficiency and Economy, to continue the inquiry, giving all possible aid to Mr. Osborne, to the end that "every man that has cheated the State be put behind the bars."

In vigorous terms the Governor expressed his determination to sift to the bottom every charge of mismanagement of the State highways, and asserted that if the facts were satisfactorily proved he would not wait for a police officer to remove the guilty officials. Gov. Glynn said that evidence brought out in certain Columbia and Rensselaer County cases had been sent to the District Attorneys of those counties with the request that the offenders be prosecuted. He also asserted that the entire State machinery had been placed at the disposal of Messrs. Delaney and Osborne to assist in the investigation.

"To assist Mr. Osborne in obtaining the evidence I desire," the Governor said, "I have called upon the Commissioner of Efficiency and Economy to conduct a separate investigation. I have urged every State officer to assist both of these gentlemen in their search for evidence. The entire machinery of the State Government has been placed at the disposal of both.

"I shall be greatly disappointed if Mr. Osborne and Mr. Delaney, working side by side, do not get results. And both of them understand that unless they produce results satisfactory to me and to the public I shall call in some one else who will. I shall not permit my administration to be embarrassed by any doubt of my sincerity in the highway investigation.

"Any one who imagines that I will be satisfied with a pointless and perfunctory investigation of the Highway Department is very much mistaken. The people of New York have a right to know whether their money has been misplaced. They have the right to demand that every man who has cheated the State shall be put behind the bars. And as the Governor of the State I shall not rest until every charge against the management of the State highways has been sifted to the bottom and every thieving scoundrel has received what he deserves. It makes no difference to me who is hit by these investigations, and I have made this fact plain to those who are conducting the search for the evidence.

No Partisanship in Crime.

"There is no partisanship in crime; rascals are of all parties and of no party. Republicans and Democrats look alike to me when they are found plundering the State. And as a Democrat I shall take particular pains to drive out of public life any Democrat who has been disgracing the party."

Gov. Glynn said Mr. Osborne had sent to him the testimony recently taken in connection with the Riders Mills Road in Columbia County, tending to show the existence of a conspiracy to defraud the county and the State.

"The specifications were modified without throwing the contract open to competitive bidding, and the contractor was thereby enabled, through trickery, to enrich himself at the expense of the State," said he. "The evidence in this case has been sent to the District Attorney of Columbia County by the Governor, who has called upon that official to prosecute the offenders.

"I need hardly say," the Governor added, "that if the facts alleged are satisfactorily proved, I shall not wait for a police officer to remove the guilty officials."

The Governor also sent to the District Attorney of Rensselaer County the testimony produced before Mr. Osborne in regard to Repair Contract 453. This work involved the repair of the Columbia Turnpike in the City of Rensselaer, where the specifications were changed on a side hill, a macadam road having been provided instead of a brick road, as originally planned.

"The evidence indicates," the Governor said, "that the contractor, having bid too low and finding himself in a losing venture, succeeded in having the specifications changed to relieve him. This case is as flagrant as the first one, and I intend to see that it is sifted to the very bottom."

Graft in Broome County.

Speaking of the Broome County road, Charles H. Jackson, Chief Examiner of the Department of Efficiency and Economy, said to-night:

"We have shown that the specifications were changed so that gravel could be used as the sub-base instead of crushed stone. The contractor was allowed to make an exorbitant profit. It is also in evidence that the advisory board of engineers permitted a substitution for the limestone on the finishing course. On both changes the contractor was allowed to make $11,106.50 over and above the 20 per cent. always allowed to contractors on highway work.

"The evidence shows that the contractor was paid $2.38 a cubic yard for loose stone and that 756 cubic yards was paid for at that figure. Every dollar thus paid was in derogation of the State's interests. Every man who was responsible for paying for rough stone dumped into a trench ought to be questioned about it."

Delaney said he would send to Commissioner Carlisle of the Highway Department a copy of the evidence in this case for such action in relation to his subordinates as he deemed advisable and another copy to Attorney General Carmody for any criminal action he might advise.

The State has paid $69,745.62 for the Broome County road, and there is about $3,000 due on the work. The State has withheld 10 per cent., or $6,974, for the final payment.

George A. Ricker, Deputy Commissioner, testified that after he received the report of Engineer Wright he ordered the suspension of Engineers R. M. Bennett and John Kelly. He discussed the report with Commissioner Carlisle, but could not remember that any effort had been made to withhold payments as advised by Wright.

In a statement issued to-night Commissioner Carlisle said:

"The supplemental agreement on this road in question was prepared by Harold Parker and George F. Diehl of the Advisory Board, who carefully figured out the prices that ought to be paid to the contractors in connection with the work, and no more qualified men were available in the country for this purpose, and they stake their reputation on the fact that the prices were fair.

"Mr. Kelly, the engineer on this road, who was responsible for its condition afterward and who was suspended by the department, now seeks to escape

PAYS $5,000 FOR A FLEA.

De Rothschild Will Add the Sea Otter's Parasite to His Collection.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Alfred Charles de Rothschild of London is said, on the authority of Edmond Perrier of the French Institute, to have paid $5,000 for a specimen of a rare variety of flea—one of the kind which is occasionally found in the skin of the sea otter.

The flea is to be added to Mr. de Rothschild's entomological collection.

HINT OF POOL COMPROMISE.

German Steamship Lines May Settle Strife to Avert Big Rate War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 17.—The correspondent of The London Times in Paris telegraphs:

"The meeting of shipping companies, forming the North Atlantic pool, which will be held here on Jan. 21, will probably be preceded by a preliminary meeting on Jan. 20 of the British companies concerned.

"It is believed that the dispute between the two German companies, if continued, would lead to further rate cutting, and that it is quite possible the two companies will have to come to an agreement between themselves before the conference opens."

Works While Seeking Bride He Must Win to Get His Fortune.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 16.—Otto Buck Churchill, who came here to seek a wife, and who says he is the heir to an estate of $30,000,000, provided he marries before July 25, decided to-day to combine business with pleasure while looking for a mate by taking a job as a street car conductor on the Northern Indiana Railway Company. He announces he will hold it until he finds his bride if the company lets him.

Churchill is receiving many offers of marriage through a letter he sent to an Indianapolis newspaper, one coming from an Indianapolis girl, who wrote:

"I can't qualify myself, you dear man, as I am only 16; but I have a charming mother, who is just 38. She's good looking and would cut some splash in the fancy clothes your money would be able to buy her."

PADEREWSKI BREAKS DOWN.

Cancels Pacific Coast Engagements as Result of Black Hand Threats.

Special to The New York Times.

LAS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 16.—After being hounded by Black Hand agents for months Paderewski, the pianist, has completely collapsed, and is now on his way from Portland to Los Angeles for a prolonged rest, having canceled all his Pacific Coast engagements.

L. G. Sharp, tour manager for Paderewski, telegraphed Mr. Behmer, the impresario, to-day that he would arrive here to-morrow to prepare a bungalow for the pianist. The persecution to which he has been subjected culminated three weeks ago in Denver. Paderewski, it is said, saw the sides of the Municipal Hall plastered with glaring posters announcing that dire things would happen to him if he refused the Black Handers' demands. He played that evening, but immediately afterward broke down.

PLEADS FOR FEDERAL WIRES

Lewis Says Telephone Agreement Won't Improve Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A long argument for the acquisition of the telephone lines of the country by the Government was made in the House to-day by Representative Lewis of Maryland.

Reiterating previous statements as to alleged lack of efficiency and the high rates of private telephone companies, Mr. Lewis contended that the recent agreement between the Department of Justice and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, designed to restore competition in the telephone service, would not improve conditions.

Representative Crosser, Democrat, of Ohio, introduced a resolution instructing the House Commerce Committee to report as early as practicable a bill for the Government ownership of railroads. It sets forth that the railroads have been conducted in a manner prejudicial to the best interests of the country.

CUT IN HIGH SALARIES?

Rumor That Pennsylvania Road Plans Retrenchment at the Top.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—It was reported here to-day that the Pennsylvania Railroad was planning a scheme of retrenchment that would prune the salaries of some of its high officials. The story was that instead of laying off hundreds of men, cutting the salaries of freight and passengers agents and an army of clerks, the road had decided to begin its retrenchment at the top.

The report probably sprang from the voluntary retirement of Joseph Wood, Director and First Vice President of the lines west of Pittsburgh.

Besides Mr. Wood, the Vice Presidents of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh are J. J. Turner, Edward B. Taylor, D. T. McCabe, and G. L. Peck.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Pennsylvania Railroad officials to-night denied any knowledge of the plan to reduce the salaries of some of its high officials.

STEARNS HEIRS RULED OUT.

They Get No Part of Mrs. Arcadia Baker's $7,000,000 Estate.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 16.—Forty-one New England heirs of Abel Stearns, a pioneer, who died in the early seventies, were defeated here to-day in their contest for the seven-million-dollar estate of Mrs. Arcadia Baker, his widow, who at her death was the wealthiest woman in Southern California.

The Stearns heirs based their claim on the fact that Abel Stearns settled upon his wife property which formed the nucleus of her fortune. Mrs. Stearns after the death of her husband married Col. R. S. Baker. She died in 1912.

Judge Rives ruled to-day that upon her second marriage Mrs. Baker ceased to be the widow of Stearns.

MAYOR PAYS A CALL UPON THE HOMELESS

Sees the Misery in City Life at the Municipal Lodging House and Pier Shelter.

FINDS INMATES SLEEPING

Only One Man Disturbed as Officials Pass Through the Wards—Visitor Surprises Bathers.

The Municipal Lodging House at 324 East Twenty-fifth Street had Mayor Mitchel as a guest last night, but the clerks all knew beforehand that the Mayor was to stay there only for three-quarters of an hour to see whether ample provision was made for the thousands of homeless men who were driven there for food and shelter. The Mayor arrived at the lodging house at 11:45 o'clock. From there he went to the Recreation Pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street, which has been closed in around the sides so that 500 men may now sleep there in severe weather.

At the end of his visit Mayor Mitchel said that he was much pleased with the city's provision for the needy and he asserted that he thought excellent arrangements had been made for those in want at the Recreation Pier, considering the short time the Department of Charities had had in which to equip it as a shelter.

The Mayor went to the Municipal Lodging House from the theatre and inspected the building from basement to the top floor. When he stepped from the elevator on the sixth floor, where more than 200 men were sleeping "double-deck," only one man was awakened by the click of the latch on the elevator shaft door. He lifted himself on his elbows and gazed at the Mayor, yawned, and then lay back on his bed.

The Mayor was interested in the system of ventilation which he said he considered unusually good. He seemed surprised though when Commissioner Kingsbury called him and Commissioner Adamson to the window and pointed out that there was no means of escape in case of fire. Commissioner Kingsbury asked Commissioner Adamson to send a fire inspector to the Lodging House to attend to this. Mr. Adamson said that he would do so.

Two more floors where the men were asleep were inspected by the Mayor and his party, and finally the elevator dropped down to the basement. Commissioner Kingsbury had his hand on the door knob of the elevator shaft and opened it wide. He stepped out followed by the Mayor, Commissioner Davis, Miss Nettia A. Sawyer, the Confidential Inspector of the Department of Charities and other members of the group, and turned just in time to thrust the Mayor and the other visitors back into the car.

The elevator opened out into a room where the men, after taking their bath, go to dry themselves. The guests arrived just as two dozen men were rubbing themselves vigorously with large bath towels.

Commissioner Kingsbury stepped out of the elevator again, directed the men to wind the large bath towels about them, and when they had done so, he invited the Mayor and the rest to come out and inspect the bathroom. The Commissioner of Charities pointed out to the Mayor among the men who had just taken a bath one who sat in the Recreation Pier for fifteen days rather than come to the Municipal Lodging House where a bath is an absolute requirement for a night's lodging.

From the bath room, the Mayor was taken to the sterilizing room where the clothes of all the men who stop at the Lodging House are made sanitary. Then the system for admitting applicants was explained, and the Mayor inspected the dining room, where the men are provided with chowder and coffee and rolls.

The Mayor plans to bring all the departments into co-operation, and he said last night that he was gratified to see how successfully the Department of Charities had joined its activities to those of the Street Cleaning Department. Commissioner of Charities John A. Kingsbury, who accompanied the Mayor, explained that the men who were provided with shelter and food were told that they might obtain lodging at the municipal lodging house a second and third night provided they would volunteer their services to the Street Cleaning Department and return to the lodging house with a slip showing that they had done some work.

The Mayor said that it was his desire not only to enlarge the accommodations for all the homeless men in this city but to enlarge the field of their activities so that they might be induced to learn how to help themselves. Accompanying the Mayor were, in addition to Commissioners Kingsbury and Featherson, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, Fire Commissioner Adamson, City Chamberlain Bruere, and Commissioner of Correction Katherine B. Davis.

CHIDES FATHER PHELAN.

Archbishop Denounces Priest's Tango Editorials in The Watchman.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 16.—In a letter to the Rev. D. S. Phelan, editor of The Western Watchman, Archbishop Glennon says that the priest, in his recent "Tango Editorials," has expressed views seriously affecting the morals of the people, and contrary to the teaching of the Catholic Church. He brands the priest's expressions as offensive to the Catholic spirit, both in matter and manner.

The letter will be published in to-morrow's issue of The Watchman, as directed by the Archbishop. It probably will end Father Phelan's editorial discussion of the subject.

In his instructions accompanying the letter the Archbishop says:

"You will put it on the editorial page—and without comment—as I hope that its insertion will end the miserable turmoil the article has created. Anyhow, it will right me and will be an answer to the numberless letters I am receiving.

"Why do you continue your sarcasm at the expense of the hierachy? Your best friends are asking why."

In his letter the Archbishop says:

"I feel my duty as Chief Pastor of this diocese, speaking to you, a priest of this jurisdiction, and to The Watchman as a Catholic journal published in this diocese, to utter my protest against this (Tango) editorial, its inference and its spirit, and I want you to give to this note the same prominence in your journal that you gave the article referred to."

SALAZAR ARRESTED; OROZCO NOW SOUGHT

Federal Authorities Seize Fugitive General on Texas Train —Under Indictment Here.

LEWIS HITS BRITISH POLICY

Senator at London Luncheon Flays Course That Incites Mexicans—Powers Not Pressing Wilson.

SANDERSON, Texas, Jan. 16.—Gen. Ynes Salazar, commander of the Mexican Federal volunteers, who was driven out of Ojinaga by the rebels, was arrested here to-day.

He was found in a train bound for Eagle Pass, where he had intended to cross the river to join the Federal forces at Piedras Negras, Mexico.

Salazar was playing cards when arrested. He at once admitted his identity and was taken to Marfa to be put under bond for his appearance in Santa Fé, where he was indicted several months ago in the Federal courts on charges of conspiracy to smuggle arms and ammunition into Mexico. He was arrested in El Paso on that indictment, but forfeited his bond.

If Salazar gets out on bond at Marfa, the military authorities are prepared to rearrest him and remove him to El Paso with the other Federal soldiers and Generals who escaped to this country.

The capture of Salazar, who says he chose to risk arrest in this country rather than to fall into the hands of the rebels, convinced the authorities that his companions in the flight from Ojinaga, with the volunteer forces, Gens. Orozco and Coraves, with possibly other officers, were hiding in Texas, and more arrests were expected.

Salazar said, jokingly at first, that he thought Orozco had been killed at Ojinaga, but later he admitted that all the Generals had escaped.

It seems that Salazar and Orozco, with a small command, after escaping from Ojinaga, rode eastward along the Rio Grande until they reached a point on the border near Sanderson, where the railroad is not far inland. In the meantime a fictitious message had been sent to Mexico City that the Generals were in the State of Coahuila, on their way to San Luis Potosi.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The arrest of Gen. Salazar aroused much interest in official circles here. Salazar was in command of rebel forces, fighting the Madero Government, two years ago, when Thomas Fountain, a native American gunner in the Federal Army, was put to death under the "law of flight." Consul Letcher protested against injury to Fountain, and later a warning was issued by the State Department that the United States would hold the leaders of the Mexican factions personally responsible for injury to Americans. The defense was offered at the time that Fountain had become a Mexican citizen, and the matter has come up in debates in the Senate.

Feeling along the Mexican border has since that time been strong against Salazar.

ATTACKS CARDEN'S COURSE.

Senator Lewis Also Hits British Government on Mexican Policy.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—More than 100 Americans were present at the weekly luncheon of the American Luncheon Club to-day and wildly cheered the veiled but obvious attack upon Sir Lionel Carden and Great Britain for their Mexican policy made by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, one of the American delegates to the Conference on Safety at Sea, and the club's guest of honor.

Speaking immediately after an Under Secretary of the British Admiralty, who expressed the conventional hope that America and Great Britain might be united in lasting bonds of peace, Senator Lewis said:

"President Wilson desires friendship and peace with all nations; but how can there be peace with a nation that is inciting our neighbors to war on our borders? President Wilson's policy is 'peace with honor' but honor first if it must be honor even without peace.'"

That a powerful impression was made upon Americans here by Senator Lewis's pronunciamento was strikingly shown by the fact that, while THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was talking with the Senator at the Savoy to-night, one of those present at the luncheon rushed up to Mr. Lewis, shook his hand and thanked him, saying:

"Senator, your speech was an inspiration to all the Americans present."

Senator Lewis feels sure that Sir Lionel Carden will be recalled in the near future; and he believes that, while the Foreign Office will probably express its confidence in the correctness of its Minister's conduct in Mexico, it will make it clear to the State Department that he is removed in deference to American opinion.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 17.—The Outlook to-day will contain an editorial attacking the Foreign Office on the report that Sir Lionel Carden, Minister to Mexico, is to be transferred to the legation in Brazil. The article will say in part:

"The report of Sir Lionel Carden's transfer from Mexico wears a sinister look. We expect to find that our apprehension of a most notable and wanton surrender to an unprincipled foreign intrigue is fully warranted. We assert that it will be absolutely calamitous if our Minister to Mexico is withdrawn from his post of duty until the existing situation has been wholly transformed."

The article says now is the time to keep Carden in Mexico, especially when, because of the action of the United States, millions of dollars of British capital are wasting away, and when danger menaces the British name and fame in the eyes of people with whom they long have been pre-eminent.

POWERS NOT MEDDLING.

Inquire About Mexican Default, but Refrain from Pressing Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In a negative but nevertheless satisfactory way the United States Government has again been made aware that the European [illegible] no intention of attempting [illegible] President Wilson to adopt [illegible]itive policy with respect to Mexico. Inquiries have been made by representatives of foreign Governments concerning the default of interest on the Mexican national debt but these have not been coupled with any hints, questions, or suggestions that a change of policy was regarded as essential.

It was explained at the State Department to-day that when, several months ago, several European Governments announced their purpose, in response to suggestions from the United States, to await the outcome of the President's Mexican policy, it was well understood that the nationals of the nations concerned could have no assurance from this Government of responsibility for their loans to the Mexican Government.

Secretary Bryan in explanation of the attitude of the powers concerning the Mexican default of interest said to-day that the State Department was sending communications, whenever necessity required, to the foreign Governments in regard to conditions in Mexico. Earlier in the week Mr. Bryan had said that the default by Mexico on interest payment would make no change in the policy of this Government toward Mexico. This has been the uniform reply to representatives of foreign Governments who have inquired on the subject.

There was apparently some expectation abroad that when Mexico failed in her financial obligations this Government would modify its policy. None, however, was contemplated, said Mr. Bryan to-day, and nothing had been said in any communications to other Governments that would suggest such a change.

Speaking of the reports that Huerta had decided to send representatives to see John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, at Vera Cruz, Mr. Bryan said he had no information on the matter. He said Mr. Lind had ample authority to receive any one whom Huerta might send to him, and he also had authority to act, but he did not think he would agree to reopen negotiations unless these included a provision for the resignation of Huerta as President.

Official reports reach here that the Huerta Government is menaced by a new danger. Alarm has been caused in Mexican Government circles, it is said, by suspicious circumstances growing from the failure of the campaign of Acapulco.

The Federal garrison at that port, under the command of Gen. Mariscal, has been strangely apathetic in the presence of an alert rebel force led by Gen. Blanco. Repeated instructions from the War Minister to Mariscal to begin an active campaign against the rebels have failed to produce any effect, and talk of a warm friendship between Mariscal and Blanco has led to doubts of Mariscal's loyalty.

Aside from Salina Cruz, Acapulco is now practically the only port of the Pacific with good railroad connections with the capital that is held by the Federals. Loss of control might make it impossible to bring in the rifles and ammunition contracted for in Japan.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Authoritative denial was given at the Foreign Office this afternoon of a report published by the Lokal Anzeiger that an interchange of views on the Mexican suspension of interest payments was taking place between the powers.

VILLA TO LEAD 15,000 MEN.

He and Carranza Will Muster 25,000 on March Southward.

CHIHUAHUA, Jan. 16.—Gen. Francisco Villa announced to-day that he would enter the Central and Southern States of Mexico with an army of 15,000 soldiers. He will try to join forces with Carranza at Guadalajara, whence 25,000 or more men will begin a march toward Mexico City.

"We will strike a blow which the Huerta Government will be unable to withstand," said Gen. Villa after he had been in communication by telegraph with Carranza, who, he said, could muster 10,000 men. On the southward march he and Carranza, he said, would command the largest single revolutionary force ever assembled in Mexico.

Villa brought here from Ojinaga 3,000 rifles, twelve cannon, and seven rapid-fire guns, captured from the Federals. His forces are divided as follows: City of Chihuahua, 9,000; Santa Rosalia, 2,000; and Jiminez, 2,000. All these with forces at Parral and the men under Gen. Urbina, south of Escalon, will move on Mexico City with the exception of those necessary to police the country.

The Huertistas have burned all bridges between Bermejillo and Torreon, and have retired to the latter place after having been defeated by Urbina near Mapimi.

SINGING CARAVAN TO MARFA.

Federals and Women Refugees in Merry Mood as They March.

PRESIDIO, Texas, Jan. 16.—All the 3,300 Mexican federals and the 1,000 women refugees, who sought safety here when Ojinaga fell, left to-day on the four day march.

The ragged army was scattered for miles along the mountain road, closely guarded by United States cavalrymen. Gen. Salvador Mercado, recently Huerta's military chief in Northern Mexico, rode in an automobile with Gen. Francisco Castro. Other federal generals rode on horses.

Never had there been seen on the border such a picturesqe migration as when the army set in motion. Small detachments had been drifting along the road for several days, but it was not until daylight to-day that the main body started.

Major McNamee of the United States border patrol rode at the head of the column with an escort of three cavalry troops, while two troops brought up the rear.

The horses, which were brought across the river with the routed Mexicans, bore at least two riders, usually a man and a woman. Burros carried domestic belongings, packed in bundles on both sides, with children perched on top. The common soldiers and many women marched afoot.

Despite their ragged appearance, the soldiers and women were in merry spirits. Now and then groups of soldiers broke into song, while others at the stopping places ate with eagerness the rations supplied by the American troops.

It will be Monday night before the refugees reach Marfa to board the ten trains, which will carry them to El Paso.

PREDICT DIAZ REVOLUTION.

Refugees Expect an Uprising Hostile to Carranza and Huerta.

DOUGLAS, Arizona, Jan. 16.—Refugees who arrived to-day from Ojinaga predicted that a new revolution directed against both the Constitutionalists and the Huerta Government would be proclaimed in Northeastern Mexico as soon as Villa's army left that territory on its march to Mexico City.

Refugees said that the State of Durango was the stronghold of the movement, which was backed by former adherents of Porfirio Diaz. Inflammatory literature, which is being circulated in Durango, refers to the Constitutionalists as "Cochinadistas," meaning literally akin to swine.

NEW STEAMSHIP TO SAIL.

The Calamares the First to Have All Meals a la Carte.

The United Fruit steamship Calamares sails to-day at noon on her maiden voyage to the West Indies and Central America with 100 American tourists on board. The Calamares will call at Kingston, Colon, Port Limon, and Havana.

There will be no regular table d'hôte service in the dining room. All meals will be served a la carte, and paid for just as in a restaurant. The passage tickets include sleeping accommodations but no meals, which is a new departure on ocean steamers.

Among those sailing on the Calamares are Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Cuming, W. L. Gilden, Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Dale, Miss H. Bigelow, and Judge J. T. Dean of Boston.

The vessel is a twin screw steel, schooner-rigged steamer of 8,000 gross tonnage, 460 feet long, and a speed of 16 knots. She can seat 140 in her restaurant, and is fitted with the latest improvements.

CONFESSES HE SHOT ELLIS FOR A WOMAN

Paul Carl's Story to Pinkertons Clears Old Basking Ridge Mystery.

FIRED THROUGH WINDOW

Stroudsburg Youth, in Somerville, N. J., Jail, Says $400 Was Paid Him for Attack.

Paul Carl, a young man of East Stroudsburg, Penn., is in the jail at Somerville, N. J., charged with being the person who on the night of Nov. 20, 1911, fired a load of buckshot into the body of Monroe F. Ellis, President of the Conkling Lumber Company, while Mr. Ellis was at dinner with his family in the Ellis home at Basking Ridge, N. J.

According to the announcement of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, Carl has made a full confession, in which he said that he had been hired by a woman to kill the wealthy lumberman. Carl in his confession said he had tried to employ New York gangsters to do the job and that when he failed to make satisfactory terms with them he decided to do it himself. The woman, it was said at the Pinkerton offices yesterday, will probably be arrested to-day.

The details of the two years and two months' search for the assassin unfolds a story of detective work in which the gaining of Carl's confidence by a Pinkerton agent led to the undoing of the young man. Suspicion, so far as the public was concerned, had never been attracted to Carl. Bloodhounds had been employed immediately following the crime and they had started many trails, only to lose them, but the young man from East Stroudsburg, who was a discharged employe of Ellis's, was not suspected. One arrest, that of a negro chauffeur, also a discharged Ellis employe, was made, but the chauffeur quickly furnished an alibi and was set free.

After the arrest of the negro, and for more than two years the Pinkertons, who were brought into the case by a prominent citizen of New Jersey, worked on the case. A year elapsed before the Pinkertons struck the trail that was to lead to the arrest of Paul. Yesterday afternoon Samuel B. Diehl, General Superintendent of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, told the story of the arrest of Paul, and the events leading up to it.

"On Nov. 20, 1911," said Mr. Diehl, "Monroe F. Ellis, President of the Conkling Lumber Company of Bernardsville, while at dinner with his wife, son, and daughter, at his residence in Basking Ridge, N. J., was shot by an unknown assailant, who fired through the window Three slugs struck Mr. Ellis in the small of the back. He recovered in a few weeks.

"In the fall of 1912 the services of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency were retained by a public spirited resident of New Jersey to run down the assailant. We came to the conclusion that the assault was instigated by some persons or person close to Monroe F. Ellis, and particular attention was paid to investigating the record of persons employed by the Conkling Lumber Company. The investigation developed that about six weeks after Mr. Ellis was shot a young man named Paul Carl had been engaged to assist in the office work in Mr. Ellis's office, and that because of his bad habits and inattention to business, Mr. Ellis dispensed with his services after a few months.

"An investigation of this young man's record developed that he had made false statements regarding his employment and movements during the period immediately preceding and following the shooting of Ellis. Further investigation of Carl developed that he was a young man of a roving disposition, disinclined to work, and fond of the company of dissolute characters.

"A few months ago we succeeded in having an operative form the acquaintance and gain the confidence of Paul Carl, who was then living with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Carl, a widow, at East Stroudsburg, Penn. Carl told this operative that he was an expert in the handling of firearms; that he owned two double-barreled shotguns, and that on one occasion, while deer hunting, he lost another shotgun while being attacked by a deer he had slightly wounded.

"The story of this latter adventure gave the operative an opportunity to ask Carl further questions regarding this particular incident, while both men were out on a hunting trip in the woods several miles from Stroudsburg, and Carl confided to the operative that it was not a deer, but a man he had shot in the State of New Jersey. When asked further particulars, Carl told the operative that in the Summer of 1911, while he was working in Jersey City, he met a certain woman by appointment at the railroad station at Gladstone, N. J., where she informed him that Monroe F. Ellis of Bernardsville had assaulted her, and had not kept certain promises he had made her, and that she wanted him, Carl, to hire somebody to kill Ellis, saying that she would pay $500 to have this done.

"Being very much attached to this woman, he consented to get a man for this purpose, and before leaving her she gave him $10 as a sign of good will. Carl stated that after this interview he saw a number of rough characters in New York, whose names he could not recall, and tried to hire them to kill Ellis, but as he could not give these persons a satisfactory guarantee that the money would be paid after the man was shot, he failed to find anybody to undertake the job.

"About the middle of October he met this woman by appointment, and on that occasion she urged him to find somebody to do the shooting as quickly as possible, and on Nov. 19 he again met her at the railroad station at Gladstone and told her that he had secured the services of a suitable man, but never intimated that he was going to do the shooting himself.

"On the morning of Nov. 20 he called at the office of the Conkling Lumber Company, at Bernardsville, where Ellis was pointed out to him, so that he could in turn designate him to the man who was to do the shooting.

"Ellis, on leaving the office in the evening, walked along the railroad tracks to his home in Basking Ridge. Shortly before 6 o'clock that night Carl, who had brought with him a double-barreled shot gun, took up a position in a lonely spot along the railroad tracks about half way between Bernardsville and Basking Ridge, but failed to see Ellis come along. He then decided to go to Ellis's home, in the expectation of finding an opportunity to shoot him there, as he did not intend to postpone action until the following day, for fear of becoming conspicuous by remaining in Bernardsville too long.

"On reaching Ellis's residence about 6:30 P. M., he saw Ellis at the table in the dining room at dinner with his family. Taking up a position about twelve or fifteen feet from the window, he fired at Ellis, who sat at the head of the table. After firing the shot, he returned to the railroad track, which is but a short distance from the scene of the shooting, stopping long enough to take apart his gun and conceal it in an inside pocket of his long raincoat. On reaching the railroad tracks, he jumped on a passing freight, and on reaching Millington took a passenger train to Summit, where he stopped over night, going next day to Hoboken, and on the following day to his mother's home at Stroudsburg, Penn.

"A few days later he received a letter from the woman informing him of Ellis's condition, and in the first week in January, by this woman's advice, he came to Bernardsville to act as an assistant in the office of the Conkling Lumber Company, as she considered this the best way to eliminate him from all suspicion.

"Carl remained there for several months, keeping well posted on all the moves of the county authorities and other detectives engaged on the case, but as the situation finally became unbearable to him, he told the woman referred to that he wanted to go away, and the latter then advised him to give Mr. Ellis, by bad conduct and inattention to business, a reason for discharging him.

"Carl further stated that he received altogether $400 for shooting Ellis, the money being paid him in installments while he worked in the office of the lumber company, and the last payment of $100 was made to him on the last day of January, 1912."

Carl was arrested at Camden, N. J., late last Wednesday afternoon, but the fact was kept quiet until yesterday. Mr. Diehl said that the young man made a complete confession on Thursday night. District Attorney Frederick A. Pope of Somerset County was present during the confession. In the confession Carl named the woman who, he says, hired him to shoot Mr. Ellis.

The woman part of the confession, Mr. Diehl added, is now under investigation, and will be fully verified before any action is taken in regard to it. He said it would be manifestly unfair to name the woman pending the outcome of that investigation, which he expects to be concluded to-day. Neither would Mr. Diehl give the name of the public-spirited citizen who employed the Pinkertons to run down the assailant. The man, however, is said to be a member of a famous family of engineers living in New Jersey.

No one was more surprised than was Mr. Ellis when he learned that Carl was in the Somerville jail. He said he did not believe Paul Carl was guilty. Carl, he said, had not been in his employ prior to the shooting, but entered it afterward, and left it because he was seemingly more interested in balls and amusements than in the clerical work he was supposed to attend to. He worked six or seven months. After leaving Mr. Ellis's employ the prisoner went to work in the Bernardsville freight office.

Mr. Ellis said he was sick and tired of the whole affair, and while his offer of $1,000 reward still stands, he has long since ceased to employ detectives in the case.

District Attorney Pope said last night that he wanted to express his thanks to John A. Roebling of Trenton for the interest he has taken in the case. Mr. Roebling's aid in solving the crime, he said, had been invaluable.

STROUDSBURG, Penn., Jan. 16.—Paul Carl is about 20 years old, and is a son of Mrs. John Carl, who lives at Gravel Place, several miles from Stroudsburg. He was home for Christmas. Carl worked here last Summer, and is said to be reliable, though somewhat wild at times. His father was killed on the railroad six years ago, and the mother got $10,000 damages.

DENY ROBIN'S CHARGES.

Gifford, Hobbs & Beard Say They Acted for Northern Depositors.

The law firm of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard, which has been sued by some of the depositors of the Northern Bank for $2,750,000, made a supplementary answer yesterday through Anson McCook Beard, the junior member of the firm. This denied every allegation made in the complaint. Responsibility for the action against the firm is attributed to Joseph G. Robin, ex-President of the bank.

"This whole Robin complaint," said Mr. Beard, "is false from beginning to end. The complaint charges a conspiracy between the defendants and certain large interests to eliminate Robin from the banking world. But not one single fact is produced in support of any of the statements. This firm had nothing whatever to do with the bank except to work for two years without pay in an effort to recover as much money as possible for the depositors. We did collect about $1,500,000. If there was a conspiracy it was certainly not profitable to this firm, because we didn't get a penny for our labors. We never borrowed any money from the bank nor had any dealings with it at all except to perform for it certain legal services."

Concerning the charges made against the firm to the Bar Association Mr Beard said:

"The committee of the Bar Association investigated every transaction which this firm had with Robin or his bank. It investigated every charge Robin could think of making. Nothing whatever was found to criticise except that Mr. Gifford, in testifying in a certain proceeding, made a mistake as to the date when Robin became a Director in the Hamilton Bank."

SKATING CAP RIOTS.

N. Y. U. Lower Classmen Engage in Battle—Dean Acts.

The rebellious sophomore class of New York University, which was suspended from membership by the student organization at University Heights on Thursday because of their refusal to submit to the upper classmen's ruling that the freshmen be allowed to wear woolen skating caps, made partially good their threat to deprive all freshmen of woolen hats yesterday. One hundred sophomores lined up and awaited the coming of the freshmen from chapel. When they appeared in a body, nearly every head covered with a skating cap, the sophomores sped to the attack.

For fifteen minutes the battle raged and clothes suffered severely. Except for scratched faces and sore heads, due to harsh contact with frozen ground, no serious harm was done. The freshmen had slightly the better of the contest, but the sophomores managed to capture nearly all the caps.

The situation was materially affected by the statement yesterday afternoon by Dean Francis Hovey Stoddard of the college, who promised that the first man to reopen the combat on Monday would be promptly expelled. He further stated that he would call a meeting of the student cabinet and officers of the student organization and of the two lower classes on Monday, when proceedings will be discussed.

The Faculty seem to believe that the sophomore class is in the wrong. The second-year class will probably apologize and allow the freshmen to wear the skating caps.

BURNED A MAIL WAGON.

Witness Tells How Mail Chauffeurs' Union Ran Strike.

Testimony as to the violence used by the striking mail chauffeurs last October and that it was directly excited by the advice of the union leaders was put in yesterday at the trial in the Federal District Court of fifteen members of the chauffeurs union on the charge of having obstructed the mails.

James Clinch, a striker, testified that David Hockberg, President of the union, had bidden him get strike-breakers off the wagons and to use his own judgment as long as he did not get arrested. He could not say that any of the defendants was implicated in the burning of a mail wagon on Oct. 25. As far as he knew, a fugitive from justice, he said, had been seen pulling a magneto wire from the machine.

Another striker, Charles Levine, denied that Hockberg had ever told him to beat up the strike-breakers. He told, however, how Hockberg had suggested at strike headquarters that Election Night would be a good time "to turn a trick," and that he had resisted the proposal of Glock, another defendant, to stop a mail automobile, which they had seen coming down the street.

James F. Fitzpatrick, another chauffeur, told how Louis Terry had persuaded him to join the strike, and to drive to the barn and show that he was a man. Terry, he testified, was about to throw a stone at a passing mail wagon but a policeman stopped him.

INDICT PICTURE PROMOTERS

Three Interested in White Slave Film to be Tried.

The additional Grand Jury in Part 1 of General Sessions voted indictments yesterday afternoon against Samuel H. London, the writer of the story upon which the moving picture play, "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic," was founded; John H. Heagney, manager for London, and Harry C. Bohn, manager of the Bijou Theatre which was raided by the police while the film play was being presented there. Several ticket sellers and other employes of the Park and Bijou Theatres, who were arrested when the film was shown, were not held by the Grand Jury.

The indictments followed a private exhibition of the films attended by the Grand Jurors themselves, who were anxious to see if the picture play was fit for the public. They quickly decided that it was not, and the three indictments charging misdemeanor in each instance followed.

ACCUSES GAFFNEY OF $135,000 HOLD-UP

Contractor Stewart Says He Was Asked for 5% on Great Canal Contracts.

SULZER HAD SOUGHT DELAY

Urged Canal Board in Telegram to Defer Action—"Subscription" with No Election Pending.

James C. Stewart, a wealthy contractor, caled as a witness yesterday in District Attorney Whitman's John Doe inquiry, swore that a man who represented himself as James E. Gaffney asked him for a "subscription" approximately of $135,000 at a time when the Canal Board was considering bids made by his firm for two big Barge Canal contracts.

James E. Gaffney is known as a warm personal friend of Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall. Stewart swore that virtually he sent Gaffney out of his office.

Then District Attorney Whitman produced records to show that William Sulzer, at that time Governor-elect, had sent a telegram to the Canal Board asking that action on Stewart's bid be deferred "until I confer with you." Records also were produced to show that Stewart did not get the contract he sought.

The special Supreme Court Grand Jury at the present time is investigating the circumstances attending the awarding of a $3,000,000 Catskill Aqueduct contract. Testimony has been given by one of the firm of contractors interested that he paid $30,000 to Gaffney for so-called expert advice after the contract was awarded. Testimony was given at a former session of the John Doe inquiry that Gaffney, as a silent partner, had shared in the commissions on the sales of a patented road pavement to the State Highway Department

The name of W. J. Conners of Buffalo, better known as "Fingy" Conners, was mentioned in the course of Stewart's testimony. It was asserted that he had collected a $10,000 campaign contribution from Stewart in 1908. Stewart acknowledged paying the money. Stewart also acknowledged making contributions of $5,000 in 1910 and $2,500 in 1911 and 1912. The questions turned quickly to the Gaffney incident. Stewart is gray-haired and past middle age. He was an impressive witness.

Canal Contracts in a Tangle.

According to the testimony the Gaffney incident arose out of the negotiations concerning Contracts 71A and 72A of the Barge Canal. These contracts, originally known as No. 71 and No. 72, were for work on adjoining "sections," as they were called, of the Champlain Canal Division of the Barge Canal. The two contracts were let in 1910, to Shanley-Morrissey Inc. When Shanley-Morrissey Inc. encountered financial difficulties in 1912, the contracts were canceled and again were advertised by the Canal Board. That was on Aug. 7, 1912. The contracts thereafter were known as 71A and 72A.

Duncan W. Peck reported on Sept. 25, that there were no bids for Contract 71A. He reported one bid for 72A, that of James Stewart & Co., Stewart's firm. Stewart's bid was $1,539,[illegible]2.25. This was $414,000 more than the engineers' estimate. Stewart's bid was rejected by a unanimous vote of the Canal Board. The two contracts again were advertised.

On the second occasion Stewart was the second lowest bidder for Contract 71A, at a bid of $1,232,342.72. This was the first time he had bid on this contract. The lowest bidder was the firm of P. McGovern & Co., at $1,217,016.06, but even this bid was $200,000 more than the engineers' estimate.

Stewart again was the only bidder on 72A. This time his bid was $1,534,732.25, about $5,000 below his first bid. In making his bids, Stewart made a formal offer that if both contracts were awarded to his firm he would make certain concessions. Instead of charging $2.60 for excavating a cubic yard of rock and dirt on Contract 71A, he said he would charge only $2.49 for each cubic yard. It was estimated that this would make the Stewart bid on 71A more than $28,000 below that of P. McGovern & Co.

The Canal Board after it had received Stewart's offer of concessions delayed action. George Gordon Battle, Stewart's attorney, appeared before Attorney General Carmody and pleaded for his client. The objection that had been raised against Stewart's joint-bid offer was that it was "irregular." Members of the Canal Board also said that it was illegal. Attorney General Carmody, in a decision, held that there was no legal objection to the plan.

Stewart's offer still was under consideration in December, 1912. This telegram was received by the Canal Board on Dec. 18, from Gov-elect William Sulzer:

"Please defer action on the bid of James Stewart & Co. until I confer with you."

A vote on the question of deferring action on contracts 71A and 72A was taken by the Canal Board. It was resolved by a vote of five to two to comply with Sulzer's request. The vote was: For postponement—Attorney General Carmody, State Engineer Bensel, Secretary of State Lazansky, Lieut. Gov. Conway, and Treasurer Kennedy.

Against postponement—Controller Sohmer and Supt. of Public Works Peck.

Carmody Objects to the Bids.

Nothing more was done about the contracts until after Sulzer became Governor. The matter came up in the Canal Board on Jan. 14, 1913. Attorney General Carmody under the circumstances objected to awarding either of the contracts. He asserted that the bid of P. McGovern & Co. on 71A, although the lowest, was much larger than the engineers' estimate, that James Stewart & Co.'s bid on 72A likewise was too high, and that James Stewart & Co.'s offer for both 71A and 72A was out of the question because it exceeded the estimates.

Attorney General Carmody was overruled by a vote of 6 to 1, all of his associates on the Canal Board voting to award Contract 71A to P. McGovern & Co. That was on Jan. 14, 1913. At the same time Stewart's bid on 72A, the only received, again was rejected, and an order was made that the contract should be advertised again.

The new advertisement brought out two bidders for 72A—James Stewart & Co. at $1,534,602.25 and P. McGovern & Co. at $1,571,217.59. This time Contract 72A was awarded to Stewart as the lowest bidder.

It was while the Canal Board was considering his offer to make concessions if both contracts were awarded to him, Stewart acknowledged on the stand yesterday, that the man purporting to be James E. Gaffney entered his office, 30 Church Street. This was after Sulzer had been elected, but before he had been inaugurated as Governor. District Attorney Whitman emphasized the fact that the election was over and that Stewart had made his contribution of $2,500 to the Democratic State Committee several months before. Mr. Whitman questioned the witness:

Q.—While your contracts were pending in Albany, did you have any conversations relating to them? A.—I did, several conversations.

Q.—Do you recall having a conversation with James E. Gaffney? A.—Yes, he came to my office and said his name was Mr. Gaffney. He asked me whether we had not bid on Contracts 71 and 72 up-State. I said we had. He asked me whether they were not good contracts. I said they were. Then he asked me for a subscription, and he followed that up by saying that the year before Mr. Cram and Mr. Carroll had seen me about the subscription. He told me that Mr. Cram and Mr. Carroll had collected before. He said that Mr. Carroll was dead and that Mr. Cram was not attending to the collecting any more. I resented this talk because neither Mr. Cram or Mr. Carroll had ever stepped into my office. There never had been a suggestion before that I should contribute because I had contracts. Whenever I contributed I did so by letter.

Gaffney Wants 5 Per Cent.

Q.—Did Gaffney tell you how much of a contribution he wanted? A.—Why, he said those contracts were good contracts and he said there ought to be at least 5 per cent. in them.

Q.—That would be considerably over $100,000, wouldn't it? A.—Yes, it would.

Q.—What did you reply to that? A.—I thought he had a good deal of nerve to talk to me like that. I had never seen the man before, and didn't know him at all.

Q.—And you still think he had a great deal of nerve? A.—I do.

Q.—What did you say? A.—Well, he was only there about three minutes or so, but I remember that I resented his proposition very much. I resented his coming and I told him that it was unnecessary for him to come around for such a thing.

Q.—And there was no election pending at the time for which a big contribution like that might have been used? A.—No, it was after election.

Q.—Did you get Contract 71A? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you get 72A at that time? A.—I did not.

Q.—And you were the only bidder on 72A? A.—Yes, the only bidder.

Q.—Did you ever see Gaffney again? A.—Never.

Stewart, under further examination by Mr. Clark, said that he might be able to identify the man who asked him for 5 per cent. of the contracts. He, however, was not sure that he could. He could give no good description of the man, and insisted that he had never seen him before or after that visit.

"Do you know who is connected with P. McGovern & Co?" asked Mr. Clark.

"No, I don't, except Mr. Govern himself," replied the witness.

Mr. Clark, in asking about the P. McGovern & Co., was trying to confirm John A. Hennessy's assertion that Tom Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, and Phil Donohue, the Treasurer of Tammany, were interested in this firm. This charge has been denied by Smith and Donohue, and also by officers of the McGovern Company.

The Mr. Cram referred to, it was said, was J. Sergeant Cram. It was Hennessy who asserted in the municipal campaign that Cram was the "bagman" for Murphy in 1911.

It was said last night that Stewart might be called before the Grand Jury to tell his story. If he is called, Stewart will be asked to go much further into details as to the charge that Gaffney tried to shake him down for a 5 per cent. contribution.

Sulzer's Praise of Gaffney.

Gaffney is a well-known contractor. He was a warm friend of Sulzer in the early part of the Sulzer administration. Sulzer made him Chairman of the so-called non-partisan board which was to confer with him on State highway matters. That was in February, 1913, two months after Sulzer had requested the Canal Board to defer action on Stewart's bid. Sulzer's praise of Gaffney at that time is of especial interest now. Sulzer said:

"Mr. Gaffney is a big and experienced contractor. I had a long talk with him, and was astonished to learn how much he knows about good roads and road building. He will prove a valuable member of the board."

Gaffney is interested in the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers Construction Company He is President of the New York Contracting Company, and Treasurer of the New York Contracting and Trucking Company. He is President of the Boston National League baseball team.

Two road contractors followed Stewart on the stand yesterday. They were Henry F. Heuer of the Spuyten Duyvil Construction Company, and Eugene McGreevey of McGreevey, McGuigan & Baum of Elmira. Heuer testified that he sent a check for $200 to George M. Palmer in 1912 after receiving some road contracts from the State. He said that the contribution was not solicited. McGreevey said that he had received a letter from William H. Kelley, Democratic boss of Syracuse, asking him to meet Everett Fowler, the bagman. He had declined the invitation, he said, and had not paid any contribution.

"Did you get any repair contracts?" asked Mr. Clark.

"No, I didn't have a chance," said the witness. "Work in my county was all given out without advertisement."

"NO POLITICS," SAYS CARMODY

Denies Knowledge of Any Demand Made Upon Contractor Stewart.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—Attorney General Carmody to-night denied that the Canal Board had refused to award certain contracts to James C. Stewart because he did not contribute 5 per cent. of his bid to "Gaffney."

"Politics did not enter into the bidding," said the Attorney General. "I know nothing of Stewart's story that he was approached and asked for a contribution.

"The statement that has been made that no record was kept of secret Canal Board sessions is absolutely false. A stenographer or clerk is present at every meeting of the Canal Board. A record is in existence somewhere."

responsibility by trying to place the blame on somebody else by contending that some politicians were instrumental in handling the matter in connection with the road. It is the same position always taken by men who have failed to take the burden, and always throw it upon somebody else."

Witness Intimidated.

John P. Kelly, an engineer, connected with the Broome County road, who was the principal witness yesterday, said he met Peter F. Conley, a contractor, last night, and that Conley got from him a written pledge agreeing not to tell anything at future hearings about the condition of the roads not under investigation. Yesterday Kelly testified that he believed he was removed from the Broome County division because he had objected to a change of material on a road Conley was building. Commissioner Delaney instructed the witness he must tell all he knew and on the stand to-day he told of a dozen other roads where contract provisons had been ignored.

"Since I came to Albany last year," Mr. Delaney said, "I have been convinced that there is a state of terrorism among the subordinate employes of the Highway Department. Whether justified or not, it appears to me that there is not an official engaged in the actual construction of roads who is not afraid that his job hangs on the faithful observance of what he believes to be the desire of the officials above him.

"I have talked over this case with Gov. Glynn, and the Governor authorizes me to say to any subordinate officials in the Highway Department, or in any other department, that will come forward with information regarding the practices not in accord with the best interests of the State, he will exercise his authority as long as he is in office to protect these men against any persecution or removal.

"There is no political influence that is sufficiently strong to stop the running of these investigations to the seat of the wrongdoing. No political influence has tried to, and, for myself, I want to say that personally I am free from any influence that will prevent my going to the very end."

Mr. Delaney, accompanied by several officials from his department, go to Buffalo on Monday to begin an investigation of charges made against Dr. Daniel H. Arthur, Medical Superintendent of the Gowanda Hospital.

SCIENTIST COMMITS SUICIDE

Remorse for False Prediction the Motive—Volcano Is Still in Eruption.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 17.—A Tokio dispatch to The Times says it is now found that no very considerable damage has been done at Kagoshima and that the casualties which occurred were due to the collapse of the stone walls which were used locally as fences or took place during the panic-stricken rush for safety.

Volcanic ashes lie three feet deep over the whole town, which is in complete darkness at night and still almost entirely deserted, as the inhabitants fear a renewal of the eruption. The appearance of new craters on Sakura-Jima suggest the possibility of the complete disintegration of the mountain, which might lead to the overwhelming of Kagoshima.

While the Island of Sakura-Jima was devastated, and all animals were burned where they stood, there is no reason to believe that the death roll exceeds 200, as most of the villagers had time to escape before their houses were overwhelmed by the lava streams.

The exaggerated reports of the damage caused by the earthquakes which appear to have been sent to Europe are causing some comment, as it is officially announced that at Kagoshima only ten persons were killed and seventeen injured, and only thirty-five houses wholly destroyed and twenty-three partly destroyed.

Of the 25,000 houses on the Island of Sakura-Jima nearly half were destroyed.

TOKIO, Japan, Jan. 16.—The suicide to-day by hara-kiri of the chief of the Meteorological Observatory at Kagoshima is reported in unconfirmed dispatches to the newspapers here. The correspondents say that the scientist committed suicide owing to the severe criticism of his action in informing the citizens of Kagoshima that they were in no danger from the eruption of the volcano Sakura-jima, as the centre of the subterranean disturbances was elsewhere.

Sakura-jima was still smoking to-day when Prof. Fusakichi Omori, who occupies the Chair of Seismology at the Tokio Imperial University, arrived to undertake an investigation. The scientist considers that the danger is now over.

The people of Kagoshima, many of whom have returned to the ruined city only to find their houses destroyed, awaited with wonderful faith for Prof. Omori to give his decision as to the possibility of further catastrophes. Many familes were separated during the panic which followed the eruption, earthquake, and tidal wave, and the highways in the vicinity of Kagoshima are crowded with saddened people searching for their relatives.

Eye Witness Describes Eruption.

A letter received here to-day from T. R. Hoyer of the Young Men's Christian Association at Kagoshima tells graphically the story of the eruption of Sakura-jima and of the events that followed it. The letter, which is dated Jan. 12, says:

"Sakura-jima has now been in violent eruption for thirteen hours. There was a severe earthquake at 6:55 o'clock this evening, and in panic the people fled to the hills.

"Great damage was done by the shock. Stone walls are lying in the street, chimneys have fallen through the roofs of the flimsy wooden structures, the dike lies in ruins, and in every home furniture has been smashed and valuable vases and ornaments have been destroyed.

"The people who remain in the city are camped in the streets, the temple grounds and graveyards. There has been no looting, although the shops are exposed. The crater's roar keeps all the people awake. The first eruption occurred at 9 o'clock this morning, and ashes were hurled high in the air. Schools were suspended and business came to a standstill.

"Many persons had left Sakura-jima, warned by the severe earth shocks and the swelling of the earth. Hundreds of sampans brought the destitute across the bay to Kagoshima. From this city could be seen the appalling shower of rocks, some of them apparently as large as a house, hurled hundreds of feet into the air, and dropping again on the island. By this evening it is probable that all the villages on the mountain have been burned.

"At the wharf here many pitiful scenes were witnessed. Women were weeping or crying for protection. They could hardly wait to reach the shore to tell the story of those left behind. One old man carried a pet bird. Five thousand destitute persons are quartered in the schools and temples of Kagoshima. All the people have fled from the water front, and carts packed with bedding and trunks, and women laden with burdens on their backs are hastening from the city.

"Sakura-Jima, which is twenty-six miles in circumference, probably is the most beautiful island in Japan, but now it will be a disfiguring, ugly mass of pumice, if it does not disappear altogether.

"As the foregoing sentence was written a door collapsed directly in front of my desk. The air concussions are terrific. It is impossible to tell how long the house will bear the shaking. The very floor is moving away under my feet. It is dangerous to walk in the streets for fear of being struck by falling walls or tiles. Sleeping is entirely out of the question.

"Early this evening the skies above Sakura-Jima were fire red and the large full moon actually was bloody. No painter would have pictured doomsday more vividly."

In accordance with the general appeal which President Wilson has made for Red Cross aid for the sufferers from the Japanese earthquake, the New York State Board of the American Red Cross solicits contributions, which may be sent to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, 130 East Twenty-second Street.

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Japan Society was held yesterday afternoon, to consider the action to be taken in connection with the Kagoshima disaster and the famine conditions in Northern Japan. It was decided to make an appeal to members for contributions to be sent to the Japanese Red Cross for the relief of the suffering, not only in connection with the volcanic eruption, but also for the district where there has been an almost complete failure of crops.

At the close of the meeting the following message was sent to Baron Shibusawa, Chairman of the society's Advisory Council in Tokio:

Japan Society feels profound sympathy in Kagoshima disaster and northern famine. May we send contributions to Japanese Red Cross?

CUCARACHA SLIDE MOVING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Jan. 16.—Conditions at the Cucaracha slide have remained practically the same for the past week, the least width of the channel being about 160 feet with seven dredges engaged on either side of the narrowest point. The slide is believed to be again slightly in motion and it is thought that 1,500,000 cubic yards of soil will have to be removed before it ceases to menace the channel.

The net emigration from the Isthmus in the last five months was 10,766, mostly laborers on the canal, who are departing because the work is nearly finished. The villages of Bas Obispo and Las Cascadas have been abandoned, now that work on that section has been finished.

ROME 400 BARS THE TANGO.

Society Accepts the Prohibition of the Vicar General.

ROME, Jan. 16.—A majority of the women of the Roman aristocracy have decided to conform to the instructions issued yesterday by Cardinal Basilio Pompili, Vicar General of Rome, and banish the tango from their salons and otherwise discourage the dance. Cardinal Pompili, representing Pope Pius, in a pastoral letter on Thursday denounced the tango and declared that it must be absolutely prohibited in the seat of the Roman Pontiff.

FLORENCE, Jan. 16.—The Archbishop of Florence, the Most Rev. A. Mistrangelo, in a letter to the local diocesan newspaper, joins Cardinal Pompili in his condemnation of the tango. The Archbishop inclosed in the letter a subscription for use in the printing of a pamphlet to combat the dance.

HOLDS INCH BLAMELESS.

British Court Praises Him and Other Volturno Officers.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—No blame can be attached to Capt. Francis Inch or the officers of the Uranium liner Volturno in connection with the fire which destroyed her and 132 of her passengers and crew in midocean on Oct. 11, 1913, nor in relation to her abandonment, according to the judgment of the court of inquiry appointed by the British Board of Trade.

The Earl of Desart, who delivered the judgment to-day, said that the cumulative effect of the evidence was that the fire originated not in the steerage, but among the chemicals carried as cargo. It could not, however, be attributed to spontaneous combustion.

Lord Desart paid a tribute to the officers and crew of the Volturno, and concluded his eulogy of them with the remark: "Of Capt. Inch it is sufficient to say he did his duty."

TO BLOCK ANOTHER ZABERN

German Parties Will Unite for Parliamentary Action.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—The Radical, Liberal, and Clerical members of the Imperial Parliament have determined to take the initiative toward the introduction of a measure for governing the use of weapons and the exercise of police powers by the military in Germany, such as recently occurred during the violent incidents between the army and civil authorities at Zabern, Alsace.

Their intention is to provide, by a law enacted by Parliament, for the prevention of similar occurrences, instead of leaving it in the hands of the monarch.

The line running from Villefranche on the Mediterranean to Bourg-Madame on the Spanish frontier is snowbound.

PLAN FOR CHICAGO SUBWAYS

One for System to Cost from $80,000,000 to $150,000,000 Proposed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A proposal to give Chicago a comprehensive subway system, costing from $80,000,000 to $150,000,000, to be paid for out of the earnings of the system, was made to Mayor Harrison and a committee of the City Council to-day by Walston H. Brown, engineer of New York, and J. Morton Griffiths of Griffiths & Co., London, England. It involves a bond and stock issue, to be underwritten abroad if American money is not available, the city to pay 5 per cent. interest on the bonds and to receive 35 per cent. of the earnings from operation for twenty years, which is the legal life of a public utility corporation in Illinois.

Petitions are being circulated to have the public express its view of the proposal at the Spring election.

HUMPHREY DENIES IRON TRADE REVIVAL

Quotes Trade Paper's Message as He Paints Another Gloomy Picture Before Congress.

CITES INQUIRY BY TIMES

And Insists the 60 Steel Furnaces Blown In Last Year Are Confused with Stacks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Speaking in the House again to-day on industrial conditions, Representative William E. Humphrey of Washington reiterated that there were 123 idle steel mills in the country and a million men unemployed.

Mr. Humphrey originally made this assertion in a speech to the House on Tuesday. THE NEW YORK TIMES sent telegrams the next day to the iron and steel companies, asking as to the accuracy of Mr. Humphrey's statement, and the Representative made THE TIMES story the basis for his speech in which he argued that the telegrams sent to THE TIMES corroborated his own figures.

"I have quoted from THE NEW YORK TIMES," said Mr. Humphrey at the end of his speech to-day, "which has taken occasion to send telegrams to the 123 mills that I said were closed, and they have published some forty-five replies, which say that every statement I made was correct. So the truth is to-day that there are 38 per cent. of all the steel mills in this country closed, that is, 38 per cent. of the production, and there are 1,000,000 men out of employment.

"I believe it my duty to tell the facts to the country. I try to tell them exactly as they are. So far no man has yet found that I made a mistake. I believe it my duty to see if public sentiment can be aroused, until the Democratic Party will stop its crusade before the business of the country is entirely destroyed."

Mr. Humphrey referred to the position taken on Tuesday by Representative Underwood, the Democratic floor leader, who challenged the accuracy of the figures given as to steel plant stacks "blown out" since March 1. He said the Democrats had made no reply except to insinuate that the figures were incorrect.

"Some complaint was made upon the Democratic side that I used Republican newspapers," said Mr. Humphrey. "As a matter of fact, I used only a trade paper, but in order, perhaps, to show whether or not my statements were correct, THE NEW YORK TIMES of yesterday contains a large number of telegrams from the mills I mentioned as closed. It will hardly be contended that THE NEW YORK TIMES is a Republican newspaper. If I am correctly informed, it supported Mr. Wilson, and it is now supporting the Administration.

"I have looked through the figures as they give them in detail. If I have them correctly, out of 53 stacks reported closed in Pennsylvania, they received telegraphic replies from 32, and every one says that my figures are correct. Out of a total of 123 they have received 45 replies, and every one says that my figures are correct.

"As to why these mills closed, I have no quarrel with you. This article in THE NEW YORK TIMES is a fair one. I have no criticism to make of it, although they have made one or two mistakes in their statements, owing, undoubtedly, to the fact of lack of technical knowledge of the steel business."

As to Recent Improvement.

Mr. Humphrey quoted the opening paragraph of THE TIMES story, which said there had been "some signs of improvement" since March 1.

"In answer to the statement that there has been some improvement," Mr. Humphrey continued, "I quote a telegram I received yesterday from Cleveland. That dispatch reads:

> Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 15, 1914.
>
> Congressman William C. Humphrey, Washington, D. C.:
>
> Steel situation continues to grow worse. Connellsville, Penn., district coke workers' wages are being reduced 10 per cent. and 2,100 coke ovens closed down this week for indefinite period. DAILY IRON TRADE.

"I put that statement from a trade paper against their statement that things are improving. THE TIMES says further:

"'Some points were made, however, that changed the interpretation put on the figures by Mr. Humphrey to a certain extent. One was that the decline did not date from March, when the Democratic Administration came in, but began in June, and was not marked until November and December. This is shown by the actual record of production, as compiled by The Iron Age.'

"I have no contradiction to make of that statement. It is true that the marked depression commenced about the time the tariff law went into effect, but I was going back a year. I went back a year because the figures were furnished me that way. I have no dispute if this Democratic paper insists that it had come on within the last three months, since we have had the new law on the statute books. I think the figures they give in that particular are correct.

"Here is the one mistake I find in the article, except as to matters of opinion, and I have no disposition to quarrel with them about matters of opinion:

"'The figures cited by Mr. Humphrey also ignored the fact that since March new stacks, estimated to aggregate sixty or seventy, had been blown in, and no allowance was made for these as an offset against the 123 said to have been blown out.'

"THE NEW YORK TIMES is somewhat muddled in that statement. In 1913 there were only four new blast furnaces constructed, and that represented new capacity. They have a combined capacity of about 550,000 tons of pig iron annually. There were two furnaces for the Pittsburgh Steel Company at Monesson, Penn., one for the Youngstown Steel and Tube Company, and one for the Oriskany Iron and Ore Corporation in Reusens, Va. These facts are taken from the annual number of The Iron Trade Review for Jan. 1, 1914.

A Question About Furnaces.

"Now, without attempting to explain just what THE TIMES did mean by its statement that I failed to include these sixty or seventy blasts they mentioned, it seems they have confused blast furnaces with open-hearth steel furnaces. There were sixty-two of the latter, with an annual capacity of about 3,120,000 tons of steel, completed last year, but that is an entirely different proposition. I was speaking of blast furnaces that make pig iron, and they were talking about open-hearth furnaces that make steel, so with that error, which was undoubtedly unintentional, I think the article which they quote is correct."

THE TIMES's statement, to which Mr. Humphrey took exception in this way, was based on a quotation from The Iron Age, wherein it was said, apropos of Mr. Humphrey's assertions that "not a single deduction was made for the three score or more furnaces that have blown in in the ten months covered by the figures."

Mr. Humphrey continued:

"When I was talking the other day Mr. Hardwick of Georgia said the difficulty at this time was that we were still suffering from hard times, and that had been inherited from the Republican Administration. Now THE NEW YORK TIMES quotes from some gentleman to show that the prospects in the steel business were better.

"Now I commend that to my Democratic friends, who have been saying the conditions are inherited from the Republican Administration. It shows that what little prosperity we did have in 1913, in the steel mills at least, was from orders which were taken in 1912, just as I pointed out the other day that the United States Steel Corporation on Jan. 1, 1913, had some 700,000 tons of orders, while on the first day of January, 1914, they had only about half that amount."

Mr. Humphrey here read some of the dispatches to THE TIMES in regard to statements he had made concerning the closing of the mills. Commenting on the Jones & Laughlin Company's reply, Mr. Humphrey said:

"I call to the attention of the House that particular dispatch because the distinguished leader upon that side of the House, Mr. Underwood, the other day inserted a newspaper clipping to the effect that there had been a large number of men re-employed in Pittsburgh, and among the companies mentioned that re-employed them was this Jones & Laughlin Steel Company. The dispatch I have just read shows that to that extent, at least, that dispatch read by Mr. Underwood was not correct."

Let the Secretaries "Execute."

Reading the telegrams to THE TIMES from M. A. Hanna & Co. of Cleveland, the Iroquois Iron Company of South Chicago, the Inland Steel Company of East Chicago, the Chattanooga Iron and Steel Corporation of Chattanooga, and the Maryland Steel Company of Sparrows Point, Mr. Humphrey said:

"I call the attention of the Secretary of Commerce and of the Secretary of Labor to the fact that they may not longer have to look for the evidence. These 'guilty wretches' have come up and announced over their own signatures that they have closed down these mills. Now, let the executions proceed."

HOPEFUL STEEL OUTLOOK.

Chairman Topping Looks for an Improvement in the Industry Soon.

John A. Topping, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Republic Iron & Steel Company, said yesterday that most departments of the company were working at about fifty per cent. of capacity, but that an improvement in business was looked for soon. Mr. Topping's statement was made to supplement the opinions of steel men, as given in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Thursday on the outlook for the steel industry.

"The statement made by Representative Humphrey on the authority of the Iron Trade Review," said Mr. Topping, "in my opinion, was not radical. So far as the operations of the Republic Iron & Steel Company are concerned, we have been on a gradually shrinking scale since August. At the present time we have five blast furnaces idle out of a total of ten stacks. Our ore and coal mines, steel works and rolling mills, and various other factories, are working on approximately a fifty per cent. basis of capacity.

"Our payroll is, naturally, affected by the reduced volume of business, but our policy has been to divide the work among our men as best we could, with a view to maintaining our organization and minimizing the hardships of idleness. Here is the number of men employed in the last five months, as indicated by our payroll:

August	10,438 men
September	10,035 "
October	9,182 "
November	8,108 "
December	6,434 "

"From which it will be observed that we have, at the present discharged approximately 4,000 men on account of lack of employment. The immediate outlook for an increased volume of business, and better working time for labor, is more encouraging, although wage rates are on a declining scale. I am rather hopeful for the future, because conditions abroad are slowly improving and improvement there should be reflected here quickly."

LANE DEFIES SENATORS.

Wants Commerce Board to Investigate Rebate Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Senator Harry Lane, former Mayor of Portland, Ore., defied the members of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce today when they tried to get out of him the information on which he based allegations that the United States Steel Corporation had been granting rebates in violation of law. Mr. Lane took the ground that a much more satisfactory investigation of the matter could be conducted by the commission than by the committee, which, he said, would work behind closed doors.

"This committee can obtain the power to summon witnesses and compel them to testify," Mr. Lane was informed, and the Senator retorted: "I'd like to see this or any other committee get evidence out of me that I didn't want to give."

It was decided that no action should be taken on the resolution until Mr. Lane furnished additional information.

It is provided in Senator Lane's resolution that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall summon William H. Green of Creighton, Neb., to give testimony relative to the alleged rebates. Mr. Green furnished Mr. Lane with the information on which he based his resolution. Nothing is likely to be done by the committee unless Senator Lane produces Mr. Green and requests him to tell what he knows.

BOSTON JOB FOR BRANDEIS.

Curley Offers Him Auditorship—Mayor May Not Quit Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Congressman James H. Curley, who was elected Mayor of Boston last Tuesday, asked Louis D. Brandeis to-day to accept the office of auditor of that city. The Mayor-elect told Mr. Brandeis that the municipal auditing system of Boston was so antiquated, especially with regard to purchasing supplies, that he wanted a change as soon as possible. If Mr. Brandeis would undertake the work for six months or so in order to establish a new up-to-date system Mr. Curley would be very grateful, he said.

Mr. Brandeis said that he was so engrossed in his work for the Interstate Commerce Commission that he would be unable to undertake another job until November.

Mr. Curley will be sworn in as Mayor on Feb. 2. He has not decided whether he will resign his seat in Congress or hold both his legislative and municipal offices. He said to-night that he had been urged to remain in the House to fight the forthcoming immigration bill, which is similar to that vetoed by President Taft. His term in Congress will expire March 3, 1915.

HEARING ON IMMIGRATION.

President Will Listen to Arguments When Bill Comes Before Him.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—President Wilson will give a public hearing on the Immigration bill when it gets out of Congress and comes before him for signature.

Presidents Cleveland and Taft gave such hearings, and it was after one that Mr. Taft vetoed the last Immigration bill, proposing among other things a literacy test. Many provisions of the pending measure are being hotly contested.

PEER IN BANKER'S DIVORCE.

Earl Fitzwilliam Named by A. B. L. Melville in Suing Wife.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Notable names are mentioned in connection with a divorce case which will come before the courts this term.

Alexander Broderick Leslie Melville, Director of the Union Bank of London and of Smith's Bank, petitions for a divorce from his wife. Two co-respondents are cited, Earl Fitzwilliam and Thomas Comyn Platt.

The Earl is a Director of the National Bank and one of the richest men in England. He is aged 38 and married in 1896 Lady Maud Frederick Elizabeth Dundas, the beautiful daughter of the Marquess of Zetland. There are five children of the marriage.

Earl Fitzwilliam has led a romantic life. Among other things he chartered a steamer to seek lost Spanish galleons said to be lying off the coast of Patagonia.

VOTE FOR WILLIAMS AS CURRENCY HEAD

Committee Will Report His Nomination Favorably to the Senate To-day.

DENIES BANKERS' CHARGES

Heard by the Committee—Munsey Also Appears to Explain Trust Company Merger.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Committee on Banking and Currency ordered a favorable report to the Senate late this afternoon on the nomination of John Skelton Williams, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to be Controller of the Currency and ex-officio member of the Organization Committee and the Federal Reserve Board of the new banking system. While some opposition is expected, Democratic leaders hope to obtain Mr. Williams's confirmation in time for him to take part in the Western tour of the Oranization Committee.

Only seven out of twelve members of the committee were present when the vote was taken, and they bound themselves to secrecy as to details. This rather unusual practice might have been actuated by a desire to spare Mr. Williams the publication of the votes against him. It was suggested, however, that the same course would probably have been followed if the committee divided on strictly partisan lines, as both sides would dislike the impression to arise that party considerations were uppermost.

The only details that became known were that Chairman Owen, who left town yesterday, was counted in the affirmative, while the votes of Mr. Pomerene, a Democrat from Ohio, and Mr. Crawford, a Republican from South Dakota, both of whom were absent, were not counted.

It had been supposed that Mr. Weeks of Massachusetts and Mr. Bristow of Kansas would fight Mr. Williams's confirmation to the end. To-day, however, neither of these Senators would say whether he intended to carry his opposition to the floor of the Senate. It is expected, however, that while a filibuster will probably be avoided, enough will be said when the report is made tomorrow to call forth the objection that there is sufficient opposition to send the discussion over until Monday.

The committee was in session about three hours this afternoon, with Mr. Williams and Frank A. Munsey, President of the Munsey Trust Company, as the only witnesses. Mr. Munsey confined himself, he said afterward, to the substance of formal statements he had recently printed in his newspapers in regard to the taking over of the United States Trust Company of Washington by the Munsey Trust Company, another local institution.

Mr. Williams replied in some detail to criticism aimed at him yesterday. He denied generally and in detail charges made to particular Senators by certain bankers that as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury he had discriminated against particular banks in distributing the Government money deposited to facilitate the moving of crops.

Mr. Munsey left the committee shortly before Mr. Williams. Almost as soon as Mr. Williams left the room the vote was taken.

While Republican Senators have not yet decided how far they will carry their opposition to Mr. Williams, it is known that there is much hostility to him among them. It is expected that they will decide definitely to-morrow whether they will draw attention to what they consider Mr. Williams's disqualifications for the office by a prolonged fight in executive session, or will let the nomination come quickly to a vote, contenting themselves with voting against him.

HEAR CITY PLEAS FOR BANKS.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Men Before Committee—Off West To-day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Hearings on the rival claims of Eastern cities desiring to be chosen by the Federal Reserve Organization Board as locations for regional banks were concluded here today. The Organization Committee, Secretary McAdoo, and Secretary Houston will leave to-morrow for the West to conduct hearings.

Pittsburgh representatives urged that that city was located in the centre of a great industrial territory naturally doing a banking business with Pittsburgh. Representative Burke said it would be like compelling a man to swim up stream to locate the headquarters of the district in which Pittsburgh was to be located at either Cleveland or Cincinnati. The committee was told that Pittsburgh dealings with the East went "through" Philadelphia to New York, but did not stop there. For that reason it was suggested that New York, rather than Philadelphia, was Pittsburgh's second choice for the head of the district.

The district recommended to the committee, for which it was proposed that Pittsburgh should be the centre, consisted of the western part of New York west of Rochester, that part of Pennsylvania west of Altoona, western Maryland, and the whole of West Virginia and Ohio.

L. L. Rue, Chairman of the Philadelphia Clearing House, spoke for Philadelphia. He urged the selection of that city for a district to consist of southern New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and eastern Maryland. He suggested that all Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and West Virginia might be added. In addition to Philadelphia he urged the selection of nine other reserve bank cities, Boston, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, New Orleans, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver, and San Francisco.

Mr. Rue said State banks in his region would not join the system if headquarters were in Washington, because the trend of business was not toward Washington. For the same reason he objected to Pittsburgh and Baltimore.

The Philadelphia delegation strongly opposed a great bank in New York. Mr. Rue agreed with Secretary McAdoo's suggestion that foreigners would not look to the strength of the New York bank so much as to the healthy condition of the entire system.

Mr. Rue replied to the argument of the Richmond delegation that a district should be carved out of the States south of the Potomac, because directors of a reserve bank from Northern States would not understand the granting of credits on cotton, tobacco, and peanuts. He said that the branch banks would take care of the granting of credits, and that the headquarters should be located where its management would come in the closest touch with commerce.

Gov. Charles R. Miller of Deleware also advocated the selection of Philadelphia, as did B. H. Minch, on behalf of Southern New Jersey banks, and Montgomery Evans of Morristown, N. J.

Nearly 2,300 banks have made legal application for membership in the new Federal reserve system, and officials estimated that to-day's applications would swell the number to more than 3,000. Yesterday 640 banks applied.

A Better Situation

The best way to get a better situation is to fill the job you have so full that you bulge over. The next best thing is to advertise; tell the public frankly what you are good for; and the best newspaper for such an advertisement is The New York Times. See next to last page to-day.

HARROLD JOINS CENTURY.

Tenor to Open in "Romeo and Juliet" on a Long-Term Contract.

Orville Harrold, the young tenor who has been prominently identified with the Hammerstein operatic fortunes, last night signed a contract with Milton and Sargent Aborn whereby he becomes a leading tenor in the Century Opera House, opening there week after next in "Romeo and Juliet." His contract with the Aborns runs for the balance of this season and the whole of next season, with several options for the renewal of his services.

Gus Edwards, the song writer and vaudeville producer, said last night that he had a long-term contract for Harrold's services dating from the days when the tenor was "discovered" in one of his vaudeville acts, and that after he made sure that the tenor's leading position in the Hammerstein season at the new house was gone, owing to the postponement of the venture, he had arranged a vaudeville act for him for twenty weeks. At the end of this time the act was to have gone abroad, and this would have meant the abandonment of opera for Harrold in this country at least.

Then resort was had to the management of the Century, who agreed to engage the tenor. He has been engaged to sing many of the standard operas, and his repertoire also includes several of the new French operas, which he had studied for the Hammerstein season.

OUR SUBJECT

We know nothing of art, nor letters, of Chinese porcelains nor oil paintings, and whether Shakespeare or Bacon wrote Hamlet, it is all the same to us.

But when it comes to a question of putting up a building, we are as much of a connoisseur on stone and steel and the cost of same as another man is on old editions or antique art.

When you want a Corot, you consult a connoisseur—when you want a skyscraper, it is necessary to be just as exacting and particular.

IS A SPLENDID EXAMPLE

Contains Paintings Believed to be by Hogarth—Saved, Temporarily at Least, Under a New Act.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Sir James Thornhill's house, 75 Dean Street, London, has been saved by the intervention of the Office of Works, which publishes an official notice forbidding its destruction.

The action of the Commissioners of Works is taken under the authority vested in them by the Monuments act, passed in August last, but the present is the first instance in which it has been evoked for the purpose of preventing the destruction of a building of historic interest.

The act, among other things, is designed to prevent the exportation of historic relics to America or elsewhere. The Government can place any threatened monument of national importance under the protection of the Commissioners, but the preservation order ceases to be effective after eighteen months unless confirmed by Parliament.

The act, however, does not apply to any structure which is occupied as a dwelling house by any person other than a person employed as a caretaker thereof. It would seem, therefore, that the Commissioners would be unable to take action in the matter of 75 Dean Street if the house were occupied as a dwelling house other than by a caretaker.

While the preservation order is in force the monument must not be demolished or removed, nor any additions or alterations made without the consent of the Commissioners.

By Section XII. of the act the Commissioners are to prepare a list containing such monuments, the preservation of which is regarded as of national importance, and the owner of any monument included in the list must notify the Commissioners if he purposes to demolish or remove or structurally alter the same.

No. 75 Dean Street is one of the best preserved and most fascinating relics of Georgian London. The building played an important part in the social life of London in the middle of the eighteenth century. According to an old local tradition it was the residence of Sir James Thornhill, painter to George I. and father-in-law of Hogarth. This tradition is borne out by contingent pieces of evidence. The tavern across the road was the place where Queen Anne's sedan-chair carriers waited for their mistress while she sat to Thornhill. Moreover, in the course of structural alterations made to the house in 1848, a visiting card of Sir Isaac Newton was found behind a marble chimney piece and Sir Isaac is known to have sat to Thornhill.

Wall paintings in the staircase and hall, representing the Renaissance colonnades with men and women in the costume of the day looking down over the low balustrade, must be ranked among the most interesting decorative work of the period and suggest, in spite of much subsequent retouching and repainting, the brush of no less an artist than Hogarth himself, especially in the painting of the figures which are obviously portraits and may include members of the Thornhill family.

DANIA SAFE AT HAVANA.

Overdue Steamer Had a Stormy Passage, but Suffered No Mishap.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 16.—The Hamburg-American steamer Dania, which has been four days overdue, arrived this afternoon.

Much anxiety had been felt about the vessel, but her Captain reported that while she had encountered extremely stormy weather she had suffered no mishap.

HASTEN PEERESS'S DIVORCE

Move to End the Term of the Decree Nisi in Cowley Case.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—There is much comment in legal circles owing to the exceedingly unusual procedure to be adopted to-morrow in connection with a big society divorce case.

Countess Cowley obtained a decree nisi against Earl Cowley a few months ago. According to the practice, six months must elapse before the decree can be pronounced absolute; but a few days ago the Countess's lawyers asked for permission to apply for an early pronouncement to make the divorce absolute, a private reason being given which apparently satisfied the Chancellor, backed by sanction from higher quarters.

Accordingly, a special session of the court was fixed for hearing the application to-morrow before Sir Samuel Evans.

SETBACK FOR OLYMPIC MEET

Reichstag Budget Committee Refuses Government Grant of $50,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—The success of the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1916 has been imperiled by what it is hoped may turn out to have been only a chance vote in the Budget Committee of the Reichstag, which to-day rejected the proposal to make a Government grant of $50,000 in support of the games. The proposal was defeated by a combination of the Roman Catholic Centre, Socialist, and Polish members.

The Centre Deputies opposed it on the ground that non-Prussian States could hardly be expected to finance a "purely Berlin enterprise," and that the Reichstag had no right to vote Imperial funds for such a purpose. The Socialist representatives asserted that their party opposed the grant because the German Olympic Committee was favoring the "better class" athletic organizations and suppressing sporting clubs and Turn-Verein, made up of workingmen. One of the unuttered reasons for the Socialist opposition is that the party is hostile to the "Young Germany League," which is taking an active part in the Olympic preparations and, it is alleged, was brought into existence chiefly to make anti-Socialist propaganda among the youth of the country.

Newspapers of all parties to-night express the hope that the Reichstag will reverse the decision of the Budget Committee and not subject Germany to humiliation before the world of showing unwillingness to provide the financial sinews for the great Berlin festival.

GERMAN CABINET CHANGES?

Vossische Zeitung Hears That Admiral von Tirpitz Will Be Chancellor

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—To-night's Vossische Zeitung says that circumstantial reports are current in well-informed quarters that Germany is on the verge of a "naval Chancellorship" under Admiral von Tirpitz. It is asserted that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg has already tendered his resignation, and that the Foreign Secretary, von Jagow, and the latter's Under Secretary, Zimmermann, will leave office at the same time with him. Dr. Solf the Colonial Secretary, is mentioned as likely to be the new Foreign Secretary.

This story, which, of course, must be taken with the utmost reserve, alleges that von Bethmann-Hollweg will become Viceroy of Alsace-Lorraine in succession to Count von Wedel, who will leave office in consequence of the failure of the civil Government in the recent crisis in the conquered provinces.

The Vossische Zeitung adds that these statements come from such dependable authorities and in such categorical form that it cannot refrain from giving them immediate publicity, although it is unable to vouch for their accuracy.

The Kaiser had a conference yesterday with the Chancellor, the War Minister, the chiefs of the General Staff, and his Military Cabinet.

MORGAN BIDS HIGH FOR THE CUBAN LOAN

Firm's Offer of 94 for $10,000,000 Five Per Cents Provisionally Accepted.

GAVE UP INDEMNITY RIGHT

Bonds Mature in 35 Years with Option of Earlier Retirement at 105—Guaranteed by Customs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 16.—J. P. Morgan & Co. submitted to-day the highest bid for the $10,000,000 Cuban 5 per cent. loan, offering to take it at 94, and the Government has accepted provisionally. The nearest competitors of the New York bankers were Kleinworth Sons & Co., and Sperling & Co., of London, who made a joint bid of 92 2-5.

The Government states that the Morgan bid practically reaches 95¼, because the firm renounces its right to a 5 per cent. indemnity on $2,500,000 already loaned, which Cuba agreed to pay in the event that J. P. Morgan & Co. failed to obtain the present loan.

Five bidders appeared. They were Norman H. Davis, President of the Cuban Trust Company, representing J. P. Morgan & Co.; Eugene Klapp of New York, representing the Kleinworth-Sperling syndicate; Herrera Sotolongo, representing Pressprich, Smith & Beale of New York, who bid 90.05; Herrera Sotolongo, who bid 100 for one bond on his own account, and Herman Ostertag, representing German bankers whose names he declined to reveal, who bid 92¼.

The loan matures in thirty-five years, but there is a sinking fund provision under which amortization will begin by drawings on Jan. 1, 1920, at 102½ in the event that the number of bonds to be retired cannot be bought in at a lower figure in the open market. The Government has the option of advancing the date of amortization and of redeeming the loan in whole or in part at 105. Interest is payable semi-annually, and the loan is guaranteed by 10 per cent. of the customs collections.

The Kleinworth-Sperling syndicate offered to let the bonds run for either thirty or forty years, amortization to begin in ten years, if the period of maturity was thirty years, and in fifteen years if it was forty. The bonds were to be redeemable at par with accrued interest and guaranteed by the first 10 per cent. of the customs collected after the 15 per cent. guaranteed as security for the $35,000,000 loan of 1905 had been set aside.

Pressprich, Smith, and Beale simply made their bid of 90.05, leaving the details of redemption for future negotiation; but they reserved the right to furnish the money in gold, silver, or paper at their option.

The German bankers offered a maturity period of forty years without the custom guarantee.

It is understood that a number of houses did not bid because they concluded that J. P. Morgan & Co. were in a position to offer better terms by reason of the indemnity to which they were entitled in connection with the previous small loan. It was learned at the Palace this afternoon, however, that the firm notified President Menocal last week that they renounced their right to the indemnity to avert possible embarrassment to his Administration.

The Cuban officials are highly elated at the prices offered by the various bidders.

CURTISS TO APPEAL.

Believes His Patents Valid Despite Decision Won by Wright.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Glenn H. Curtiss was interviewed at Nice to-day in regard to the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which restrains, in favor of Orville Wright, the Herring-Curtiss Company from manufacturing and selling their machines, it being held that the Wright patents on the ailerons, or moving tips of the planes, have been violated.

Curtiss still expressed confidence in the validity of his patents and said he would carry the case to the Supreme Court. He added that the ailerons were not absolutely necessary, anyhow.

Asked whether, in the event of the final decision being adverse to him, he would remove his manufacturing plant to Europe, the aviator answered that as he already had disposed of his European rights, he would devote his energies to flying boats and engines.

His plans for flying across the Atlantic will not be affected by the Circuit Court's judgment, he says.

WOMEN IN HONOR LEGION.

Painter and Two Teachers Become Chevaliers—Loti Grand Officer.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Among the names of the new Chevaliers of the Legion of Honor is that of Miss Edith Williams, Professor of English at Frotenay School. Many popular French literary and dramatic personages have also been decorated, besides Sarah Bernhardt.

Pierre Loti is promoted to be a Grand Officer, and Armand de Caillavet, the dramatic author; Mme. Dermont Bréton, the painter, and Camille Erlanger, the composer, are among the officers.

Other Chevaliers are Mme. Vallet-Bisson, the painter; Louis Ganne and Reynaldo Hahn, composers, and Mlle. Trouffeau, schoolmistress.

SCOTT JOURNALS ON VIEW.

Pencil-Written Records of His Expedition in the British Museum.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The original journals kept by Sir Robert Scott during his south polar expedition have been deposited by Lady Scott in the British Museum. By order of the Trustees they will be placed on view to-morrow, the second anniversary of Scott's arrival at the south pole. They are to remain on view for an indefinite period, and the hope is expressed that they may eventually find a permanent home in the museum as the memorial of a great national achievement.

The journals are those printed in the first volume, recently published, of the narrative of the expedition, and are three small, pencil-written books which Scott carried with him to the pole and which were found on his dead body by the searching party in November, 1912.

At the end of the last of these is the "message to the public," which made so deep and lasting an impression on the heart of the nation.

Gentlemen—All the musical world knows that the Hardman is my choice, but everybody does not know the fact that the Hardman Concert Grand was used by me with the greatest success in my tour of the United States last year. So greatly pleased was I with it—its extraordinary volume, sweetness of tone and remarkable capability of remaining in tune under adverse conditions—as well as with the audiences' appreciation of the Piano, that I shall ask you to supply me with another Concert Grand for my coming tour, which will cover most of the large cities between New York and San Francisco. I feel sure that the success of the piano will be greater this year even than it was last.

With kindest wishes, believe me,
Yours very sincerely,

The Light of Western Stars
By Zane Grey

Again Zane Grey has written a thrilling Western novel. The color of the Southwest, the intoxicating wine of wide spaces, the dangers of border life, the lure of a woman's beauty—all this he gives in full measure in his new romance. More still is there: the making of a strong man by a woman's trust in him. Wearied with the artificiality of society, a New York girl buys a ranch, and her cowboys, old and young, look upon her as a queen. She is captured by guerrillas, but is rescued by the man whom later she risks her own life to save.

The White Sapphire
By Lee Foster Hartman

Would you let a guest play detective in your own home? Read "The White Sapphire" and see what comes of it. An absorbing mystery story along altogether unusual lines—with a real love story in it, too—and not a little fun, but no murder and bloodshed. There is a go about every phase of the tale, and a game some thousand of years old called "Go" which will pique your interest. Modern scientific discoveries play an astonishing part in the mystery.

The Way Home
By the Author of "The Inner Shrine."

What some clergymen have to say about this absorbing novel: "I want to say that I have seldom been more stirred than I have been by reading 'The Way Home.'"—Edgar De Witt Jones, Pastor, First Christian Church, Bloomington, Ill. "A strong production and very well worth reading. I have placed it on the table in our reading room for the benefit of our students."—Rev. A. B. Marshall, D.D., Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Omaha, Nebraska. "I believe it is one of the strong books of this time, and certainly one that has a message to the men and women of our generation."—D. Charles White, St. John's Rectory, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The Passionate Friends
By H. G. Wells

"A hopeful book, it is also a helpful book in that it crystallizes into definite phrases many thoughts that are moving, often in but a nebulous form, through the minds of intelligent men and women."—New York Times.

FITZSIMMONS SURE HE'S FIT TO BOX

Only Asks a Chance to Prove It, He Says at Hearing on Commission's Injunction.

DANGEROUS, SAYS O'NEIL

Athletic Commissioner Asserts Doctors Have Held Fitzsimmons Was Too Old to Re-enter the Ring.

Robert Fitzsimmons, ex-light heavy weight champion of the world, came to the Supreme Court again yesterday to hear the final argument on his application for an injunction to prevent the New York Athletic Commission from preventing him from entering the ring. His admirers cluttered up the corridors and followed him as he walked into the courtroom where Justice Seabury was sitting. "Lanky Bob" took a seat on one of the rear benches and listened eagerly while his counsel, George C. Norton, pleaded that he be allowed to earn his living at his trade of fighting.

Mr. Norton quoted from a decision of the late Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Dent against West Virginia to the effect that no State had a right to pass a law that would deprive any person of the right to follow a lawful occupation. He said that the Legislature had made boxing a lawful occupation in this State and that the Boxing Commission was mission, it was a misdemeanor for any acting in an unlawful manner when it prevented a boxer from following his trade.

Deputy Attorney General McQuade replied that until 1912, when the law was passed creating the Athletic Com- one to participate in a boxing contest. He said that if Fitzsimmons wanted to take his chances with Sheriffs and other peace officers he might still do some boxing.

Frank S. O'Neil, President of the Commission, then addressed the court. He said:

"There is no question that Robert Fitzsimmons was one of the most remarkable men who ever entered a boxing arena. But he is now 51 years old, and while that age may be regarded as fully capable in the field of mental activities, the commission is informed by medical men that it might be very dangerous for so old a man to re-enter the ring. Since Mr. Fitzsimmons lost the battle with Jeffreys in 1899 he has had twelve battles and has been defeated in five of them."

"I don't think that this court should go into these details," said Justice Seabury, "for interesting as they may be it is with me merely a question whether the commission had authority under the law to notify the Garden Athletic Club, as the licensee, that it should not let the plaintiff box. It is a novel point, and I shall take what papers you gentlemen have and shall be pleased to have additional briefs if you care to present them before I render a decision."

Fitzsimmons expressed his opinion of the situation to the crowd both before and after the argument. He said he was as good as any man now in the ring, and all he wanted was a chance to prove it.

"If a minister," he said, "who is beloved by his congregation, reaches the old age of 51 years, I suppose the State has a right to step in with a law and prevent him from preaching."

This opinion was cheered. It seemed to cover the whole situation in the minds of the men who admired the ex-champion.

COLUMBIA GIVES PLAYS.

Three One-Act Dramas by Graduates Acted at Century Lyceum.

The Columbia University Dramatic Association presented three plays at the Century Lyceum Theatre last night before a large audience of Columbia students and their friends. The plays were one-act dramas by Columbia graduates.

The first of the three, "Hearts Enduring," was written by Prof. John Erskine of the Department of English, a member of the class of 1900. The second play, "Noblesse Oblige," was written by William C. De Mille and George Middleton was the author of the other play "Embers." The student actors were coached in each of the plays by Mr. De Mille.

The proceeds of the entertainment will go to a fund which will be used to build a theatre for the university dramatic organization.

NEW YORK SYMPHONY.

Mozart, Franck, and Saint-Saens Heard—Fritz Kreisler Soloist.

The New York Symphony Society gave one of its most successful concerts yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, one of its most successful in performance as well as in the choice of music and of the solo performer. Mozart had an influential place on the programme. His G minor symphony stood at the beginning; and Mr. Damrosch's performance of it was instinct with life, vivacity, and euphony. Such music, existing for itself solely as music, as the expression of ideas purely musical, without "arrière pensée" of "meaning," literary, poetical, pictorial, symbolical, or any other, seemed to possess all its old magic, to have lost none of it, and gave great pleasure.

Mr. Fritz Kreisler was the soloist, and added more Mozart, the violin concerto in D major. It is a composition, like the symphony, of unfaded charm, full of the gayety and gracious, urbane spirit of the composer. In the first and last movements he derives the slow movement from a richer emotional experience, but deals in no problems.

Mr. Kreisler played it with delightful sympathy and understanding, in quite the right feeling. In each movement he played a short cadenza which he may be suspected of contributing out of his own knowledge and skill. Mr. Kreisler aroused much enthusiasm. He played again Saint-Saens's "Rondo Capriccioso," which the violinists have all united in offering to this public this season—an excellent, ingenious, skillful piece if not heard too often. Mr. Kreisler played it with the right sort of elegance and brio—perhaps not always with absolute technical finish and precision, but in a most engaging style.

The remaining number of the programme was Gabriel Pierné's arrangement for orchestra of César Franck's noble and beautiful "Prelude, Choral and Fugue" for piano solo. Pierné, pupil of the composer, has made an effective and imposing orchestral piece out of it, with ingenious use of orchestral timbres for many passages. Some may wonder whether, after all, the piece is really more effective heard thus than when played by a pianist who wholly understands and masters it. For it is, after all, a true piano piece; Franck felt it for the piano.

Reading by Miss Mannheimer.

Miss Mannheimer made her New York début as a dramatic reader at the Hotel Plaza yesterday before a large audience. She is well known throughout the West for her readings in English and German. Yesterday she read Percy Mackaye's play, "To-morrow." Next Friday she will read "The Next Religion," by Israel Zangwill, and on the following Friday plays by Sudermann, Cosmo Hamilton, and Arnold Bennett.

Mrs. Cowles's Subscription Dance.

A subscription dance, organized by Mrs. Russell A. Cowles of 12 East Ninety-second Street, was given last night at the St. Regis. The marble ballroom and the Louis XVI. suite were used. General dancing began at 9:30, and at midnight a seated supper was served in the oak dining room for 125 covers. Among the members of the Reception Committee were Mrs. H. B. Slayback, Mrs. John Farson, Mrs. Louis Ehret, Mrs. George Pyncheon, Mrs. H. F. Thompson, Mrs. Reed Fell, Mrs. George H. Curtis, Mrs. W. De Forest Wright, Mrs. William H. Hays, Mrs. F. F. Armstrong, Mrs. A. D. Mittendorf, Mrs. E. F. Schenck, Mrs. Charles Smithers, and Mrs. Cowles.

WOULD STOP WOODS PLAY.

Schomer Says "Yellow Ticket" Was Taken from His "Yellow Passport."

The twice postponed production of Michael Morton's drama, "The Yellow Ticket," is now scheduled for its New York production by A. H. Woods at the Eltinge Theatre next Tuesday night. In the meantime Jacob P. Adler, the manager of Adler's Dewey Theatre, last night produced in Yiddish "The Yellow Passport," a play by Abraham S. Schomer, an east side attorney, who is one of the authors of the play "To-day," now running at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

Both plays deal with the same subject, and both Woods and Adler have notified each other through their attorneys that the rival productions must not take place. "The Yellow Passport," however, played to a packed house last night at the Dewey Theatre.

Last night's performaance was not the first for the Schomer drama. It was produced on the east side three years ago under the title of "At Sea," and the present production is in the nature of a revival.

Both plays tell the story of a young Russian Jewess who comes into the possession of a yellow ticket issued by the Russian police. This ticket is given to fallen women, and the girl in the play, who has the police passport, although a good woman, is hounded out of every position until an American saves her from final disgrace.

Mr. Schomer was on hand to witness the performance of his play at the Dewey last night. He is confident that the new Morton drama was taken from his own play, and is also confident that he will be able to prevent Wood's production of the piece at the Eltinge Theatre next Tuesday night.

Neither A. H. Woods nor Michael Morton could be seen last night, but friends of the manager and author said that the Morton play was an entirely original drama, and that there would be no difficulty in proving that fact.

Williamson Company of Australia through their New York agents, Sanger & Jordon, and Arthur Hammerstein, owner of "High Jinks," now playing at the Casino, for the Australian rights of this musical production. The opening is to take place at Her Majesty's Theatre, Melbourne, not later than June 1. Hugh Ward, general manager of the Williamson Company, saw the performance before sailing on the Lusitania on Tuesday.

TITANIC UNSEAWORTHY?

British Survivor Will Sue on a Novel Theory of the Wreck.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The plea that the Titanic was unseaworthy when she left England in April, 1912, on her maiden trip is to be advanced in a suit for damages brought against the White Star Line by Thomas Whiteley, one of the surviving stewards. The plaintiff sustained a fracture of the right leg in the wreck.

This will be the first time that a suggestion in regard to the unseaworthiness of the Titanic has been raised in the courts.

The hearing has been provisionally set for March 1.

Horace Blake

By MRS. WILFRID WARD
Author of "Great Possessions"
$1.35 net. By mail, $1.50.

"Mrs. Wilfrid Ward has done much excellent work in the past, but she has done nothing to come within measurable distance of this remarkably fine book—a book quite off the ordinary lines, interesting from the first page to the last, founded upon a psychological study of exceptional power. It is a very common thing in fiction to find ourselves presented to a "great character," but, as a rule, we are obliged to accept the creator's word for his greatness. Mrs. Ward has contrived to make Horace Blake really and indeed great—great in intellect, great in evil, and great, finally, in good. He holds the reader captive just as he is described as holding his world captive."—The World, London.

Knowledge and Life

Translated by W. Tudor Jones, Author of "An Interpretation of Rudolf Eucken's Philosophy."

Professor Eucken's plea in this new volume of the Crown Theological Library is that the only knowledge which may be termed genuine springs from the demands and aspirations of man's own deepest life. The union of such Knowledge and Life will create a new humanity and a new world.

The book forms an excellent epitome of the author's views concerning the need of a Metaphysic of Life.

Miss Anne Rhodes Tells the Woman's Forum of New York Firm's Secret.

MISS HAY SCORES AUBURN

Says Women Inmates Should Be Moved to Valatie on Farm Colony.

"I should like to see our prisons burned up," said Miss Mary Garrett Hay of the New York State Prison Reform Association, speaking of Sing Sing and Auburn at the meeting of the Woman's Forum at the Waldorf yesterday morning.

"Hear! Hear!" cried ex-Commodore Waddam of the Commission on New Prisons, who occupied a seat in the front row.

"I am interested in women and I would like to see the women's prison removed from Auburn," said Miss Hay. "It is under the control of the men's part of the prison and it does not work for the benefit of the men. I believe in the farm colonies. I want to get the women out in the pure air and the fields, where they can see something of life.

"Why can't the women's prison be moved out to Valatie, the State Farm for Women. There, an hour's ride from Albany, we have a place already started, two cottages, an administration building, and a warden who draws a salary of $3,500 a year, and not a prisoner. We women are brought up to believe in economy. Is that economy?"

"No," chorused the women.

Ex-Commodore Waddam said he had sent in his resignation, as he was told that the commission was called "Gov. Sulzer's Commission" and the Legislature would not grant it any money. Gov. Glynn did not accept the resignation.

In connection with the exploitation of prisoners for industrial firms, Miss Anne Rhodes told of one firm she had investigated.

"It took me three weeks to look it up," said Miss Rhodes, "and I can't give you the names, because they are to be brought out later. It is a New York firm of shirtmakers which makes the best class of men's shirts for the trade and gets the best prices. It has an ideal factory downtown, where its work is done under ideal conditions by well-paid workmen. But when a lot of garments are cut by its high-price cutter samples are sent on to a Rhode Island prison and to a prison in an adjoining State.

"There the firm has high-salaried Superintendents, who are permitted to live in the prison, though as outsiders. They superintend the work, which forms the greater part of the output of the New York house. It is done by the prisoners at a great profit to the firm.

"This firm nominally has no connection with the prison work. There are two or three firms on paper in whose names the work is done. Ask the firm to show you where its shirts are made, and it will take you through its New York factory with great pleasure, and you will never know, unless you have a chance to get on the under side of it, as I have, that the work was done by prisoners. This is good work for the prisoners, gives them a good trade, but it should be done for the benefit of their families."

HEAR GARMENT DISPUTE.

Federal Commission Listens to Hourwich's Defense.

A bitter attack on the protocol, which has for three and a half years kept peace in the garment industry, was made at the hearing of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations in the City Hall yesterday by Dr. Isaac M. Hourwich, the chief clerk of the Cloakmakers' Union, whose dismissal has been demanded by the Cloak Manufacturers' Association and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union under threat of withdrawing from the protocol. Dr. Hourwich spoke for two hours at the afternoon session of the commission, at which Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was Chairman.

Dr. Hourwich's dismissal was demanded on the ground that he was temperamentally unfit for the position, which called for a man of conciliatory mind.

"I want to make it perfectly clear that I am not a conciliator," he said. "My office merely called for my services when we decided to go to war. My deputies were the mediators, the conciliators. Between April, 1911, and Dec. 31 there were before the Board of Grievances 166 cases, while since I have taken office there have been only 18 cases, an average of one and a half a month. In view of the charges that I am a pugnacious person and the cause of all the trouble, I think that is a pretty good record."

Julius Henry Cohen, attorney for the Manufacturers' Association, denied all the charges made by Dr. Hourwich, whom he alluded to constantly as a "temperamental individualist."

"The protocol is not perfect," he said, "but when you have a man who openly and publicly attacks the manufacturers, the union leaders, and the Board of Arbitration, of course it does not work."

At the morning session of the commission Morris Silverman of the Executive Board of the Manufacturers's Association predicted the failure of the protocol if the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union withdrew as guarantor of the agreement.

The commission will conclude its hearings this morning.

LANKFORD DEATH ACCIDENT

Coroner Decides Railroad Official Turned on the Gas by Mistake.

An inquest into the death of Richard D. Lankford, Vice President and Secretary of the Southern Railway Company, who was found asphyxiated in his apartments, in the Osmond, 1,142 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, on Wednesday, will be held on Tuesday morning.

Coroner Wagner, after a preliminary inquiry into the circumstances of the death of the railroad official, said yesterday that he turned on the gas in his bathroom accidentally. The Coroner was unable to find any motive for suicide. In Mr. Lankford's apartments yesterday two round-trip tickets to Atlantic City were found, where he and his fiancée, Miss Helen Patterson, were going on a honeymoon trip after their marriage, which was to take place today.

CLUB LIFTS BAN ON TIPS.

Illinois Athletic Makes the Gratuity a Part of the Check.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Tips for waiters are a necessity, according to the Board of Governors of the Illinois Athletic Club.

For some time the club had a strict rule that when a member was caught tipping a waiter he should be reprimanded and the waiter discharged. On a third offense a member was suspended.

In future 5 cents will be added to all food checks at the club. This is to be done in the interest of better service.

GEORGE RECTOR WINS SUIT.

May Use the Name "Rector's," Appellate Division Decides.

George Rector, who now has a restaurant at the north end of Times Square, may continue to use the name Rector's, the Appellate Division ruled yesterday. The court dismissed the appeal of the 1,510 Broadway Corporation (the Hotel Claridge) from a Supreme Court order, which denied it an injunction against the use of the name Rector's by a rival restaurant. The Hotel Claridge management claimed exclusive rights to the use of the name Rector's in Times Square under a purchase of the old Charles Rector business at a bankruptcy sale.

George Rector successfully pleaded that the Claridge management had forfeited any right to the name by discontinuing its use in a public statement in which they asserted the name had come into disfavor through a play called "The Girl from Rector's."

RESCUES 8 MEN AT SEA.

Lusitania Found Schooner Mayflower Helpless and Fired Her.

Capt. David Dow of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed at 1 A. M. Wednesday for Liverpool with nearly 500 first-cabin passengers, sent a wireless dispatch to the agents of the line here yesterday saying that eight men had been rescued from the disabled schooner Mayflower 1,800 miles from New York. The message, which was sent via Cape Race, read:

"At 6:30 A. M., Greenwich mean time, latitude 43-12 and longitude 50-30 west, rescued crew of Nova Scotia schooner Mayflower with eight men. Abandoned and fired."

According to the shipping register, the Mayflower, which was a two-masted schooner of 132 tons, sailed from Perth Amboy, N. J., on Dec. 30, loaded with coal for St. John, N. B., and on Jan. 10 she was reported at Boothbay, on the coast of Maine, about seventy-five miles above Portland. She had been driven out of her course by the strong headwinds and forced to take shelter, it was reported.

Of the Make-Room Underprice Sale of Pianos and Player-Pianos

THESE SALES ARE A FINE SATISFACTION because the instruments are so GOOD as well as the prices low.

They are so good that we can warrant them—every one of them—in excellent playable condition.

We make very low prices because we seriously need the room which these instruments occupy. They come as a sort of by-product of our Piano business—from homes where one of our regular instruments is desired and where two instruments could not be used to advantage.

Before we sell any of them we put them through our repair shops and have all necessary work skilfully done, so that we can guarantee them.

Today will be the Sale's last day, and for today we have a number of instruments which our repair shops have just finished and which have not before been on sale.

Some of them are included in the following list:

FEDERAL MAKES BIG OFFER TO TY COBB

President Gilmore Says He Will Give Noted Player $15,000 a Year for Five Years.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Ty Cobb was offered a five-year contract at $15,000 a year in a telegram sent to him at Augusta, Ga., to-day by President Gilmore of the Federal League.

The telegram was written and given to a messenger in the presence of newspaper men after Gilmore had said that he had learned that Cobb had not yet signed with Detroit for the 1914 season.

Gilmore's telegram offers to pay Cobb his first year's salary in advance and to put the remaining $60,000 in escrow.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 16.—Ty Cobb was reported over the long distance phone to-day at Royston, Ga., his boyhood home, where he is on a hunting trip, and was informed of the press dispatch to the effect that he had been made a very attractive offer by the Federal League. He said that he did not care to make any statement until he returned to the city, which will be next Tuesday or Wednesday. He lives here with his family throughout the Winter and is only away for a few days at a time. Although he only left here yesterday there were four telegrams received for him to-day, and he has instructed that they be forwarded to Royston. The contents of the messages are, of course, unknown.

Cobb didn't even intimate to-night as to what kind of a statement he would issue on his return.

EBBETS SEES TINKER

But Joe Tells Brooklyn President He Is Through with National League

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Joe Tinker formally renounced the National League to-day when during a special meeting with President Ebbets of Brooklyn the Federal Manager said he had joined the independent league for better or worse. Ebbets, who has been traveling through the West rounding up his players, came here to confer with Joe, but the meeting lasted only a few minutes. Tinker quickly told his would-be boss that he couldn't talk with him as he was under contract to the Federal League. During the brief conversation Ebbets laughingly alluded to a card he had mailed to Tinker from Porto Rico before he learned of Joe's defection. This contained "Best wishes for a Happy New Year."

Despite Tinker's firm stand, Ebbets still contends Joe will play with Brooklyn. Immediately after the conference Ebbets hunted up his old pal, Charles W. Murphy, and the two hid themselves until late to-night, when Ebbets gave out a long statement. The substance of this was that the Dodgers consider Tinker their property and are holding $10,000 for him until he signs with them. "The deal with Cincinnati stands as it was made last month," said Ebbets, "and the bonus is being held for Tinker. I will not take official notice of his dealings with the Federal League until reporting time. If Tinker then fails to appear I will take steps to protect myself."

Ebbets said he would be in town for several days. He added that Manager Robinson had gone East.

Marsans to Play with Reds Again.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 16.—A telegram was received here last night by August Herrmann from Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati team, who is now in Havana, that he had signed up Armando Marsans, the hard hitting outfielder, for the 1914 season. Marsans was one of the local players with whom the Federal League had opened negotiations. Bancroft also said that he believed that he could get Romanasch, the sensational Cuban fielder, to play with the Reds this year. Romanasch is supposed to have signed with Brooklyn.

Federals Sign Three More Players.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 16.—William McKechnie, formerly of the Pittsburgh Nationals, and Albert Scheer, who was sent to the Providence International League Club by the Boston Nationals last season, signed to play with the Indianapolis Federal League Club to-day. McKechnie will play third base and Scheer will play in the outfield. The terms of the contracts were not given out. Jack Onslow, catcher of the Detroit Americans, also signed a contract to play the 1914 season with the Indianapolis Federal League Club.

Gessler to Manage Pittsburgh Feds.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Jan. 16.—Robert ("Brownie") Gessler, former Brooklyn and Washington outfielder, to-day signed a contract to manage the Pittsburgh team of the Federal League, according to announcement made to-night by Secretary William McCullough, in the absence of President John B. Barbour. The terms of the contract were not made known.

Detroit Grand Stand Seat 75 Cents.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 16.—The management of the Detroit Baseball Club to-day announced a reduction from $1 to 75 cents in the price of grandstand seats at the local park. Only about 200 seats hereafter will be held at the $1 rate. At the same time the price of box seats was raised from $1 to $1.25.

NO HOLDOUTS IN LEAGUE.

Ball Players Will Reach Highest Mark in Salaries This Year.

For the first time in a number of years there will be no holdouts in the major leagues this season. Since the Federal League has made such a big noise between seasons the baseball player has become a luxury. The cost of players has soared far above the high cost of living. This season is the heyday of the baseball performer. He can command just about what he wants—and get it.

Major league club owners, while they pretend to laugh at the Federal League, have never been so anxious to sign their players as this year. And for the first time in the history of baseball the majority of the players will sign for periods of more than one year. This was not possible in the past, because the club owners would not make the salary terms attractive enough for many of the players to sign for more than one season.

It is all different since the Federal League appeared on the baseball horizon with real money. All the club owners are offering more attractive terms to their players than ever before. A prominent baseball man stated yesterday that it was safe to say that major league players would receive higher salaries this year than ever before in the history of the game. For fear that a player might be dissatisfied with his contract and jump to the Federal League, the club owners have made the player's contract this season unusually attractive, and, judging from the way that the players are falling in line, the threatened raid on the majors by the outlaws will prove to be a fizzle. So far they have signed only one or two men of more than ordinary baseball ability.

President Harry Hempstead of the Giants stated yesterday that he did not expect that there would be a single desertion from the New York Club. He said that as far as he was able to ascertain all of his players were satisfied with their contracts and that the signing and returning of the documents was simply a matter of their own convenience. The club is not worrying.

Mr. Hempstead said that he had already received assurances from several of his players who were spending the Winter in California that their contracts would be mailed to the Giants' offices within a few days. This includes Mathewson, Meyers, Tesreau, Snodgrass, and Shafer.

Another instance of where the players are perfectly satisfied with their contracts is the Brooklyn Club. All the Dodgers have swung into line, and President Ebbets says there will not be a single holdout with his club, with the exception of Tinker. It is the same with the Yankees. Although some of the players have been approached, they have been offered such liberal terms by the management that all the players will be in line within a week or two.

While President Ebbets is in the West he will undoubtedly complete the famous Brooklyn-Cincinnati deal and bring home with him the contract of Infielder Dick Egan. If Tinker sticks to his course and plays with the Federal League, Manager Robinson will groom Egan for shortstop, although he will take several youngsters South with him and give them a tryout in the short-field position.

President William F. Baker of the Philadelphia Club returned from Philadelphia yesterday, where he has been looking after the business of his club. He is not alarmed at the outlook, and believes that Knabe is the only player his club will lose to the Federal League. While in Philadelphia Mr. Baker had a talk with President John K. Tener of the National League.

The battery candidates of the Harvard baseball team will begin work in the cage at Cambridge on Feb. 1 under the direction of the coach, Dr. E. B. Nichols. The fielding candidates will not be called out until March 1. One of the infield candidates is Charles Brickley, the football player.

The Federal League can't even persuade the umpires to jump organized ball, with all their premises of outlaw gold. "Brick" Owens, who had the misfortune to get "in bad" in the National League last season, has signed a contract with President Barrow to umpire in the International League next season. Owens had an offer from the Federals, but turned it down.

The famous pitcher of the Portland (Ore.) Club last season, Serah Z. Hagerman, has announced that he has not signed with the Federal League and never expected to. Hagerman has been purchased by the Cleveland Club, and states that he will sign a contract just as soon as he receives one. Baseball scouts say that Hagerman will be a sensation in the American League next season.

From Buffalo and Toronto come the reports that the Federal League has been unable to gain enough financial backing to finance Federal League clubs in those cities and that the franchises will soon be transferred to Cincinnati and Washington.

Bauman Spurns Federal League.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Charles Bauman, infielder of the Detroit American League club, announced to-night that he had signed a one-year contract to play with Detroit this season. Bauman was to have held a conference with Federal League officials here yesterday, but instead went to Detroit, where he signed his contract.

Sallee Signs with Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16.—Harry Sallee, pitcher, to-day sent his signed contract for the 1914 season to the National League Club of this city.

GUNBOAT SMITH TO WED.

Fiancee, Only 17, Refused License Until Guardian Is Appointed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Edward I. (Gunboat) Smith, the heavyweight pugilist, and Miss Helen Remley of New York were refused a license to marry here to-day. When the clerk of the Marriage License Bureau discovered that Miss Remley was but 17 years old he informed the couple a guardian must be appointed for the girl and formal consent given to marriage.

Smith and Miss Remley said that they would take immediate steps to have a guardian appointed, and would return to-morrow for the license.

The Illinois law requires girls under 18 years of age to show the license clerk the written consent to the marriage of her parents or guardian. Miss Remley is an orphan. Smith was referred to the public guardian, who is usually appointed in cases similar to this.

J. McLaughlin of the Knights of St. Antony would allot the marks for the games of this fast growing organization for the coming season. Other officers chosen were: The Rev. F. J. Sullivan, President; the Rev. J. T. Jordan, First Vice President; J. J. Holwell, Second Vice President; J. M. Connelly, Secretary-Treasurer. The Registration Committee elected are as follows: J. J. Newman Defeats Hackensack H. S.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 16.—The Newman School hockey team defeated the Hackensack High School team here this afternoon by the score of 3 to 0. The local players excelled in team play and several times during the contest had the puck dangerously near their opponents' net, but the excellent guard work of Schlick for the Newman School was chiefly the cause of Hackensack's failure to score. Dollard and Webb played a splendid game for Newman School, the former sending the puck through the Hackensack net twice, while Webb tallied the other goal. The summary:

'MONTE' WATERBURY NEW POLO CAPTAIN

Member of International Champions to Lead American Team at Westbury.

James M. (Monte) Waterbury, Jr., will be the Captain of the American polo team which will defend the International Cup now held by the Meadow Brook four, which has been in possession of the United States players since the Big Four defeated England for the world's championships at Hurlingham in 1909, and which will again be played for at Westbury, beginning June 9 next.

This announcement was made yesterday by the Polo Association, the Executive Committee of which, comprised of H. L. Herbert, Chairman; William A. Hazard, Secretary; August Belmont, John C. Groome, Philadelphia; Joshua Crane, Boston; Charles Wheeler, Philadelphia, and Alexander T. Primm, Jr., St. Louis, met at the Whitehall Club, and aside from appointing the new leader, passed upon many new handicaps which will become operative immediately.

Harry Payne Whitney, who is now abroad, and R. L. Agassiz, the other members of the committee, are said to be in perfect accord with the nomination of Mr. Waterbury, and among polo players it is stated that general satisfaction is sure to ensue with the selection.

Ever since the announcement by Mr. Whitney, who captained the American teams throughout their series of victories, that he was forced to give over his leadership, there has been much speculation as to who the next Captain would be, with rumor first making one and then another of the world-famed Big Four the possessor of the title.

Mr. Waterbury has been identified with international polo as a player since the third match for the trophy was played in Hurlingham in 1902, where the Americans were defeated.

It was not until 1909 that Mr. Whitney got together what has since then been called the Big Four for a successful invasion, with the result that the team comprised of Lawrence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., Harry Payne Whitney, and Devereaux Milburn won in stright games, and have not since relinquished their hold on the world's title.

Practice of the candidates for places on the American team will begin April 1 at the Georgian Court fields at Lakewood, for which the ponies will again be prepared by Larry Fitzpatrick, who brought the mounts of previous years to the mark in winning condition.

Some marked changes were made in the ratings of players all over the country, with one of the surprises being the dropping of R. L. Agassiz of the Myopia Hunt Club, who played throughout the 1902 series at Hurlingham, from eight goals to six. C. C. Rumsey and Morgan Belmont of Meadow Brook were advanced from five to six and three to four, respectively, while C. Perry Beadleston of Rumson was sent up the scale from five to six. Other marked improvements were noticed in the handicapping of two players of the Hawaiian Polo Club, H. K. Castle, and W. F. Dillingham, who are advanced from three goals to five goals. The other changes are as follows:

Army Polo and Accessory Clubs.—Fifth Cavalry—Lieut. J. G. Quekemeyer, 1 to 2. Sixth Cavalry—Lieut. J. P. Aleshire, 3 to 1; Lieut. A. H. Wilson, 1 to 2. Seventh Cavalry—Lieut. Gordon Johnston, 1 to 2. AMATEUR HORSEMEN RIDE.

Early Risers' Riding Club Holds Exhibition and Dance.

Setting a high standard for menage and academy mounted evolutions, the Early Risers' Riding Club held its annual equestrian exhibition, luncheon, and dance last night at Durland's Riding Academy, Sixty-sixth Street and Central Park West. Nearly fifty members of the club took part in the riding exercises, which were under the command of Charles T. Krauss. Perfection of alignment and precise regulation of pace and movement marked the work of the riders, all of whom were men. Many difficult and novel movements were executed, and in changing the riders showed excellent control of their mounts.

After the parade in single file around the tanbark, Ring Commander Krauss formed the riders into sections of four and changed the pace frequently from walk to trot and gallop, and then reversing the order of gait. Two circles were then formed at the extreme ends of the academy, and this was followed by four circles cutting the figure "8," each separate and distinct. The riders then continued in single file and crossed each other alternately in the centre of the ring. This was followed by similar movements in double file and fours. Many of the movements were executed at a gallop, and the details were carried out with an exactness and precision that won for the riders frequent outbursts of applause from their families and guests who filled the large reception rooms. The exhibition closed with the class proceeding down the centre of the academy twenty abreast. They were halted in front of the spectators whom they saluted and were then dismissed.

Following the exhibition about one hundred members and their friends sat down to a collation in the rooms of the New York Driving Club, which was followed by a dance. Among those who took part in the ride and dance were: Major Lewis M. Thiery and Richard E. Sause, who led the exhibition; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Runkle, O. J. Gude, Fred Hausmann, Mr. and Mrs. August V. Lambert, Capt. and Mrs. John Kroder, Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Ladinski, Carl Rosenberger, A. H. Sedenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Duffy, Julius Jenowitz, L. A. K. FEW POINTS FOR C. C. N. Y.

Yale Swimmers Win Every Event in Dual Contests.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—Yale captured every first place and all except one of the second places in the opening swimming meet of the season held here to-night with the College of the City of New York, winning by 46 to 7 points. Yale's relay team led all the way, and won by 20 yards. McAleenan and McGregor displayed almost intercollegiate form in the fancy diving, Marr in the 100 yards, Schlaet in the 50 yards, Gould in the 220 yards, and Keyes in the plunge proved easy Eli winners. Mayer's time of 1 minute 45 seconds in the 600-foot relay event captured the individual prize. The summary:

600-Foot Relay.—Won by Yale. Time—1:45. Winning team—Mayer, Summers, Marr, and Schlaet.

Fancy Diving.—Won by McGregor, Yale, 58 points; second, McAleenan, Yale, 56 2-3 points; third, Berman, New York, 48½ points.

Dartmouth Football Schedule.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 16.—Three new opponents—University of Pennsylvania, Syracuse University, and Tufts College—appear on the Dartmouth football schedule announced to-night for next season by the Athletic Council. The Pennsylvania game will be played in Philadelphia Nov. 14. Next year Pennsylvania and Dartmouth will play again either at Boston or Hanover, as the Dartmouth officials shall decide. The Syracuse game, to be played on Nov. 21, as the last game of the Green season, may be staged in Boston, the place having been left open until later. The schedule follows:

Sept. 26, Massachusetts Agricultural College, at Hanover; Oct. 3, Norwich University, at Hanover; Oct. 10, Williams, at Williamstown; Oct. 17, University of Vermont, at Hanover; Oct. 24, Princeton, at Princeton; Oct. 31, Amherst, at Amherst; Nov. 7, Tufts, at Hanover; Nov. 14, University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; Nov. 21, Syracuse, (place not determined.)

N. Y. U. to Play Easier Elevens.

The New York University football schedule, as given out yesterday by Theodore Von Glahn, the manager, marks a new policy in New York University athletics. Instead of games with the Navy and Princeton, there appear for the coming season the names of smaller institutions, with which the students of the university feel that they have a good fighting chance. The policy of playing games only with institutions in the Violet's class will probably be kept up for several years. The schedule:

Oct. 3, St. Stephen's College, at New York; Oct. 10, Hamilton, at Clinton; Oct. 17, Haverford, at New York; Oct. 24, R. P. I., at home; Nov. 3, (Election Day,) Trinity, at New York; Nov. 7, Union, at Schenectady; Nov. 14, Stevens, at Hoboken; Nov. 21, Wesleyan, at New York; Nov. 26, (Thanksgiving,) Rutgers, at New York.

GREEK ATHLETE'S WORLD'S RECORD

George Isambiras, from Sparta, Puts Up 104-Pound Bell 23 Times.

George Isambiras, a youth from Sparta, broke the world's record last night for pushing up from the shoulder a 104-pound dumbell, when he hoisted the massive weight the unprecedented number of 23 times, displacing the best previous performance, his own, of 18 times.

This great feat was accomplished at the annual indoor games of the Greek-American A. C., 4,000 followers of which held forth at the armory of the Seventy-first Regiment. From end to end the enthusiasm attested to the devotion of this ancient sport-loving race, with the result that any time a member of the organization, which is one of the strongest in the city, showed in the van pandemonium reigned.

Everything in the track and field line with the exception of a Marathon was staged, with the longest race at three miles in which Willie Kramer, Long Island A. C. was at the post of honor.

Chief interest was manifest during the early part of the session in the weight lifting efforts of the half dozen youthful giants, among whom was Michael Dorizas, the holder of the world's intercollegiate strength test record, and who is now a student at Pennsylvania. Dorizas failed to measure up to his opponents in ability, and while he overshadowed them all in physique three of his antagonists rather easily beat him at the dumbbell game when he just managed to get the bell up eight times.

Isambiras shoved the bell up twenty-three times in his initial effort, and did not have to try again, as the best mark of the second and third men, L. Bugukas, Greek American A. C., and William B. Schaefer, New York Turn Verein, netted them 14 times and 13 times respectively. The winner scales but 160 pounds, and is wonderfully "put up." In the Pan-Hellenic sports in Athens in 1909 he won the weight-lifting event, being but 20 years of age at the time.

In the three-mile handicap John Eke, now representing the Irish-American A. C., ran one of the best races of his career, and broke the tape from his handicap of 175 yards by a margin of 100 yards from a clubmate, Tom Bardon, who was conceding him twenty-five yards. Russell Springsteen of the Yonkers Y. M. C. A. was third from a like mark, with the winner's time 14:41. Kramer made but little impression on the winner.

The two-mile bicycle race added to the trophy collection of the new cycling star, Alfred O. Lake, New York A. C., who rode rings around the rest of the field from scratch in the exceptionally fast time of 4:56.

The one-mile interclub relay handicap produced a stirring race, with Loughlin Lyceum the winner from the fifty-seven-yard mark. West Side Y. M. C. A. from the two yards less was second, and the Irish-American A. C. four third in 3:31.

Hal Helland, the scratch man in the shortest race of the series, sixty-five yards, was put out in his first trial. Had he been in his best form, however, he would have been right up on his toes to look the placed men in the final in the eye, as Irving Bruns, thirteen feet, J. L. Kirby, eight feet, and M. J. Laley, ten feet, were almost aligned at the end, in the record time of seven seconds.

One of the most wonderful fields recently seen in point of numbers was that which made up the one-mile race for previous non-winners, in which seventy-eight men toed the scratch. The referee, Matthew P. Holgren of the New York A. C. wisely decided not to reduce this running army to heats, and gave the novices but one spin for the prizes. The men had not traveled a fifth of a mile around the tenth of a mile track before they were strung out in somewhat bewildering fashion with 125 yards separating first and last man. Some of the more ambitious endeavored to make a runaway and showed absolutely no knowledge of pace.

This was not the case, however, with the ultimate winner, Jos. S. Dale, Jr., Bronx Church House, who came from a long way back at about three-quarters of a mile, picking his way through the field to such good purpose that he was within striking distance of the leaders at the bell, and eventually winning by ten yards in 4 minutes 55 seconds from L. Levine, Bayonne High School, with Francis J. Kivleghn, Loughlin Lyceum, third. The summaries:

65-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by Irving Bruns, unattached, (13 feet;) James L. Kirby, unattached, (8 feet,) second; M. J. Fahey, Irish-American A. C., (10 feet,) third. Time—0:07.

Maroney Defeats Smith.

Joe Maroney of the Bronx stopped Billy Smith of Yorkville in the fourth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the New Polo A. A. of Harlem last night. A right swing to the jaw brought the bout to a close, and the suddenness of the finish was a big surprise to the crowd. Smith, although he had been on the receiving end of the harder punches during the first three rounds, was apparently as strong as ever when the fourth round opened. He had landed several left jabs to Maroney's face when the later shot out his right and floored Smith for the full count. Maroney had the advantage in weight, tipping the beam at 142 pounds to 135 pounds for Smith. The later had the longer reach and made a fair showing during the first three rounds.

In the other ten-round bout Wee Wee Barton and Bob Massey, colored welterweights, went the full distance with the honors in favor of Barton.

Golfers Honor Champion Ouimet.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Francis Ouimet, the boy who won the national open golf championship last Fall in a triple tie with the English masters, Vardon and Ray, was the guest of honor to-night at the annual dinner of the Massachusetts Golf Association. Speakers expressed the hope that succes would attend his European trip next Summer. Officers were re-elected, including President Herbert Jacques of Brookline, Secretary H. H. Wilder of Lowell, and Treasurer Ralph Alden of Springfield.

C. C. Pell in Racquet Finals.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—A surprise was furnished to-day in the first half of the semi-finals in the Canadian racquet championship, when C. C. Pell of the Tuxedo Club of New York defeated in the odd game in five Edward Greenshields, the former Canadian title holder. Pell played a clever game from start to finish, and after being well behind in the final game won over Greenshields, who was far from his best in every game. Pell will play H. Meredith Smith in the finals to-morrow.

Blue Ribbon Thoroughbred Shot.

THOMPSON, Conn., Jan. 16.—White Heart, a famous Kentucky thoroughbred, owned by Mrs. Julia Deane Dresser, broke a leg by a fall while out on the track yesterday and had to be shot. The horse had seventeen blue ribbons to his credit.

NEWS OF THE TURF.

Harry Worcester Smith intends to resume race riding during the coming season and he has already made application for an amateur license to the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. Mr. Smith has always been an ardent sportsman and a dozen years ago he was one of the best of amateur riders. In recent years he has confined his riding to the hunting field.

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., has sold his steeplechaser Maltbie to Sidney L. Josepthal, the amateur rider, and the old fellow has been sent down to Mr. Josepthal's place at East Williston, L. I. He will be fitted for the coming season.

CUTLER BEATS JAP IN 14.1 BILLIARDS

Fighting tooth and nail in the evening game of thirty-eight innings, on which hinged the victory of their five-block match at the new style 14.1 balkline game, Albert Cutler of Boston and Koji Yamada at Doyle's Academy last night gave the large gallery a varied exhibition of cue work, which combined sky-rocket billiards, mediocre work, and many times masterful execution, with the result that the spectators were on tip toe from beginning to end. The Bostonian was the victor of the last block 500 to 447, taking both the afternoon and evening tilts and thereby winning the match.

In the afternoon game he won 200 to 127 in a seesaw contest which required twenty-five innings, and in the evening he was again successful 300 to 320, the Jap being the greater scorer in the game, but was unable to overcome the handicap Cutler set up at the conclusion of the matinee performance.

In the evening game Cutler started off in whirlwind fashion with the identical style of work that characterised his afternoon victory and was 100 buttons in the lead after six trips to the table, but suddenly hit a slump, and while on his usual good open-table game, was perceptibly nervous and missed shot after shot, allowing the Oriental to crawl up and even overcome the handicap. Yamada played consistent billiards, not allowing his score to interfere with his stroke, and easily outplayed the Bostonian, but was unable to overcome the early lead established by Cutler.

In the afternoon game Yamada could not catch his stroke and, relying mostly on his clever massé work, ran out only 127, while Cutler, with his open-table work running just to his liking, made the double century for the victory. The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

A. Cutler—25, 45, 11, 3, 26, 10, 18, 0, 6, 0, 0, 1, 3, 27, 2, 4, 3, 2, 18. Total, 200. High runs, 45, 27, 26. Average, 10.

Koji Yamada—33, 0, 0, 14, 1, 1, 1, 7, 0, 19, 10, 8, 0, 3, 6, 1, 0, 5, 19. Total, 127. High runs, 33, 25, 19. Average, 6 13-19.

EVENING GAME.

Cutler—12, 14, 3, 1, 1, 40, 28, 16, 28, 1, 18, 0, 5, 3, 9, 0, 1, 4, 12, 4, 0, 6, 1, 3, 2, 5, 0, 0, 1, 8, 6, 0, 4, 2, 5, 28, 30. Total, 300. High runs, 40, 30, 28. Average, 7 27-39.

Yamada—9, 1, 1, 33, 0, 32, 4, 14, 1, 10, 27, 5, 0, 4, 0, 0, 1, 0, 36, 44, 35, 0, 0, 5, 0, 0, 1, 3, 0, 0, 6, 10, 3, 10, 3, 10, 3. Total, 320. High runs, 32, 44, 36. Average, 8 15-38.

Poggenberg Wins Billiard Match.

After playing in mediocre form in the first two games, Ferdinand Poggenberg, the Amateur Billiard Club champion, displayed a remarkable reversal of form in the third and final block of his handicap 18.2 balk line billiard match at Daly's Billiard Academy last night and won handily. His opponent was George Spear, the local Class C player, who was substituted for Hal A. Coleman, the latter being unable to play, and the Amateur Billiard Club player ran up a total of 400 points to his opponent's 134 in twenty-six innings. This brings Poggenberg's total for the three nights of play up to 848, or within 52 of the required 900, which he had agreed to score, while his three opponents were required to make a total of 300 points in the three games. W. Leonard and C. Conners scored the required 300 points in their games with Poggenberg, which brought their total up to 400 before last night's contest. Spear, however, proved unequal to the task of upholding this lead, and fell down miserably. The total for Poggenberg's opponents for the three nights is 526, and the match was awarded to the Amateur Billiard Club player.

Boyd Wins Billiard Game.

Frank W. Boyd easily defeated Joseph Dalton in last night's game of the amateur Class C 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Keeney's Billiard Academy, in Brooklyn, by the score of 200 to 144 in fifty-five innings. The winner made high runs of 30, 12, and 11, with an average of 3 35-55. Dalton's highest runs were 17 and 10, and he averaged 2 34-54.

Columbia Grammar Beats Ethical.

For the first time in the history of the school, Columbia Grammar yesterday defeated Ethical Culture School on the Columbia court by a score of 16 to 14. The game was a tie until a minute before the final whistle, when Columbia scored two fouls in quick succession, Bert Cohen caging both. This victory places Columbia Grammar in line for the city preparatory school championship for the first time. The game was witnessed by a crowd of about 300. The score follows:

Ethical Culture.	Position.	Columbia Gr.
Peck	Right forward	Harris
Allison	Centre	Frenkle
Goldberg	Left guard	Robbins

Goals from field—Mills, (3,) Peck, Goldberg, (2,) Cohen, Harris, Vernam. Goals from fouls—Peck, (4,) Cohen. Referee—Mr. McKenzie, Ethical. Umpire—Mr. Sussevrode, Columbia Grammar. Score and first half—Columbia Grammar, 7; Ethical, 7.

Basket Ball on Armory Floor.

The basket ball teams of the Seventh Regiment and Manhattan College will play on the Armory courts, Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue, this evening in the opening game of the season. The Manhattan team is composed of former college players and is being coached by "Tom" Reilly of New York University. As Manhattan has a very fast team this year, an excellent game is assured.

Penn to Race Dartmouth.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The University of Pennsylvania will enter a relay team in the athletic games to be held at Boston on Feb. 7. The team, which will consist of four men, will compete against Dartmouth in a special invitation race, the distance to be 780 yards for each man. Coach Orton telegraphed to Boston to-day accepting the invitation and also notified the officials that he expected to enter Lippincott and Paterson in some of the sprinting events. The Pennsylvania runners who will comprise the relay team have not yet been selected.

NO MORE BOUTS AT RINK.

Twyford Unable to Get Clear Lease on Clermont Avenue Building.

Legal entanglements affecting the lease of the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn came to light yesterday, and it is likely that the effort to re-establish a boxing club at the rink will be abandoned. Jimmy Twyford, one of the promoters of the Whirlwind Athletic Club, which conducted bouts at the rink three years ago, and more recently identified with the Twyford Athletic Club of South Brooklyn, received permission from the State Athletic Commission two weeks ago to transfer from the old clubhouse of the Brooklyn Beach Athletic Club to the rink. He signed Johnny Dundee and Young McGowan of Brooklyn for the opening match which was to have been decided Monday night. Yesterday the bout was called off because of the trouble regarding the lease.

It was rumored last night that this latest difficulty would undoubtedly end the plans to open a club at the rink. A long legal battle would be necessary before all the knotty problems could be smoothed out, and this would entail an expense which the promoters do not care to shoulder. They are now in search of a smaller hall, and it is expected that they will make another request for a transfer when the State Athletic Commission meets next week. During the past few years several efforts have been made to conduct boxing at the rink by the Whirlwind Athletic Club, the Vanderbilt Athletic Club, the Royale Athletic Club, and others, but all gave it up after losing money on the venture.

The Empire Athletic Club, which will make its home at the New Star Casino under the management of Jess and Ed McMahon, will open its doors next Friday night with an all-star show of three ten-round bouts. The card, which was finally arranged yesterday, calls for bouts between Johnny Dundee and Joe Shugrue, Joe Mandot of New Orleans and Johnny Lore, and Johnny Reese of the west side versus Special Delivery Hirsch.

Ritchie-Murphy Bout Called Off.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 16.—The championship boxing match between Willie Ritchie, the lightweight title holder, and Tommy Murphy of New York, scheduled for Jan. 30, was declared off to-day by Ritchie. Dr. John Galway informed Ritchie, after an examination, that his left Achilles tendon was badly strained and the sheath of the tendon seriously inflamed. It might improve temporarily, he said, but exercise would be sure to make it worse.

Petroskey Ill, Bout Postponed.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 16.—The Petroskey-Clabby boxing contest scheduled for to-morrow at Vernon Arena, was indefinitely postponed to-day. Petroskey was reported ill, suffering from an ailment which it was said might be diagnosed as appendicitis.

INTERCITY RACQUETS.

New York and Philadelphia to Play Second Games of Series Here.

The return intercity doubles racquet match between the New York Racquet and Tennis Club and the Philadelphia Racquet Club will be played to-day on the courts of the local club. In the first half New York won both games after one of the hardest struggles in the history of the series. Neither city had its strongest team, Payne Whitney, Lawrence Waterbury, and M. S. Barger being out of the New York teams, while Wilson Potter and Robert K. Cassatt were unable to play for Philadelphia.

New York will be represented by a strong aggregation. Lawrence Waterbury, the national amateur champion, will be paired with Payne Whitney, replacing G. M. Heckscher and W. F. Burden, while the second team will be composed of George C. Clark, Jr., and Stanley Mortimer, who won from Brooke and Bromley one week ago. Waterbury and Whitney will play the Quakers' first pair, probably G. H. Brooke and Wilson Potter, or Robert K. Cassatt, while Clark and Mortimer will oppose C. S. Bromley and partner.

Champions in Pastime Games.

Many metropolitan and intercollegiate champions will compete to-night in the thirty-eighth annual indoor games of the Pastime Athletic Club at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. The metropolitan "65 yards" special will be the feature of an interesting programme. The entries in this include Tom Halpin of Boston, Mel Sheppard, who is again in form; Homer Baker, D. E. de Grouchy, New York Athletic Club; Ostman, and Hirschon. The relay event will be another interesting contest, and among the starters will be Kramer, Leslie, Bausch, and Timpel, Long Island Athletic Club; Kohlemainen, Kiviat, Rosenberger, and Meyer, Irish-American Athletic Club; Valentine, Casey, and Baker, New York Athletic Club; Longfield, Bonsil, O'Connor, and Gibbons, Bronx Church House, and teams from the Pastimes and Knights of St. Antony. The other entries include: Bicycle race—Lake, Townsend, Lightfin, Van Dries, and Goodwin, scratch, and a large field. Military 880 yards, closed—Baker, Shaw, Noble, De Grouchy, Anderson, De Fraeytes, Farengo, and Reynolds. Two-mile walk—Remer, Gifford, Schwartz, Kaiser, Hern, and the Plant brothers. 300-yard run—Sheppard, Hirschon, Casey, Valentine, Kuhn, Oakes, and Lovell. 1,000-yard—Longfield, Nobel, Daly, Bell, and Geis. 60-yard dash—Ferris, Meyer, Elliott, Lovell, Shaw, and Hoyt.

Poly Prep Games To-night.

With 500 entries, representing fifty of the leading high and preparatory schools in the East, the annual athletic carnival and reception of the Polytechnic Preparatory School will be held to-night in the Fourteenth Regiment Armory, Fourteenth Street and Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn. Among the schools that have entered track teams for the point trophy are Princeton Prep., Manual Training High, Commerce, Clinton, Erasmus, Commercial, De La Salle, Bushwick, Bay Ridge, Boys' High, Eastern District, Yonkers High, Central High of Newark, St. Paul School, Newtown, St. John's Prep., Brooklyn College Prep., and other institutions. An added feature will be the appearance of Mel Sheppard in the 600-yard event, closed to the Fourteenth Regiment athletes. He is scheduled to compete after his race at the Pastime carnival. Two other features will be the basket ball games between the Bushwick High and Poly Prep., and a relay race. In the games, Jack Gardner of the Central High School, who finished second to Havenell in the junior indoor championships, will start in the 75-yard event.

MR. MOON AND THE MERIT SYSTEM.

The high character of Mr. Moon of Tennessee, Chairman of the Post Office Committee of the House, his long service in Congress, his entire sincerity in his views of public questions, and his unusual ability and intelligence, make his arguments as to the exemption of Assistant Postmasters from the tests fixed by law extremely interesting. He is a partisan, and a convinced and zealous one, and it is probably that fact that induces him to support the "rider" to the Postal Appropriation bill. We venture to point out to him, however, that neither from the point of view of the public service nor from that of party advantage is the change in the law which he proposes desirable. Nor is the method to which he resorts justifiable. The rider is in itself a vicious procedure. It conceals its true meaning and effect. It is deceiving and unmanly. If Mr. Moon thinks that the exemption of the Assistant Postmasters is the right thing to do, surely it would be better to present it as a separate measure and let it be fought out on its merits. He has much to say as to the dictation of the President in his reported statement that he would veto the bill if the rider were attached. But that is no more dictation than it is for the House to put the exemption in an appropriation bill in order to prevent the President from getting at it directly.

Exemption sought in this way would be bad for the service. The cumulative experience of thirty years has shown that the fair application of the merit system has increased the efficiency and raised the character of the service. That is proved by the testimony of responsible officers in all departments and of all political parties. The change would equally be hurtful to the party bringing it about. This is shown by the uniform defeat in Congress for nearly a generation of every open attempt to repeal or to weaken the system. There have always been plenty of men in Congress who wanted to get rid of the system and go back to the spoils system, and many measures to that end have had a big majority on a viva voce vote. But in every instance they have been defeated when the ayes and noes were taken. The spoilsmen shrank from going on record because they knew that public sentiment would condemn them.

We do not accuse Mr. Moon of this sort of cowardice. We have no doubt that he would stand by his convictions in the open. But the proceeding he has adopted in this matter tends to shelter from responsibility men of weaker minds who are not of his kidney. We wish that he would frankly put his notion into a separate bill, let it be debated, and let it be acted on in the sunshine. We are sure that it would be defeated, as a long line of like attempts have been.

WHERE THE ROGUES GO.

A dispatch from Middletown, Orange County, gives a striking list of crimes committed in that region within the fortnight after the new Police Commissioner of New York, with the authority of the Mayor, began the policy of driving known criminals from this city. The list includes four burglaries and a number of operations by clairvoyants and confidence men. The total, both in number and in the amount of spoil, far exceeded the record of a like period for many years. Naturally the local police authorities are indignant with those of New York who are making it unsafe or unpleasant for the thieves and swindlers to remain here and driving them out to disturb the usual calm of rural neighborhoods at this season.

Obviously the remedy is not in the abandonment by our police of the excellent tactics they have resumed. Nor can it be found in any considerable increase of activity by the country police. In most of the small towns and villages nothing that can fairly be called police service exists. Last Summer the single policeman in a town of some 5,000 population, in the Hudson Valley, was asked how late at night a certain district could be patrolled, and he answered: "That depends on how early I go to bed." He was an honest man and a fairly good officer when awake, but it can be seen that the town was not very safe in his keeping, if any one wished to commit crime after bedtime. The only practicable remedy for a real evil would be in the organization of a mounted force that would make the lives of the rogues intolerable and would tend strongly to keep them away. The mere knowledge of such a force, mobile, vigilant, active, and always "on the job," would be a preventive of very great value. And we venture the prediction that the actual property saving would much more than offset the cost. The losses in the Orange County crimes referred to were $5,000 in two weeks.

OUR MEXICAN POLICY.

Representative Gillett of Massachusetts chose a most opportune time for the delivery of his speech in criticism of President Wilson's Mexican policy, which he mistakenly attributes to Secretary Bryan. Doubtless Mr. Gillett's estimate of Mr. Bryan as a Minister of Foreign Affairs is just. Assuredly, he struck a popular note in that part of his address, while any policy of the Executive, under a republican form of government, is debatable, and now is an excellent time to debate Mr. Wilson's policy toward Mexico. The Provisional Government to which he refused to extend formal recognition has just defaulted on the payment of interest on its foreign debts, but there is no sign of disturbance over the matter in those European countries which hold the greater part of these debts, and instead of dispatching warships to Vera Cruz, as they did when Juarez suspended service on foreign loans, fifty-three years ago, they have been content to let the matter rest after purely formal inquiries at Washington. Simultaneously with the report of Mr. Gillett's speech appears The London Times's statement of the present British view of the situation, which certainly does not indicate lack of faith in the wisdom of President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting."

Obviously, the course of Huerta as Dictator is nearly run, and there will be no diplomatic interference from Europe, where it is generally recognized that "the pacification of Mexico "is an American and not a European "responsibility, and that the United "States can neither delegate nor share "it." In the circumstances, Mr. Gillett's criticism of the President loses point. He does not indicate what course he thinks ought to have been pursued a year ago. Probably he does not believe that we should have invaded Mexican territory. We must assume, therefore, that he believes recognition of Huerta would have been wiser than the policy which now seems to be successful. That recognition would have checked the rebellion against Huerta, however, or transformed that military despot into a sagacious and safe ruler for a republic, Mr. Gillett cannot really believe when he considers all the facts. He must be aware presently that there is more general and warmer support for the President's Mexican policy throughout the country.

LABOR CONSPIRACIES.

The editor of The United Mine Workers' Journal has been arrested under indictment for violation of the anti-trust law in connection with the Colorado strike. Thirty-eight of the Western Federation of Miners have been indicted in Michigan as conspirators in restraint of trade under the same statute, and many arrests have been made, while others are expected. The Attorney General is not to be blamed for allowing these cases to go to the Grand Juries. These are the organizations which the President's signature exempted from prosecution by the Attorney General by the use of the funds provided for the purpose of enforcing the anti-trust law. The indictments are proof of the truth of the President's words that there were other forms of procedure than prosecution by the Attorney General.

The method thus exemplified is further commendable in that it is a return to the principle of trial by jury. Editors of labor organs, from Mr. Gompers down to the humble editor now in the toils along with Mr. Gompers, will complain in vain of the persecution of labor so long as that persecution takes the form of complaints by Grand Juries and convictions by petit juries. They are not infallible, but they are as nearly so as any of our institutions. Those who suffer by them will find scant sympathy for their acts. The punishment of both classes of acts, those by capital and by labor, is preferable to the punishment of either alone.

On the same day with the above indictments is announced the refusal of the Southern Rice Growers' Association to sell the rice crop on account of the bids by the millers "not coming "up to the minimum prices set by "the association." The bids by the millers were reported to be high, but not so high as the rice growers' limit. "The farmers stood firm for the higher prices," it is reported. Good for the farmers. The difference between the farmers and the extortioners of the trusts ought to be clear to everybody, and does not need pointing out either to the Attorney General or to the competent lawmakers at Washington. Farmers' organizations to fix prices were exempted from prosecution at the same time that the unions received their dispensation from the teeth of the law which does not yet bite others than farmers and unionists deep enough, and is under repair for that purpose. The farmers are even further favored than the unionists in having the Federal Reserve Board instructed to give them special credit facilities, the same facilities being on the same page withheld from the wealthy malefactors who receive the attentions of the Attorney General. He could hardly be expected to prosecute these favorites of the law at the same time that he is assisting in drafting legislation against the fixing of prices by others. The pending proposal only applies to capitalist trusts, and not to farmers' trusts. The distinction must be clear to all. There is no report of indictments of rice growers, and none is to be expected. They are farmers, and that lets them out.

It used to be approved practice to pass one law for all. In those days it was thought that if the law could not be made applicable to all the case did not call for law. Even then it was suspected that there were too many laws. The reason that we have so many laws now—and so few convictions—is that exceptions are enacted along with the law. The advantage is that it is possible to make a law which will penalize those whom the lawmakers desire to punish, and will show favor to those whose hard lot in life the lawmakers wish to ameliorate. Nothing could be more amiable or admirable.

DELANEY.

Gov. Glynn's investigation of the State departments is drifting on the rocks. Mr. James W. Osborne has not satisfied the Governor that he can accomplish anything, therefore Mr. John H. Delaney is detailed to succeed him. Mr. Delaney is a child of Tammany Hall.

The Republican Assembly has ample reason for employing a capable investigator of the State departments. For one thing, the Governor cannot enter departments the heads of which are elective officials. The office of State Engineer needs investigating because of its relations with the spending of the millions for highways and canals. Attorney General Carmody has failed in aiding the work of ferreting out the "grafters," and the Governor has failed to use his influence in securing the appointment of District Attorney Whitman as Special Deputy Attorney General.

Meanwhile, the evidence that has piled up in New York County indicates clearly that crooked work has been going on all over the State. Mr. Delaney can be trusted to use his new powers for factional purposes, but not, we fear, to expose the favorites of the Tammany machine. His recent action in detailing a witness to defend Bart Dunn against the charge of conspiring to defraud the State in the construction of a road in Rockland County is a case in point. Bart Dunn has been convicted, fined, and imprisoned. Now Mr. Delaney has filed charges against one of the witnesses who helped convict Mr. Dunn, asking the Governor and the Attorney General to have him dismissed from his place as engineer in the Highway Department. A man of Mr. Delaney's political bringing up will never succeed in bringing the blackmailers of the State contractors to justice.

BRITISH "SPORTING BLOOD."

In view of the enormous prosperity of Great Britain, indicated in the recent trade returns, the retirement of the special committee appointed to raise funds for the representation of England in the Olympic games at Berlin two years hence seems positively pathetic. Of the required $500,000 only $55,000 has been promised, and most of this sum conditionally. The announcement was made some time ago that these would be the last of the international games in which Great Britain would be officially represented. It now appears that the "sporting blood," which of old was one of the British glories, has really grown thinner.

The Olympic games will be continued, but there will be no English contestants. It is hard to account for this strange development. Englishmen have not lost their brawn, and while they have not lately held their old supremacy in sports, they might regain it. That defeat has made them sore is hard to believe. The whole world has recognized them as leaders in athletic pastimes, has profited by their example, and if their instructions have been bettered the fault has been their own. There can be no greater glory in the pursuance of a "won't play" policy than they could be sure of obtaining by sticking manfully to the work with a will to learn new ideas and to conquer in the face of new obstacles.

BARGAINS IN ART.

Farsighted and forehanded persons are picking up bargains at the art sales this Winter. Paintings and other works of art are selling at abnormally low prices. Such unique treasures as the Lincoln manuscripts, to be sure, have brought high prices, but pictures, sculptures, and ceramics have been frequently knocked down at prices which make them good investments. Of course, it is necessary to know what one is buying. A picture or a vase or a statuette is not to be accounted a good investment simply because it can be obtained at small cost.

On the whole, the risks in the art market are not greater than they are in the market for securities. Judgment based on knowledge and experience is liable to err in buying stocks and bonds. The interesting fact, after all, is that if you go to the picture sales this Winter and see things you like, there is a better chance than usual to get them for what you can afford to pay. The cost is likely to be smaller than it was a year ago. It may be smaller than their value a year hence, but that is another matter. The most expert collectors do not ignore luck as a factor in buying and selling.

"CURED" CRIMINAL LUNATICS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will not some one come forward with statistics showing the number of persons who have been discharged from insane asylums as cured, and who have subsequently proved that a fearful mistake had been made, by killing one or more relatives? I have read instance after instance of this kind, where, from the fact that the awful tragedy was reported from a very poor neighborhood, it would seem as if no powerful influence could have been brought to bear upon the physicians who pronounced the insanity cured. They must have been misled by the fact that in a well-regulated insane asylum there is every precaution taken to preserve the patient's balance, while in ordinary life there are constant and unavoidable disturbing elements, the first of which may unbalance a weak mind. It is just as likely that Harry Thaw would murder his mother if released, as that he would attack Mr. Jerome or Dr. Flint.

COMMON SENSE.

New York, Jan. 14, 1914.

It is true that many who are pronounced cured by the physicians in charge of insane asylums, when permitted to resume the stresses and conflicts of ordinary life, become again violent and uncontrollable. The evil is accentuated by the fact that many patients are discharged on habeas corpus proceedings against the will of the authorities. Thus, during the year ended Sept. 30, 1911, Dr. James V. May, then Superintendent at Matteawan, reported:

> Of the twenty-six persons who were granted writs, four were indicted for murder, seven for assault, and one for manslaughter. In only a few of the cases is the history subsequent to discharge available. It is known, however, that several have shown unmistakable evidences of insanity, while others have committed criminal acts since their release. It will be observed that twenty-four of these cases were diagnosed as unrecovered by the hospital authorities and considered as unsuitable for discharge.

Thaw belongs to the category of prisoners still held to be insane by those appointed to watch over him. In all the habeas corpus proceedings the weight of medical evidence has confirmed the finding of the jury that found him "not guilty, because insane." Even Supt. Russell, retained by Thaw's family to testify in his behalf, said that it would be safe to release him only if he, Dr. Russell, should be appointed to guard him "from committing another murder."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Nobody Is Held Responsible.

No engineer would even dream of denying that the members of his profession are able, by use of all its knowledge and resources, to build a dam strong enough to resist any pressure that in the natural course of events reasonably to be expected can be brought against it. Whenever such a structure goes down, therefore, and especially when it yields, as did that at Stony Bottom this week, to nothing more unfamiliar than the "January thaw" which comes practically every year, the conclusion is well justified, if not unavoidable, that a heavy responsibility rests on somebody for the devastation worked by the released waters in the valley below.

In this particular case there seems to have been little if any loss of life, timely warning having been given to the people living in the path of the flood. The escape of many of them, however, was very narrow, and property worth many thousands of dollars has been destroyed. After every such disaster there is an investigation; often there are two or three; but the common result of the inquiries is a conflict of testimony between the owners and the builders of the broken dam. The former insist that they employed engineers of supposed or proved competency, and trusted them to make what was certainly wanted—a structure that would stand—while the almost invariable explanation of the engineers themselves is that against their own judgment and advice they were forced to sacrifice safety to economy.

Of these two pleas, that of the engineers, on its face, at least, is the weaker, for by making it they in effect confess to violation of their professional consciences—to doing bad work on the poor excuse that if they didn't, somebody else would, and they needed the money.

So obvious is the lack of intention in any mind to flood a valley and drown or ruin its inhabitants that rarely indeed does one of these accidents lead to a definite fixing of either responsibility or penalty. Instead, the investigators, who start in fiercely while the excitement is on, calm down as they proceed and finally reach the conclusion—very quietly announced—that as everybody meant well and probably won't do it again, further action of any kind is not needed.

This is a kindly decision, and it saves bother all around, but—well, it doesn't tend to bring about speedily a better adjustment between big dams and high water.

Publicity Not to His Taste.

It is pleasant to receive from an authority as high as The New York Medical Record unqualified confirmation of our statement that antagonism to the giving of publicity to medical matters by the newspapers is shown by obscure doctors whose opinions have not been sought, by those who happen, unlike some others, not to have had opportunities for testing new treatments, and by those who resent the disclosure to their patients of professional "mysteries." It is not so pleasant to have The Record charge us with ignoring "the existence of a large class of thinking physicians who deplore the premature and incomplete presentation of a few experimental results to a heterogeneous mass of readers, the great majority of whom are wholly incapable of giving to them their true worth or of assimilating them without serious mental indigestion."

This grieves us because The Times has not ignored the [illegible] of this sort, but has, on the contrary, tried to earn their commendation by its treatment of medical subjects. It has, too, the proud and happy consciousness of having received that commendation not infrequently. At other times, when in this domain an error of statement has been made, we have had from them, not denunciation for malice or imbecility, but that sympathy which one fallible mortal owes to another who is doing his best, though it be without complete success.

With the recent discussion of radium as a text, The Record rehearses the old arguments as to the raising of false hopes in lay minds, and laments, not the harm it does to the sick, but the trouble it makes for doctors. That, at least, is frank, and can go without comment, but we cannot pass over as lightly The Record's charge that there was no basis in a recent article by Drs. Abel, Rowntree, and Turner for our assertion that "as a substitute for the work of the kidneys in an emergency and to tide over dangerous crises, this 'artificial kidney' should be available and useful in the hands of skilled surgeons." In almost those words the article did say just that, and it fairly well justified the phrase "artificial kidney"—for anybody who did not push its significance to the idea of permanent and complete substitution. And The Record adds:

> It is just this sort of ill-advised publicity to which the thinking members of the medical profession are strongly opposed and which has turned many physicians against what was at one time the newspaper of their preference.

Yet The Times evidently can still number the editor of The Record among its readers. That is something—it is even a good deal.

A Mysterious Case of Miserliness.

There is small chance now of ever getting a demonstrably correct explanation why the man Jardine chose to live for thirty years in Bowery lodging houses instead of in the conditions that one of his education and resources might be expected to prefer.

The beginning of his plunge into a convincing semblance of poverty seems to have coincided with what are called "domestic troubles," and there is some plausibility in the theory that he concealed his wealth in order not to share it with the woman who had caused his arrest for desertion. But apparently his peculiar life began before the quarrel and brought it about. No vices are charged against him, and he is credited with having a pretty taste in literature. His judgment as to investing money equaled his skill in making it, and at any time he could have gone away to any one of a thousand places where he could have lived in accordance with his means.

The way Jardine did live involved, one would think, constant discomfort and repulsive companionship. Some obscure satisfaction, however, he must have found in it. Yet he was by no means the miser of tradition, for there is no evidence that he had a special hatred for spending money or a special joy in its possession.

The case is therefore highly mysterious.

SEAMEN PROTECTED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

No societies working for the betterment of the condition of seamen in the Port of New York are better acquainted with the conditions on the water front than are the Seamen's Church Institute, 25 South Street and 341 West Street, and the Seamen's Christian Association of 399 West Street.

These societies have been engaged for the last fifteen years in leading the fight against shanghaiing, crimping, and the many abuses from which sailors suffered at the hands of the shipping masters, who formerly had both the sailors and the ship owners in their power. The old conditions have gone, never to return. The reproach that New York was one of the worst ports in the world for seamen to come to has not been true for the last ten years. We doubt whether in any port there are so many agencies actively engaged as in this, at the present time, in looking out for the welfare of seamen, in providing respectable places for them to sleep in, caring for their money, and caring for their effects. No longer can a boarding-house keeper retain a sailor's kit as security for an extortionate bill, but a sailor may freely leave and go to sea with all his personal belongings.

It is not pretended that conditions in this port are ideal, but the societies above named, being in touch through their correspondence with all the leading ports of the world, assert with entire confidence that in no large port are the conditions affecting the interests of seamen in better shape than they now are in the Port of New York. We feel that the statements recently made in this city's press in respect to shanghaiing in this port are entirely unwarranted and unsupported, so far as we can ascertain, by any real facts. The statement that sailors are bought and sold like slaves by boarding-house keepers is very greatly exaggerated. The societies above named stand ready and willing at all times, either through their own efforts or with the help of the Legal Aid Society, to protect every right which the sailor possesses, both in respect to his person and his property; and if injustice is done at any time to a seaman, and he obtains no redress, it is in most cases due to the fact that a complaint is not made to those who would be able to right the matter.

To Ward Off Cold Chills.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Scotland, where the shepherds journey afoot through the wild moors and hills in search of straying sheep during the Winter snows, many of them carry a flask or tin of hot milk wrapped in a flannel bag. This is placed beneath the waistcoat over the chest and the plaid or outer coat buttoned over it.

The milk may occasionally be sipped, and it keeps hot a long time if well covered. Many a chill has been warded off, even lives saved, by the above simple but efficacious measure. I recommend that our brave policemen, motormen, and others inevitably exposed to the rigors of your weather should try the hot milk preventive. Should the milk cool off or be used the nearest drug store would refill the flask.

Anti-Suffrage Speaker Misquoted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your story of the anti-suffrage meeting held at Aeolian Hall credits me with the preposterous statement that "the suffragists believe in free love." I did not make this unwarranted statement, but in replying to a question which involved the dual standard for men and women, I quoted a writer on "The Younger Suffragists"—I used no names—who claims the so-called "sex rights" for women, and advocates a single standard which shall give women the present standard of men, and I did add that "the doctrine of this Younger Suffragist used to be called by the uglier name of free love."

Covered Ash Carts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I pass every morning through Eightieth Street, and have had occasion to see a wagon full of ashes, which the wind spreads all over the street, to the great annoyance of pedestrians. The question is: Why not have these wagons covered? The remedy being so simple, I see no reason why it should not be applied?

JAPAN'S CALAMITY.

Prof. Griffis Urges America to Give Generous Aid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thanks for the editorial article on Japan's calamities. May the American hand be outstretched to assist! It will help, not hinder, generous impulses to state that "Admiral" Perry (Matthew Calbraith Perry, U. S. N., never received pay or actual rank higher than Captain,) never "bombarded" Kagoshima or any other place in Japan. His was a peaceful armada, planned and sent out by one of the most enterprising and constructive of our Presidents—the misunderstood Millard Fillmore. Perry never came within hundreds of miles of the capital of Satsuma, where was built the first cotton mill in Japan. The city was bombarded by a British squadron, and if not beaten off, left the game drawn. Parliament disapproved the act.

However, to balance The Times slip, I note in one of our New York dailies, this morning, the photograph of the great pacific statesman, Prince (Marquis) Ito, given as that of the naval Admiral!

Townsend Harris, our New Yorker, won Japan to open five seaports and two cities to trade, commerce, American residence, and the entrance of teachers and missionaries, without a cannon, ship, sailor, or soldier—two entirely peaceful triumphs, the latter greater than the former. Yet monuments to Oliver Perry of Lake Erie are numerous; to Matthew rises no public memorial, nor to Townsend Harris any.

Now let us win another tremendous victory, and send help to the starving, the homeless, and the maimed in a nation that has abundantly honored Perry and Harris.

"NEWSPAPER ADVERBS."

Purist Asks Why They Are Not Placed Between Parts of the Verb.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A little while ago you published an article on "Newspaper English," and reached the conclusion that it is like any other good English. I want to call your attention to at least one peculiarity, that is the location of the adverb. There seems to be a growing reluctance to allow the adverb a place between the parts of the verb. I have jotted down instances from time to time, and the practice of keeping the adverb out, usually before the auxiliary verb, seems to have crystallized into a rule with all the prejudice against the split infinitive.

Here are some examples: "Those who reached the stairs first evidently were hurled to the bottom." Why not, "Were evidently hurled"? "His attention soon was arrested." Why not, "Was soon arrested"? "It also will be asserted." Why not, "It will also be asserted"? "This willingness to generalize the Nicaraguan protectorate already has been intimated." That is correct English, of course, and no one but a German with his exquisite dialectic use of "already" would require more than a second thought as to which verb the adverb belongs to. But it does require the second thought, and that is not only necessary, but it is ugly English. I like to see the adverb so tucked into the verb that its qualifying purpose cannot be mistaken. Your practice, which seems to have become a rule, may be intelligible English, but it is mighty bad rhetoric.

W. Y. CHAPMAN.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 15, 1914.

WASTING POSTERITY'S MONEY.

Controller's Lessons in Public Thrift Should Be Taken to Heart.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Controller Prendergast in his address to the Credit Men's Association came as near as he safely could to enunciating these plain truths for fair minds—and unfair ones, too:

> Going into debt is not only as bad for a municipality as for an individual, but worse.
>
> We have an idea that we know just what posterity wants, therefore we'll buy it for them, instead of letting them buy it for themselves, just as those whose posterity we are let us decide for ourselves.
> If posterity had any choice in the matter, it would declare that the price for the good things appalled it, and that it would rather not enjoy such expensive luxuries. They may not even suit posterity.

The plan of buying costly things under the name of "improvements" is really for the present benefit of persons with an axe of some kind to grind.

People would not want the things at all if they had to pay them. New Rochelle was lately appalled when officially informed that the present townsfolk were "posterity" to a lot of thinkers who had so tied them hand and foot with bonds that five-eighths of the total tax levy is now going to pay interest on bonds, leaving three-eighths for current use.

Let us hope Mr. Prendergast will tell it again and again, so that public debt will be avoided as much as individual debt is—or should be.

BROUGHT 'TANGO' TO AMERICA.

Joseph Smith Also Claims Credit for "Turkey Trot" and "Apache."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in your paper a letter from Maurice saying he was the first to introduce the tango in America. This I wish to say is a mistake; I was the first. I introduced it at the Winter Garden three years ago. I taught it to Dorothy Jardon and danced it with her myself, and had twelve men and girls of the chorus dance it in an ensemble behind us in the show called "Review of 1911," before Vera Violetta, in which Gaby Deslys played. This was before Maurice came to this country. This I can prove by Messrs. Shuberts' management, also by those in the company at the time. I was also the first one to introduce the turkey trot, and claim the start of all this dancing.

The turkey trot I first put on the stage, and the first time it was danced was with the late Mabel Hite and Mike Donlin in a "Certain Party" production at Wallack's Theatre over three years ago. I also had a big chorus in that. Afterward I introduced it in "Little Miss Fix It" and many other shows.

I was also the first to do the Apache dance in America. I did this in the "Queen of the Moulin Rouge."

IN DREAMS.

My fortunes come to me in dreams
When night is still, and troublous day,
With all its woes, is far away.
Then, in the golden thrall, it seems
That I am more than humankind;
Such noble motives thrill my mind;
Griefs I assuage, wrongs overthrow—
In steady stream my dollars flow
To give relief, bring blessings rare,
And ease the burden of man's care.

Alas! In dreams alone am I
Beneficent, good-willed toward man!
Chill penury, since life began,
Has warped each impulse—drained me dry
Of kindly interest. Tell me, then,
Why, in my dreams of affluent ease,
Do I return to thoughts like these—
How best to help my fellow-men?
Is it but need of paltry gold
That makes my warm heart turn so cold?

Mayhap if fortune came by day
Instead of in the quiet night—
Mayhap when all my hopes were bright,
My sympathy would pass away.
None knows the changes wealth may bring,
Nor how too many dollars sting
To selfish purpose. Yet I feel
The strong conviction that, to you,
My sister, brother, I'd be true
Had I sufficient of earth's pelf
To aid you and still feed myself.

COLOMBIA'S CLAIM

Valued at Over $25,000,000 for Loss of Panama.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article headed "The Claim of Colombia" I note the following:

> A settlement of the claim of Colombia against this country is most desirable. * * * There is no reason why any tremendous sum of money should be involved. Some of the amounts mentioned in the reports of the negotiations, which are not official, of course, are absurdly large. * * * It is not likely that the sum will be nearly as large as $25,000,000, and we have no doubt, if the various Commissioners conduct their negotiations tactfully, that there will be no "humiliation" for the United States and no further talk of a needless appeal to The Hague Tribunal.

Kindly allow me to point out that the pecuniary ills suffered by Colombia owing to the secession of Panama, accomplished by the intervention of this country, seem to have been overlooked. These losses are self-evident and may be summed up as follows:

Loss of the annuities to which Colombia had a right as subvention from the Panama R. R. Co. at the rate of $250,000 each in ten years without interest...........	$2,500,000
Value of the Panama Railroad, which in a few years more would have become the property of the Government of Colombia, with all its annexes, accessories, properties, &c., as per appraisal of the Isthmian Commission........	15,000,000
Amount offered Colombia by the United States for a ninety-nine years' lease of the zone of land necessary for the construction of the Canal........................	10,000,000

Thus, if these figures be taken into account, the indemnification discussed between the two exchequers, according to American press dispatches, a sum fluctuating between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 is neither excessive nor unreasonable.

Regarding the moral reparation due Colombia from the American Government, I have no doubt the two Governments will succeed in finding a formula acceptable to both, without necessity of an appeal to The Hague or other tribunal, and without this formula implying in any sense "humiliation" for the United States—something Colombia has never solicited. What has been desired is merely the recognition of the conscious and voluntary violation of the final part of Article 35 of the "Treaty of Peace, Friendship, Navigation, and Commerce," celebrated between the United States of New Granada (now Colombia) and the United States of North America Dec. 12, 1846, ratified in Washington by Secretary of State James Buchanan June 10, 1848.

The final part of the above-mentioned article, the violation of which was solemnly recognized by ex-President Roosevelt in his "I Took Panama" speech, states in part—"and in order to secure to themselves the tranquil and constant enjoyment of these advantages and for the favors they have acquired by the fourth, fifth, and sixth articles of this treaty, the United States guarantees positively and efficaciously to New Grenada, by the present stipulation, the perfect neutrality of the before-mentioned Isthmus, with the view that the free transit from one to the other sea may not be interrupted or embarrassed in any future time while this treaty exists, and, in consequence, the United States also guarantees, in the same manner, the rights of sovereignty and property which New Granada has and possesses over the said territory."

CITY JOBS GIVEN OUT.

Mitchel Names Chief of License Bureau—Laimbeer Gets a Place.

Mayor Mitchel appointed Julian Rosenthal yesterday as Chief of the Bureau of Licenses to succeed James G. Wallace. The bureau supervises taxicabs, moving-picture theatres, and push carts, and the salary is $5,000 a year. Mr. Rosenthal has been a reporter on the staff of the Evening Mail for the last eight years.

Bridge Commissioner F. J. H. Kracke appointed Lawrence B. Dunham, a lawyer, as his deputy. The salary is $4,500. Mr. Dunham succeeds William H. Sinnott, Tammany leader of the Twenty-second district. He was formerly Secretary of the Empire State Democracy.

The Commissioner of Licenses appointed Ephraim Kaufmann as a deputy to take the place of Samuel Prince, at a salary of $3,500 a year. For ten years Mr. Kaufmann has been the business representative of the Clothing Cutters' Union and the United Garment Workers of America.

Fire Commissioner Adamson appointed Richard H. Laimbeer as Deputy Fire Commissioner for Brooklyn and Queens, and Clarence H. Fay as Secretary of the Fire Department. Mr. Laimbeer was Deputy Fire Commissioner in Brooklyn during Mayor Low's administration. He was formerly Judge of the Court of Special Sessions, and was one of the Commissioners that laid out the Subway route to Brooklyn. For seventeen years he was a member of the National Guard. Mr. Fay is a lawyer. His only previous service in public office was in the position of Deputy Attorney General in 1909 and 1910.

"The position of Secretary of the Fire Department has been useless in the past," said Commissioner Adamson in making the appointment, "and it was my first inclination to abolish it altogether. In looking over the field I found, however, that there was so much work of a constructive nature to be done that I decided that I would need the help of an energetic Secretary. He will assist the Commissioner and Deputies in certain constructive work I have in mind, and the routine work of the office will be performed by the Private Secretary to the Commissioner."

Mayor Mitchel said yesterday that he would go to Philadelphia this afternoon to attend a dinner to be given to Mayor Blankenburg of that city. He will return on Sunday. The Mayor said he had made no progress in selecting a Corporation Counsel, a Water, or Health Commissioner.

MEUNIER SCULPTURE ON VIEW HERE SOON

LITTLE KNOWN IN NEW YORK

Unfinished "Monument to Labor" in Bas-Reliefs—Meunier Paintings Also in Exhibition.

The art of the late Constantin Meunier, the great Belgian sculptor, whose work has been called the epic of modern industrialism, is to be seen for the first time in New York on the evening of Monday, Jan. 26, when an exhibition of his creations will be formally opened at the Avery Library, Columbia University. The holding in that place of this extensive exhibition of sculpture and painting marks the début of the Avery Library as a gallery for the New York visit of great traveling art collections and suggests that from now on the Avery may take its place in a link in the chain of such galleries across the country.

The exhibition will be opened by a reception with President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Mrs. Butler playing host and hostess and the opening to the public is set for the following day, Jan. 27. The library will be open from 9 A. M. till 11 P. M. and the exhibition will stay on Morningside Heights until Feb. 15.

There will be seventy paintings and drawings on the walls, for it will be remembered that Meunier gave thirty years out of the heart of his troubled life to work with the brush and that he was well in his fifties before he turned to the plastic art, by which he was to become famous even before his death. There will be eighty-seven pieces of statuary, in bronze for the most part, and notable among them will be four figures of heroic size. "The Monument to Labor"—it has been called "the symbol of his insight and his compassion"—will be represented. Of this great effort, which was never finished, four bas-reliefs in plaster will be shown.

The work of Meunier was brought to this country largely through the enthusiasm and energy of Miss Cornelia B. Sage, director of the Albright Gallery in Buffalo. It was a huge undertaking. The work was first shown in Buffalo, and in the interval has visited several cities. It comes here as the work of a sculptor practically new to New York. Meunier is not scattered through the many collections, private and public, in this country. Save for a few pieces in the home of Dr. Butler and others in the home of Hugo Reisinger, in Fifth Avenue, New York knows Meunier only by hearsay. While Miss Sage has brought the collection here and is in charge of it to-day, the catalogue has been written by Christian Brinton, and actively interested in the forthcoming exhibition is Edward R. Smith of the Avery Library.

"In the series of modern sculptors," said Mr. Smith before it was known that Columbia would offer the exhibition to New York, "Constantin Meunier ranks second only to Rodin in technical skill, power, and creative genius. Rodin and Meunier—these two are the masters of realism in sculpture. The work of Meunier is the Divina Commedia of modern industrialism. This basic field of elemental epic, the battle of the soul with fire and iron, belongs to him."

The Avery Library stands on the eastern side of that stretch of the Columbia campus north of the big central library. This is the first great art collection to be shown there, and follows upon the exhibition of the priceless Morgan Bibles last Fall.

ART NOTES.

Japanese Objects of the John H. Webster Collection to be Sold.

The second part of the John H. Webster collection will be sold at the Anderson Galleries on the afternoons and evenings of Jan. 22 and 23, and on the afternoon of Jan. 24, and is now on view at the galleries. The Japanese section contains a number of entertaining groups of classified objects. At the first session, for example, will be sold the Japanese combs in lacquer, ivory, ebony, and tortoise shell; the brush and ink holders which played so important a part in the daily life of the educated people, many extremely ornate in design; netsukes of wood, ivory and pottery, among which are found subjects as diverse as a dancing cat and a farmhouse, a bathing scene and a bug on a bean, realistic representation on this small scale having always been the delight and the bane of the Oriental craftsmen. The lacquers cover a wide field also, ranging from inros to temple boxes and sword scabbards.

The short swords and long swords of Japanese warriors form another group, which taken with the sword guards give a special interest to the collection on account of the fineness of the carvings and inlays. Most of the pottery is eighteenth or nineteenth century ware, and includes some beautiful Satsuma and a very rare old Seto vase of iridescent peacock glaze of about 1800.

The Chinese porcelain includes a small group of blue and white, several Famille Verte pieces, and about twenty monochromes. Among the jades is a rare antique bowl with a saucer to match, and a teakwood stand. The jade is the eggshell variety and of fine quality.

An item of interest is the section of old coins in gold and silver, one called "Imari Koban," which was used principally in Daimio's family more than three hundred years ago and of which a good specimen is seldom encountered.

Many of Mr. Webster's fine pieces came from the Bing, Waggaman, Dana, Bishop, and other renowned collections and will attract the attention of connoisseurs.

IN BISHOP GREER'S HONOR.

Celebration of His Ten Years' Episcopate on Jan. 26.

Invitations were sent out yesterday to more than a thousand clergymen and others to take part in a celebration of the ten years' episcopate of Bishop Greer on Jan. 26. The main celebration will be held in St. Bartholomew's Church, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, where the consecration of a decade ago took place.

Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, Bishop Perry of Rhode Island, Bishop Brewster of Connecticut, Bishop Burgess of Long Island, Bishop Lines of Newark, Bishop Scarborough of New Jersey, Bishop Nelson of Albany, and Bishop Rhineland of Pennsylvania, with all clergy of this New York diocese, have been invited, and are expected to take part in the religious service, which is a celebration of the Holy Communion, in the church at 11 o'clock. The lay delegates to the New York convention, all of the officials of the diocese, and some prominent representatives of other religious bodies, have been invited also. The choir will give the same music that it sang ten years ago.

To a reception in Hotel Biltmore that is planned to follow the service, more general invitations have been sent. Brief addresses will be made, and there will be present, it is expected, the trustees of institutions like the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the City Mission Society, the Seamen's Church Institute, and many others. Women prominent in the missionary, educational, and other work of the Episcopal Church in this city have also been invited.

'THE MERRY WHIRL' A GAY CARNIVAL

Junior League Gives Venetian, Oriental, and Other Dances on Stage at Waldorf.

SOCIETY AMATEURS EXCEL

Miss Julia Robbins, in Pierrot Costume, Opens Fete with Prologue—Maurice Roche Crowned King.

The grand ballroom at the Waldorf-Astoria was taxed to its capacity last night with a brilliant assembly, attracted by the annual entertainment of the Junior League, "The Merry Whirl," in which the principal débutantes of the season and the prominent members of the younger set appeared in a gay whirl of dances. There was a snap and go to the dances, and a point of excellence reached in the costuming, scenic and lighting effects far above the average of the usual society amateur entertainment.

The spectators, crowding the floor and every box to the top tier, a really representative audience of society, were taken by surprise by the spirit and novelty of the eight groups of dances presented on a large stage, with an augmented orchestra. The costumes were elaborate and picturesque, especially in the Venetian, Oriental, and Hungarian dances. In fact, it was nothing but dances, and as the foreword in the programme, with its attractive red cover page designed by Miss Marjorie Curtis, had it, "in the merry whirl of the dance the gayety of the nations has reached its climax of expression, so on this occasion we have taken the medium of the dance to render our services to charity." The philanthropies of the league, as is well known, are many.

Opening of the Fete.

First came the grand opening of the fête, incidental to the "merry whirl." In a prologue, before the curtain, Miss Julia Robbins, in a pierrot costume, recited verses by Gerald Murphy, and then came the ceremony of choosing and crowning the King. Maurice Roche, as King of the Carnival, received his crown and sceptre with composure, and seemed very much at ease with his trailing robe of royal purple and ermine.

In quick succession came the group of dances. The special dances in the Tarantella were cleverly done by Miss Margaret E. Trevor, Miss Amy B. Johnson, Charles E. Miller, and Morris M. Pryor, and Miss Margaret C. Henderson and Miss Dorothy Legg Howard won a tumult of applause in the tambourine dance.

The house wildly applauded the Reuben clog, as danced by Miss Mary C. Alexander and Sydney S. Breese, as a postlude to the Sunnybrook dance. Then came the swing song by Miss Marian Clark, while the girls in the Sunnybrook dance, in gingham frocks and sunbonnets, swung out over the footlights on swings illuminated with varied colored electric lights, which caught the fancy of the crowd.

The polo dance was a novelty, the girls and young matrons in Summer frocks and pink and blue parasols, while the young men were in polo attire. Miss Louise Freeman sang "Good-bye, Everybody," which was followed by Miss August Bishop and Count Alexander Salm. in a closing dance called "The Riding Lesson," in which they rode imaginary steeds and took the fence. The group finally wound up as two four-in-hands, with parasols as wheels.

Miss Clara Fargo and James C. Fargo, 2d, in the Maxixe Brésillienne specialty, won much applause, and afterward came the Hungarian dance, in which Miss Edith Mortimer, Miss Angelica S. Brown, Miss Claire Bird, Gerald Murphy, Francis Roche, and Richard Whitney distinguished themselves.

The Indian song and dance was highly picturesque, with a splendid pantomime and song done by Lawrence Butler. Mrs. Frederick Y. Dalziel and Sydney S. Breese gave a spirited and colored portrayal of the wigwam dance.

The Gondolier Dance.

A gondola, in a Venetian setting, was the background for the gondolier dance. Mrs. Walter N. Stillman and Mrs. Henry H. Rogers gave attractive dances in this group, and in the Oriental scene and dances which followed the height of color and splendor was reached. In this Miss Frances T. Breese and Miss Margaret F. Andrews, in an East Indian robe of silver, made a distinct impression in the snake charmers' dance. In the "danse du Paon," Miss Robbins and Horace C. Stebbins were spirited and graceful.

A voting contest followed the dances, the final result to be announced at the close of the performance to-night. This afternoon, as an added attraction, the children of society will appear in a dance called "French Dolls and Teddy Bears." General dancing and supper came after the last event on the programme.

The Entertainment Committee was composed of Miss Harriet Alexander, Chairman; Miss Beatrice C. Pratt, Treasurer; Miss Marie Louise Emmet, Secretary, and the Misses Carol A. Harriman, Grace R. Henry, Mary Alexander, Maud Coster, Margaret Potter, Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, and Mrs. Sumner Gerard.

There were booths all around the ballroom, and girls in costume selling candies, cigarettes, and flowers. A soda fountain did a rushing business, and many chances were sold for the automobile raffle.

The following were the groups of dances, organizers, and participants:

Tarantella, organized by Miss Margaret Trevor—Misses Joy Waldron Williams, Mercedes de Acosta, Genevieve Sanford, Amy Bradish Johnson, Margaret E. Trevor, Margaret C. Henderson, Mildred G Rice, Dorothy Legg Howard, Gwendolin Condon, Nathalie Slocum, and Messrs. William Palmer, Shippen Davis, Edward Shippen, Morris M. Pryor, Vivian J. The romance began two years ago. Her parents, who are now living in Hinsdale, Mich., while not opposing the match, thought their daughter too young and sent her to travel in Europe, hoping to divert her mind from matrimony. Mr. Davis followed, coming to London the day before the new year; but Miss Turgeon had gone to Paris for the holidays. Mr. Davis followed her to Paris and pressed his suit, with the result that the marriage is fixed for St. James's Church, Piccadilly, at noon to-morrow.

Miss Turgeon has been staying in London with her friends Mr. and Mrs. Henry John Hill of Finchley Road. Mrs. Hill is an American. The bride will be given away by Mr. Hill. Whitney and a letter of Douglas to Henry A. Wise of Virginia. Douglas's letter is dated Chicago, Nov. 7, 1858. It tells of his election as United States Senator and ends as follows:

"Whatever may be the result in the other Northern States you may always rely upon Illinois as being faithful to the Democracy against the assaults and treasonable purposes of the Abolitionists and their allies.'"

Walter Lillvik gave $205 for an album containing about 200 small photographs of distinguished Americans. C. Hines obtained for $330 a lock of hair, cut from Lincoln's head after he was shot. It is in a gold case. Gen. James Grant Wilson, in his papers on Major Lambert in the publications of the Lincoln Fellowship of New York, 1913, says:

"During the last two decades preceding the death on Saturday morning, June 1, 1912, I occasionally had an opportunity of adding some acceptable Lincoln items to Major Lambert's large collection, but the greatest service of this character, in his judgment, was acquiring for him at a cost of $600 the large blood-stained lock of hair cut from the President's head when the surgeon was examining the wound made by the assassin's bullet. It was given to Dr. Taft, an army surgeon, among the first to reach the victim, and who was assisting the chief surgeon in charge. Taft's son offered the precious relic to me and I secured it for the Major, who deemed it his most precious Lincoln treasure, for locks of his hair are more difficult to obtain than those of Washington."

The Rosenbach Company of Philadelphia paid $150 for a sleeve button worn by Lincoln at Ford's Theatre, Washington, the night of the assassination. It was broken into two pieces by the surgeon in his hurry to read the President's pulse. The two pieces are in a silver box with plate glass cover.

George D. Smith paid $505 for the inkstand used by Lincoln for many years in his office at Springfield, Ill. W. D. Day obtained for $265 the revolving arm-chair used by Lincoln in his Springfield office. The Rosenbach Company gave $435 for an oakwood cane presented to Lincoln by William O. Snyder.

An ash tray made from tin from Lincoln's Springfield house, brought $10. Three small pieces of wallpaper from his bedroom in the same house went for $1. The same sum was paid for fringe from his hearse. A section of wood from a tree planted by him at Springfield in 1856 sold for $4.

Mr. Smith paid $125 for Lincoln's own copy of the speech of Senator Douglas against the admission of Kansas under the Lecomption Constitution, octavo, Washington, 1858. R. Collins gave $180 for a notebook kept by Dr. Charles S. Taft in 1865, the first seventeen pages of which contain an account of the events following the shooting of Lincoln, as witnessed by Dr. Taft. Mr. Smith obtained for $120 the original autograph manuscript of Walt Whitman's lecture on the "Death of Abraham Lincoln," written in February, 1879, on many slips of paper, and mounted on seventeen quarto leaves.

BERMUDA FULL OF VISITORS.

Bridal Couples Among 900 Arrivals from New York Last Week.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 13.—That many are planning to escape the balance of the cold weather in the States, now that the holiday season is over, is evidenced by the hundreds who are arriving in Bermuda each week, to say nothing of the heavy bookings for the next two months. The three steamers from New York the last week brought between 800 and 900 people, while they took away less than one-third of that number. At this rate the little island will soon be taxed to its utmost capacity.

A number of 1914 bridal couples have arrived, among those on the last Bermudian being Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding of Chicago, who are at the Princess, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ludlow Fowler, Jr., of New York, who are at the Hamilton Hotel. Mrs. Spalding, who was Miss Jean Whiting of Chicago before her marriage on Jan. 1, is well known in Bermuda, having spent the Winter of 1912 here, at which time she won the mixed doubles with Kenneth Trimingham in the Hamilton Hotel Tennis Tournament. Mr. Spalding, who was graduated from Yale last June, was Captain of the Yale football team a year ago. Mrs. Fowler was Miss Charlotte A. Cram of New York before her marriage on Jan. 5 to Mr. Fowler, who is a son of Surrogate and Mrs. Robert L. Fowler.

If the shade of Tom Moore, the famous Irish poet, haunts his old Bermuda home, Walsingham, it must have had a few severe shocks last week at the goings on in that usually quiet spot, which has become of late a popular rendezvous for those desiring luncheon, afternoon tea, or a shore dinner. For woodland nymphs, water sprites, and other fairy characters have glided in and out around the paths, the cave, the calabash tree, and the deep pool in a manner truly startling for this age—until there falls on one's ear the click, click, click of the moving-picture camera, which explains it all.

Charles Rittenhouse Pendleton.

Charles Rittenhouse Pendleton, for fifteen years editor of The Macon Daily Telegraph, of which he was part owner, died on Thursday at his home in Macon, Ga. Mr. Pendleton attracted widespread attention in the South and the North after the second defeat of William Jennings Bryan for President. Mr. Pendleton had supported Bryan with reluctance, and he made an appeal to the South to secede from the Bryan Democracy of the West and the North and run Southern candidates for President on a sound money platform. Mr. Pendleton was born on a farm in Effingham County, Ga., June 26, 1850. He was the brother of Louis Beauregard Pendleton, author of "The Sons of Ham," "In Assyrian Tents," and other works. Entering the newspaper business as a young man, Mr. Pendleton became editor of The Macon Daily Telegraph in 1896. He was a member of the Georgia House of Representatives 1882-83. He also was a member of the Overbrook Golf and Manufacturers' Clubs of Philadelphia.

JOHN FOX, FRIEND OF CROKER, IS DEAD

NO CONTEST OF HIS WILL

His Son Denies Report That There Was Any Trouble Between His Father and Himself.

John Fox, former State Senator and Congressman, and for many years President of the National Democratic Club, died yesterday morning at his home, 10 West Fiftieth Street, from pneumonia. Mr. Fox had been ill for several weeks. At his bedside were his niece, Mrs. John F. O'Brien, and his granddaughter, Miss Eleanor Fox. His son, John Fox, who was out of the city, arrived at his home last night.

Mr. Fox was 78 years old, and for many years was prominent in New York politics. He and Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, were intimate friends. Mr. Fox was elected President of the National Democratic Club in 1893 and served until 1911. He was a member of the State Senate in 1874 and 1875.

"The Harmonizer of Tammany Hall" was a name given to Mr. Fox during the days of his intimate association with Mr. Croker because of his successful efforts in settling disputes within the Fourteenth Street organization. He was a factor on one occasion, however, in one of the most bitter fights in that organization. In 1875 he disagreed with friends of Samuel J. Tilden over the management of Tammany Hall, and Tammany met several subsequent defeats. As a member of the old Board of Supervisors Mr. Fox fought the Tweed ring, and after the downfall of Tweed the Tammany Society appointed a committee of seven to reorganize Tammany Hall's political body, and Mr. Fox was a member of the committee.

Mr. Fox served as the private secretary to Gen. Daniel E. Sickles and afterward he represented Gen. Sickles's district in Congress.

He made many trips to Europe with Richard Croker, and after the former Tammany chief's retirement often visited him in Ireland. He was wealthy and owned a country home, Foxhurst, near Baldwins, L. I.

His son denied last night that he intended to contest his father's will.

"There is absolutely no truth in the rumor," said Mr. Fox. "I cannot imagine how such a story started. I am in complete harmony regarding all the arrangements that have been made, and it is cruel to say that there ever was any trouble between my father and myself."

Mr. Fox's funeral will be held on Monday at 10 A. M. from St. Patrick's Cathedral.

RUDOLPH WURLITZER DEAD.

Pioneer Maker's Drums and Trumpets Were Used in Union Army.

Rudolph Wurlitzer, founder of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company, manufacturers of musical instruments, having branch houses in this and other cities extending from coast to coast, died Wednesday night at his home at the Aburndale, Cincinnati, Ohio. The name of Rudolph Wurlitzer is familiar to every drummer boy and trumpeter who served in the Union Army during the civil war, for the veteran builder of musical instruments in general and wind instruments in particular received the contract from the Federal Government to furnish its armies with drums and trumpets. At the present time the Wurlitzer trumpets are used in excess of any other make in the United States Army and in the State Militia.

Rudolph Wurlitzer was born on Feb. 1, 1831, at Schoeneck, Saxony. His ancestors for generations had been builders of musical instruments, and one of his forbears was Hans Adam Wurlitzer, the violin maker celebrated throughout the fatherland, who was born in 1732, almost a hundred years before Rudolph Wurlitzer. Mr. Wurlitzer completed his education at the Technical University at Leipsic, and came to the United States. Two years lates he went into the musical instrument industry, and in 1856 he established his own business an an importer of musical instruments.

IDONIA:

A Romance of Old London

By ARTHUR F. WALLIS

A tale of love and roguery in the days of Queen Elizabeth.

The New York Times review is typical:

"He enters the field of historical romance with a step so assured that he must be placed at once in the first rank of his contemporaries. . . . 'Idonia' has freshness and originality in plot, incidents and telling. Mr. Wallis's distinctive literary gift—and it is one that the world is always glad to welcome—is that quality of imagination which enables the author to see old things in a new light and invest them with new interest and new charm. By virtue of it he recreates life in Elizabethan London with a reality that few writers of romance have equaled. . . . The book will be enjoyed for its literary charm as well as for its interesting story and its graphic presentation of life in old London."

ALL DO NOT FAVOR STATE REGULATION

COMMITTEE HEARS MANY

Department Store Bankers Would Welcome Remedial Legislation.

The Senate Committee on Banks and Banking got suggestions at its hearing in the City Hall yesterday from small private east side banks and bankers and department store banks as well as from the largest banking houses in Wall Street. Private banking methods were discussed with a view to remedial legislation for State regulation of these banks to prevent a recurrence of the situation following the Henry Siegel & Co. failure.

The hearing produced a great divergence of opinion and recommendation, although most of the bankers agreed that some sort of regulation or State supervision seemed to be necessary.

Senator H. W. Pollock presided. Daniel P. Hays examined the witnesses. At the outset, commenting on an editorial criticism of the committee, Mr. Hays said no class of private bankers was to be exempt from examination by the committee.

J. B. Greenhut of the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company, was first called. He said the banking department of his department store was conducted by a corporation consisting of himself, B. J. Greenhut, Charles A. Cooper, and Jerome Siegel. He was unwilling to tell the committee, except privately, the number and amount of deposits in the bank, but said the average deposit was less than $500. He explained that the banking business was entirely separate from the business of the department store; that all the money was deposited in State or national banks, or invested in securities, railroad bonds, or commercial paper, and none of it in any business in which members of the firm were interested. Loans were very seldom made to members of the firm, and then always secured by collateral.

Mr. Greenhut said the members of the firm were personally liable for the protection of depositors, and that their assets would pay off the depositors in case of necessity. The bank at present paid 4 per cent. interest in semi-annual payments. Mr. Greenhut said he believed legislation should be enacted putting private bankers under State supervision, and that his bank was willing to be so supervised.

Jesse I. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. said the firm did not conduct a banking business, but received deposits from customers of the store and paid 4 per cent. interest.

"We announce to the public that we receive deposits to facilitate purchasing," he said. "We do not give the depositors a book. They can purchase against their account, and we pay an annual bonus of 2 per cent. on the net annual purchases in addition to the interest. We try to eliminate all accounts which are not used for purchases. We consider the deposits in our bank really as prepayments on purchases."

Mr. Straus said the deposit accounts amounted to about 12 per cent. of the purchases made in the store. He was of the opinion that the abnormally large rate of interest offered by some bankers was a lure, and that legislation should be enacted limiting the rate of interest and the amount of deposits.

Marvan H. Hauser of Zimmermann & Forshay, bankers and brokers, testified that most of the depositors in the banking department of his firm were customers of the brokerage department. In case of need, he said, all the assets of the firm would be turned over to cover the depositors, and it always had enough to cover the total of deposits.

"Private bankers should be classified," he said, "and the committee should not put all bankers in the same class. The small east side bankers should be supervised for the protection of ignorant depositors. The intelligent Wall Street depositors, on the other hand, need no protection because they are able to think for themselves. A man who deposits $10,000 knows what is to be done with it, but the man who deposits $10 is attracted by abnormal interest. A department store ought not to be permitted to take deposits. Legislation governing the big private bankers would hamper their business."

In answer to questions from Senator Pollock, the witness admitted that no reputable bank could object to supervision by the State.

Lionello Perera, a private banker of 69 Wall Street, also urged that a difference of classification should be observed in any legislation that might be enacted tending to bring private banks under State regulation.

Meyer Jarmulowsky, the east side banker, was opposed to State regulation of private bankers like himself, on the ground that they had started in business on the present basis and thus acquired vested rights which it would cause hardship to disturb.

"Doesn't the security of depositors in such a bank depend entirely on the honesty and conservatism and business wisdom of the banker?" asked Mr. Hays.

The witness admitted that it did.

"I think the manner of investment of the money of depositors could and should be regulated by law," he said. "I would favor the partial and gradual elimination of real estate investments, and I think investments could be limited to first mortgages on real estate as in State banks, after a while. I would also recommend a change in the present methods of keeping book values of securities."

Paul E. Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. testified that his firm did a general banking business, primarily for merchants, and that it had practically no deposit accounts with the general public. It issued no passbooks, he said, and had checking accounts only for foreign collections. It was not restricted by law. His suggestion was:

"A difference should be made between general banking business and bankers who accept deposits and pay interests on small accounts. The size of deposits should not be made the determining factor as a basis of regulation, but the size of the balance on which the bank allows interest."

Samuel J. Bloomingdale of Bloomingdale Brothers' Department store, testified that the bank there was separate from the store, and had about 2,000 depositors. He said he would tell the committee privately the amount of deposits. He said the bank paid 4 per cent. interest in semi-annual payments; that it invested its deposits in railroad short term notes, loans on railroad notes, bonds, and commercial paper; that it did not use the bank's money in the store or for members of the firm. He said he would gladly welcome any regulation, and believed all private bankers should be regulated in the same way, whether they paid interest on sums of 2,000 or more.

James R. Clarke of Clarke Brothers, 154 Nassau Street, testified that his bank was without restriction by the State, filing only a $100,000 bond with the Controller. He admitted that the depositors had nothing to rely on except the honesty and ability of the banker, but was strenuously opposed to any regulation by the State.

Wilbur C. Fisk of Harvey Fisk & Sons, 62 Cedar Street, was the last banker called. He said practically all his depositors were customers who dealt in securities through his firm, and that the bank received deposits only unwillingly. As remedies for such cases as the Siegel bank case, he suggested:

"The banking business is not properly a function of mercantile concern. While some such firms unquestionably would not violate banking principles, the temptation is always there to use the banking business to help the mercantile business."

The committee adjourned till next Thursday morning.

AMENDMENTS ABOUT READY.

Van Tuyl Commission Prepares Banking Law Changes.

At the conclusion of yesterday's session of the Van Tuyl Commission to revise the State banking laws, Chairman A. Barton Hepburn, said that the commission had talked over the proposed amendments with representatives of savings banks, banks of discount and deposit, and private bankers. He added that certain parts of the tentative draft would have to be rewritten, but by a process of elimination the commission had got its task down to a point where counsel for the commission will put the amendments desired into finished form.

Mr. Hepburn said he believed that after next Friday's meeting the proposed amendments would be ready for submission in printed form to banking interests, through their organizations, for review and comment before being presented to the Legislature.

OUST DEPUTY APPRAISERS.

Federal Patronage Distribution Seems to be on the Way.

Rumors in circulation for several days that the return of President Wilson from his sojourn at Pass Christian would be followed by wholesale displacements of Republican officeholders in the local Customs Service were confirmed in part yesterday, when letters, sent by direction of the President, were received by Deputy Appraisers Frank N. Petrie and Harry B. Stowell, inviting their resignations. Both men complied with the request, the resignations to become effective on Jan. 20.

Frederick A. Higgins, Appraiser of the Port, said that the work of his Deputies had been entirely satisfactory. Further than this the Appraiser had nothing to say. In other quarters, however, it was said that the places were desired by the Administration for patronage purposes and that Democrats approved by Senator O'Gorman would be named to fill the vacancies. Mr. Stowell has been in charge of the fifth, or "art," division of the Appraiser's office for seven years, while Mr. Petrie has been at the head of the eighth, or "grocery," division for about the same length of time.

As Deputy Appraisers, Petrie and Stowell's salaries have been $4,000 a year. The men to be named in their stead by the President will be designated as Assistant Appraisers, with compensation at the rate of $3,500. The designation as Deputy is vested in the Appraiser, and carries an additional $500. Six other Republican Assistant Appraisers are said to be slated for early removal. Recently the President named two Democrats as Assistant Appraisers, but divisions formerly existing were revived for their benefit, without disturbing the Republican heads of divisions.

In addition to the Assistant Appraiserships, the President still has the naming of a Democratic Appraiser and Surveyor at salaries of $7,000, together with a new Internal Revenue Collector to succeed Charles W. Anderson.

MEDALS FOR SEA RESCUES.

Life-Saving Benevolent Association Honors Officers of the Gregory.

Capt. William T. Aspinall and his three officers on the Gregory, Richard H. Buck, John S. Williams, and Frederick D. Roberts, received gold medals from the Life Saving Benevolent Association yesterday for their bravery in rescuing five survivors of the oil tank steamer Oklahoma from a lifeboat in a gale on Jan. 4. The Captain's medal was inscribed, "In recognition of his humanity and able seamanship."

The medals for Chief Officer Buck, Second Officer Williams, and Third Officer Roberts bore the words, "In recognition of his humanity and great courage in leaping into the sea."

In reply to the address of President A. A. Raven of the association, who presented the medals, Capt. Aspinall said, "It was just a little thing; what we would want anybody to do for us, pulling those fellows in."

TO TEST DANCE HALL LAW.

Manager Jardin de Dance Arrested on Mrs. Israel's Complaint.

Edward E. Pidgeon, General Manager of the Jardin de Danse, in Times Square, was held in $500 bail for special Sessions yesterday by Magistrate Murphy in the Tombs Court on the complaint of Mrs. Charles H. Israels, Chairman of the Committee of Amusement Resources for Working Girls. Mrs. Israels charged Pidgeon with a violation of Section 1,462, which prohibits the giving of free instruction in dancing in a place where liquor is sold.

The case was brought to the attention of Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger, and, at a conference between him and Pidgeon, it was decided to make a test of the section, which, according to the manager of the Jardin de Danse, was never intended to apply to present conditions.

SIEGEL DEPOSITORS AGREE ON DEMANDS

They Will Accept Sixty Cents on the Dollar, with the Balance of Their Claims Secured.

HOPE CREDITORS WILL UNITE

Those Concerned in Reorganization Assert That Only In This Way Can the Best Terms Be Obtained.

The Committee of Ten appointed by the depositors of the failed bank of Henry Siegel & Co. visited the office of their counsel, Coudert Brothers, yesterday afternoon, to instruct John P. Murray of that firm as to their demands in connection with any reorganization of the Siegel properties. The knowledge that a tentative offer of a cash payment of 30 per cent. had been made to their attorney had aroused the hopes of the depositors.

Mr. Murray was informed that they would consent to a payment in sixty days of 100 cents on the dollar. Mr. Murray suggested that they name the lowest as well as the highest figures on which they would consent to a settlement. Then the members of the committee announced that they would agree to a cash payment of 60 cents on the dollar, provided the balance of the claims were secured by first-class securities. That is the basis of settlement which Mr. Murray will announce to the creditors' committee and the principals of the Siegel bank at their meeting next Thursday.

It was unknown yesterday how many of the 15,000 depositors of the Siegel bank would join with the present group under Coudert Brothers, and whether the group would be large enough to make possible the proposed settlement with the creditors' committee.

The uncertainty in this respect was increased by the report that persons were offering to buy up claims of depositors for 50 cents on the dollar at the loft where the temporary headquarters of the failed bank have been established. It was pointed out by all concerned in the reorganization process of the Siegel enterprises yesterday that unless the depositors acted as a unit the entire settlement plan might be upset.

At a meeting of the representatives of the different trade associations whose members are creditors of the Siegel interests, at the rooms of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, in the Fifth Avenue Building, yesterday afternoon, resolutions were adopted in behalf of the twelve organizations represented, pledging complete co-operation and confidence in the creditors' committee of which Pierre Jay of the Bank of Manhattan Company is Chairman. It was also decided at the conference that the managers of the various associations shall at once request their members to have their claims forwarded to the conference, in order that they may be transmitted to Mr. Jay's committee through the three members of it who also are members of the conference.

The receivers denied in Boston yesterday that the Henry Siegel Company of that city was insolvent, in answer to a creditors' petition filed there asking that the firm be adjudged bankrupt. The receivers added that to declare the Boston firm bankrupt would interefere with the best administration of the affairs of the other Siegel concerns that are now embarrassed.

MITCHEL LEAGUES REPORT.

Collected Only $13,611, and Vincent Astor Gave $3,000.

The Mitchel Leagues of New York, organized during the recent campaign to beat Tammany, filed with the County Clerk yesterday a list of receipts and disbursements. The report was belated, but it followed close on the heels of some talk about an investigation by District Attorney Whitman into the matter.

Only $13,611 was collected and $13,603.53 was spent. There is a balance of $7.47. The amount was collected between Aug. 23 and Dec. 23. After the campaign was over a deficit of $4,600 was discovered, and this money was made up. This deficit may explain a $3,000 contribution made by Vincent Astor.

The other large contributors were G. O. Zeller, $350; Alexander Wilson, $2,250; M. Norden, $600; George W. Perkins, $1,000; M. Goodman, $1,000; C. H. Dodge, $1,100; Henry Clews, $100; A. Bustanoby, $350; Timothy Healy, $500; W. Hammerstein, $200; Salvin Brothers, $250; F. F. Proctor, $500; J. Reisenweber, $1,000; Felix Isman, $100, and A. Lewisohn, $100.

The largest disbursements were for buttons and badges and other advertising paraphernalia, salaries, and rent of offices. The officers of the leagues are given as Eric L. Boetzel, Chairman of the Campaign Committee; Vincent Astor, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Charles R. Macauley, Treasurer, and Albert E. Ullman, Secretary.

In order to start the work going, $1,100 was contributed as follows: Charles S. Levy, $250; E. L. Boetzel, $500; William Van Elm, $250, and Albert E. Ullman, $100.

Rhodes Scholarship for R. R. Lytle, Jr.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—The Rhodes Scholarship for 1914 was awarded to-day to Richard Ridgely Lytle, Jr., of New York City by the State committee. He was graduated from Princeton, where for four years he was editor of The Daily Princetonian. He is 23 years old. The alternate chosen is Archie Austin Coates of Columbia University. There were six applications.

DAM'S COLLAPSE GRADUAL.

This and Farmer's Ride to Give Warning Saved Many Lives.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 16.—Allen L. Luke, General Superintendent of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and one of the owners, returned tonight from a visit to the Stony River dam, which broke yesterday. Mr. Luke says that only six tiers of the dam went out, or about ninety feet. The foundation remained intact.

Mr. Luke says the trouble came from the dam being undermined, and this is hard to explain, for the foundation is as deep as sixty feet at most points on a solid rock.

The total damage, including that to the dam and the Western Maryland Railway, is placed at $250,000. The general property loss is trivial. This is accounted for by the fact that the dam gave way in sections, allowing only part of the water to run down the gorge at a time.

The man who rode twenty miles through the night to Schell to give warning of the breaking of the dam, thereby saving many lives, is J. G. Hanline, a farmer who lives in the mountains above the dam. From Schell the warning was spread from town to town along the river by a signal brigade of telephone girls organized by the residents for just such an emergency.

DELAYS THAW BAIL CASE.

Judge Aldrich Will Not Act Until After Habeas Corpus Hearing.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 16.—The matter of admitting Harry K. Thaw to bail will not be decided for several weeks. Judge Edgar Aldrich said to-day that there would be no hearing on the matter of bail until the final hearing on the questions involved in the extradition and habeas corpus proceedings.

The Judge granted an extension of twenty days to Thaw's counsel to file their brief in the main case. This brief was due last week, but the lawyers were unable to comply with the court's order, and asked for more time. It is probable that the hearing on the main case, and also on the matter of bail will be held in February.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—In a communication to the Legislature next week, Attorney General Carmody will assert that United States Judge Aldrich in the United States District Court in New Hampshire, is without authority to entertain the sanity proceedings recently instituted by attorneys for Harry K. Thaw. No Federal authority, he will maintain, has a right to pass on the mental condition of Thaw.

KENTUCKIANS DINE.

Senator James and Attorney General McReynolds Praise Wilson.

United States Senator Ollie M. James and Attorney General James C. McReynolds of Kentucky were the guests of honor at the tenth annual dinner of the Kentuckians at the Plaza last night. Members of the society were accompanied by their wives, and dancing followed the speeches, which were brief. Senator James, expressing the belief that the women were more interested in the dance than the speeches, remarked:

"No Kentucky orator ever had the temerity to speak against the tango.

"The lessons the President has learned," said Senator James, "is the one which pleases him most, the desire to serve his fellow-man to the best of his ability. Equal rights and fair play in the marts of trade is his motto.

James C. McReynolds referred to the President as the "splendid leader" in national life; a man who knows his own mind and has a well-defined policy.

ARGUE THEATRE INJUNCTION

Hammerstein and Belasco Differ on Effect of Moving Pictures.

Oscar Hammerstein's application for an injunction restraining David Belasco from exhibiting moving pictures in the Republic Theatre was argued yesterday before Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court. The attorneys for Mr. Hammerstein said that the theatre had been leased to Mr. Belasco about ten years ago, and that the lease had still about two and a half years to run. There was a stipulation in the lease providing that only first-class theatrical plays should be produced.

Mr. Hammerstein was to receive, besides the rent, a commission on the receipts. These receipts were sometimes as much as $1,000 a week, but this was only possible where seats brought as much as $2.50 each. Now that moving pictures were being shown and the seats were sold for 25 cents, Mr. Hammerstein's commissions had fallen to less than $100 a week, they said.

Counsel for Mr. Belasco said that Daniel Frohman had introduced moving pictures into first-class theatres without any fear that it would lower the character of the theatre or injure the property.

AUCTION DEVELOPMENTS

Distinctive Features

It is the only book which contains an explanation of the new laws, why they have been adopted, and why other changes have not been made.

It is the only book giving a thorough and complete explanation of the Spade bids.

No other book has ever attempted to consider questions upon which writers disagree, to give both sides, and to make recommendations.

It is the only book which gives absolutely non-partisan consideration to the Nullo. Other books consider it from the standpoint of either an ardent advocate or a violent opponent. "Auction Developments" states its advantages and its disadvantages with equal force; gives information as to how the Nullo should be declared, and how it is declared by expert players.

It is the only book giving the details of Duplicate and Progressive Auction.

The chapter for the beginner, which is written for the real beginner, that is, the man who has absolutely no knowledge of the game, does not appear in any other book, and this is the best possible way for everyone without a teacher to learn Auction. The glossary of Auction terms is also valuable for those not familiar with the game.

CONTEST FAIR ESTATE.

Court Holds Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Must Answer.

Mrs. Theresa A. Oelrichs, widow of Hermann Oelrichs, and Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt, wife of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., must answer charges of fraud and conspiracy made against them by their cousins, Theodore W. and George Elmer Lefler and Mrs. Mabel C. Towle, according to a decision of the Appellate Division yesterday. The court upholds the right of the Leflers and Mrs. Towle to file an amended complaint containing the fraud and conspiracy charges in their suit to recover an interest, estimated at $492,000, in the ten-million-dollar estate left by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, the parents of Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt, who were killed in a motor-car accident near Paris, France, in August, 1902.

The fraud and conspiracy charge deals with the circumstances of the probate of Mr. Fair's will in California. The Leflers and Mrs. Towle, who are nephews and a niece of Mrs. Fair, allege that the courts were deceived as to the residence of the Fairs, which they assert was in New York County, and not in California, and as to which of the Fairs died first. They assert that Mrs. Fair outlived her husband, and consequently inherited his estate, which should then have been divided among her heirs. The California courts held that Fair survived his wife, and divided the property of both under his will, which omitted the present litigants. Justice Seabury, in the Supreme Court, signed the order from which Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt appealed, and which permitted the pleading of the alleged fraud and conspiracy.

DR. DANA ATTACKS OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM

American Students Are Not Made to Study Hard Enough, Neurologist Insists.

MENTAL WORK BENEFICIAL

School Year Too Short, He Tells Teachers—Tilts at Dr. Eliot—Europe Far Ahead.

Dr. Charles L. Dana, the neurologist, told the members of the Schoolmasters' Association at their diner at the Yale Club last night that he could answer with authority the much-discussed question, "Is the American schoolboy overworked and likely to break down because of the tasks imposed on him by the present methods?" And then forthwith he gave his answer.

"Overworked!" he said. "Why, he isn't even educated. In the course of thirty years' practice I can remember only one boy who suffered because of overwork, and he had weak eyes. That, in fact, was his principal complaint. I don't know any group of human beings, unless they are the college students, who find themselves less overtaxed."

Dr. Dana presented such a carefully prepared argument that he had the schoolmasters at their wits' end to frame a reply. One of those who responded was Dean Frederick P. Keppel of Columbia. He said, with a smile, that he was crushed to the point where his tissues showed no resilience. A steady attack on the American educational system was kept up by the physician. Here are some of his sallies:

"It has seemed to me that these institutions (the secondary schools) furnish the one bright spot shining out in a rather gloomy educational work. They have sent out a distinct radiance between the dawdling and uncertain policies of the elementary schools and the crudity and foolishness of the American college education, particularly since it felt the almost mortuary touch of President Eliot thirty years ago.

"Let me assume that boys are not either broken down or educated, but are two years behind in the educational race. Now, as according to the Binet-Simon scale, children if three years behind in mental age are feeble-minded, are not our boys at 18 dangerously near fatuity? And since in an American college this mental retard is not lessened, but, as a rule, increased, it follows that our American graduate belongs to the feeble-minded classes as measured by the Binet-Simon or other intelligence tests.

"The American boy is not allowed to work more than five days in the week and not over four or five hours each day. He is not allowed unless he is behind to work during vacation, and at the slightest indisposition he is put to bed. There is a sort of sickly sentimentality toward the growing boy on the part of American parents.

"The idea is prevalent that study is a dangerous thing to furnish to a boy; that hard mental work should be given to him only under the most careful conditions, and should be taken from him at the least excuse. The European idea is that after the age of ten a child is able to do hard work and ought to do it. The American idea is that he is able to do some work and ought to be persuaded to do it.

"We all know that the college boy of to-day is not educated; that he does not want to be educated; he just wants to graduate and make his letter or his secret society, and that the result of this superficiality is showing its mark on our social and political life to-day.

"I believe that medical opinion will support the educators to-day in taking the boy of ten and making him work till he makes up the years he is now foolishly losing.

"It seems to me that none of the arguments excuses the incompleteness of the education of the American youth or is adequate to justify it. We are too sentimental toward the child, and too much stress is laid upon their caprices and their alleged nervosities. I hope therefore that you gentlemen who are shaping our schoolboys' development at an especially important part of life will remember that that tender plant, the American youth, has a brain that is not overworked, and that it sadly needs the influences of a sympathetic and intelligent, but hard, hard taskmaster."

A school year of but 900 to 1,000 hours was ridiculous, said Dr. Dana. Mental work, he said, was not dangerous, but absolutely beneficial, and to permit a child to remain away from study during the entire Summer was a serious mistake. The trouble was, he said, that we do not break the boys down enough. Conditions as found here, he said, did not exist in Germany, France, and other foreign countries.

Dr. Ira S. Wile of the Board of Education said he agreed with Dr. Dana in the statement that mental overwork was not one of the sins of school education. He added, however, that the physicians were the ones who had spread the belief that there was danger of breakdown by intense work, and that parents had accepted that doctrine.

Dean Keppel asserted that the "sons of rest in college" were not the most conspicuous members of the community, and he thought they were becoming less and less important and influential.

"We still need a warning, and we are getting it," he said. "But I am optimistic of the coming of a new attitude of mind on the part of the college boys on their responsibility to themselves and to the community. I believe the parents of the boys are also slowly and dimly coming to see the light. But a schoolmasters' association meeting is not the place for apologies on the part of a college dean."

Dr. Rowland Godfrey Freeman spoke about the relation of contagious diseases to the school. The scientific ventilating devices, he said, were to his mind responsible in a large measure for the lack of fresh air in the classroom. He believed in opening the windows.

"BLEACHING DAY," $810.

$650 Paid for the Sorolla "Landscape" at American Galleries.

The Bloemers "Bleaching Day" brought the highest price of the Redman & O'Day sale at the American Art Galleries last evening, going to John Levy for $810. The Sorolla "Landscape" brought the second highest price, $650, given by A. A. Healy of the Brooklyn Institute. The second Sorolla of the collection, "Spanish Girl," went to Merry for $220. These were, Auctioneer Thomas R. Kirby said in selling them, with one exception, a single example of a Sorolla disposed of at a previous sale in the same galleries, the only paintings of the artist sold at public sale in this country.

Childe Hassam's "Nocturne-Montmartre" went to E. G. O'Reilly for $200, and "Summer Breeze," by the same artist, went to the Holland Galleries for $200. Hassam's "Rainy Evening" brought $175. Blakelock's "Golden Sky" went to John A. Philbrick for $210, and Mrs. Bartlett Arkell paid $285 for Hassam's "Tanglewood." "Apple Blossoms," by George Henry Smillie, went to A. M. Henry for $130, and the same buyer paid $125 for Giuseppi Signorini's "Hillside Farms." Leonard Ochtman's "A Frosty Morning" went to Mr. Henry for $475.

The two paintings by Marcius-Simons, "La Notte del Giorno del Grollo" and "A Roman Fete," went to Morris of London for, respectively, $310 and $340. Mrs. Arkell paid $375 for the Julian Rix "Green Vales and Blue Hills," and John A. Philbrick gave $300 for John A. Truesdell's "Calves at Rest," and $300 for Edwin Lord Weeks's "Traveling Horsemen."

The returns for the evening were $6,300 and for the sale $8,909. The pictures from an old country mansion, which were also sold during the evening, brought $1,5[illegible]. The highest price was given for a "Portrait of a Nobleman with Sword," Flemish School, $[illegible].

AWARDS FOR NAVY SHELLS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Secretary Daniels to-day put the finishing strokes on contracts for naval projectiles and in doing so took advantage of the clause providing that he could increase the amounts on which bids were made by 20 per cent. if he so desired. In every award Mr. Daniels availed himself of this clause and increased the grand total of the contracts to $1,917,340.

"The same quantity of shells if bought at last year's prices," said Mr. Daniels, "would have cost the department $3,025,200. We have saved just $1,107,860."

The various awards as finally made to-day were as follows:

DRY GOODS OUTLOOK.

More Customers in Market—Silk Orders Expand.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"There has been some improvement in the dry goods business during the past week. More customers have been in the market than during the corresponding period a year ago, and the business done by our traveling representatives compares most favorably with the same period, while cash receipts show a slight increase.

"In nearly all departments of our business there seems to be a prevailing optimism concerning future business in general.

"In the silks a greater volume of business has been booked for January and February delivery than for the corresponding period of several years past.

"There will be many early showings of the Spring and Summer silks, as requests are numerous to hurry forward shipments. While there has developed some demand for chiffon taffetas in fine Swiss qualities, crepe meteors, charmeuse, and other satin-faced goods are the big staples. All printed effects on crepe de chine grounds, radiums, and foulards are much favored by the new styles. Tinsel effects and Persian ideas in novelties will be used for trimming purposes."

MAKING CIGARS IN BOND.

Guedalla & Co. the First Firm to Get Privilege—Will Cut Price.

The Treasury Department has approved the bond executed by Guedalla & Co., Inc., which permits that firm to manufacture its cigars in bond, as provided for under the new tariff, in its factory, 403 East Sixty-second Street. The Guedalla firm is the first in this city to apply for the bonding privilege, and the manufacturing will commence on Monday.

N. E. Guedalla, Secretary of the company, said yesterday that the plan of manufacturing cigars in bond of imported tobacco, and under the supervision of a Government Inspector, would assure the consuming public that no adulterants or combinations were used.

Mr. Guedalla also said that the greater proportion of cigars that were sold for clear Havana contained a greater or less proportion of substitute tobacco, not grown in Cuba.

"Under the manufacturing bond plan," he went on, "the consumer will be certain that he will get a real Havana cigar, exactly as if it were made in Cuba, and at a considerably lower price than that asked for the imported cigar.

"The American labor will be protected by the bonding scheme, as the American manufacturers can compete with the imported cigars. For instance, a man who now buys an imported perfecto at about 25 cents, can buy the same cigar, manufactured in bond in this country, at a saving of about one-half. The public, in my opinion, will be benefited by the bonding plan.

"It is true that manufacturing in bond will cost the manufacturer more than under the ordinary method, because we will be obliged to pay the salary of the Government Inspector, which will approximate $1,800 a year. We are, however, willing to stand this extra expense, because we feel that the consuming public will appreciate being able to obtain genuine Havana cigars at a lower price than that asked for the imported article, and we believe that in that way the bonding plan will assist us in increasing our business."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Lower Rate on Wool Dress Goods—Decision on Raincoats.

The Board of United States General Appraisers sustained in part yesterday a protest by Massce & Co., New York, regarding the classification of wool dress goods. The fabrics were returned by the Appraiser as wholly of wool, or in chief value of that product, valued at more than 70 cents a pound. Duty was accordingly taken at 44 cents a pound and 55 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 378, Tariff act of 1909. In a report to the board the Appraiser said that some of the goods were found later to be valued at under 70 cents a pound, and should have been returned at 44 cents a pound and 50 per cent. ad valorem. The board ordered these fabrics admitted at the lower rates.

The Mark Cross Company, New York, succeeded in a contention relating to raincoats, which were returned for duty as composed of cotton and rubber, cotton chief value, at 50 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 324 of the old law. The importers said rubber was the chief value. Duty was therefore claimed at 35 per cent., under Paragraph 463. The Collector was directed to reliquidate the entries on the basis of the lower duty.

A. H. Ringk & Co., New York, were upheld in a claim for lower duty on importations of recording wax, or wax specially prepared for use in making records. Collector Malone classified the article as a manufacture of wax not specially provided for, under Paragraph 462 of the old act, and exacted duty at 25 per cent. ad valorem. The importers said the wax was an unenumerated manufactured article, dutiable at 20 per cent. under Paragraph 480.

BOOKKEEPERS' RIGHTS.

Court Says They May Sue Stockholders to Recover Their Pay.

A bookkeeper, even if he is working for a salary, so-called, instead of for wages, nevertheless is an employe within the meaning of Section 57 of the stock corporation law, and may enforce payment for his services by a suit against stockholders, the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court ruled yesterday in granting the appeal of William Farnum, a bookkeeper, from a municipal court judgment dismissing his complaint against William H. Harrison, a stockholder of the Wishart-Dayton Auto Truck Company.

Harrison asserted and the municipal court held that only such employes as did manual labor and received "wages" as distinguished from "salary" might recover payment for services against stockholders. The Appellate Term remarked that the word "employe" was included in the section to provide for subordinates not included in the titles "laborer" and "servant."

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Where Our Typewriters Went.

In November the United States exported $827,820 worth of typewriters. The United Kingdom leads, with imports valued at $189,598; European Russia gets second place, with $114,339, and Germany holds third place, with $89,813.

State Chamber to Organize.

Representatives of Chambers of Commerce throughout New York State will meet to-day at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, to form an association of those bodies. Secretary Marcus A. Beeman of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce will be one of the principal speakers, and will assist in the formulation of the association. The meeting will open at 10 o'clock.

To Open Commerce Bureau.

Dr. E. A. Thayer, commercial agent of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who has been at the local office of the bureau, in the Custom House, since Jan. 2 interviewing local manufacturers and exporters interested in the drug, medical, and canned goods trade in South America, has just left for Philadelphia, where he will hold similar interviews. Dr. Thayer will be in Philadelphia four days and then will leave for Washington, where his headquarters will be at the offices of the bureau. He will leave Washington about Feb. 15 for San Francisco, where he will open and take charge of a new branch office of the bureau.

Now Comes a Crocheted Sock.

Lovers of crocheted neckties will soon be able to match their neckwear with their hosiery, for a local firm is about to put on the market a crocheted silk sock. This novelty will be quite expensive, however, as the socks will retail at not less than $2.50 a pair. They will be offered in black, white, plum, hunter green, tan, gray, and navy. According to the producers, the socks are being taken freely by the trade, but no deliveries have been made yet. In knitted silk neckwear the newest thing is a corded effect in fashion knit open and scarves. These will retail at prices ranging upward from $2. Multi-colored heather effects are also in favor.

Two Importers' Associations.

With the Importers Association of America about ready to take the field, speculation exists in importing circles regarding the ability of merchants to support two organizations with similar aims. It appears that the National Association of Importers, 165 Broadway, was organized as long ago as 1906, and, according to its officers, has been actively protecting the interests of importers. The officers of the older organization are: President, Townsend Rushmore; Vice President, John T. Gillespie; Treasurer, George S. Knapp, and Secretary, Morris Douw Ferris. Sentiment among many of the importers seems to be that greater strength and efficiency would result from an amalgamation of the two associations in order to take concerted action in matters affecting the interests of the trade generally.

Something New in Millinery.

A French firm, which has recently established a branch office in this city, has invented something new in millinery in the shape of a combination bandeau and lining. The bandeau has a slide wire in the outer edge, which allows it to be adjusted to fit any size or kind of hat. In the centre of the lining is an elastic drawstring, which may be tightened or adjusted to fit any style coiffure. The device is said to be very light, pliable, and well fitting. It is also said not to disturb the hair of the wearer when a hat containing it is put on or taken off. About 1,500,000 of these devices were sold in England last year, and the company soon expects to duplicate that record here. It is already making plans to engage factory space and expects to begin work some time next month. About twenty different styles will be made in sateen, velvet and silk.

Will Push "Bulk Sales" Bill.

The Wholesale Merchants' Association will shortly resume its campaign for a new "bulk sales" law in this State by having reintroduced a bill providing for an amendment to the personal property law in relation to the transfer of goods in bulk. This bill, which was drawn up about a year ago by Fischer & Solomon, counsel for the association, was introduced at the last regular session of the Legislature, but was entered so late that it died in the Rules Committee. The present law covering sales in bulk is said to be defective in that it requires the seller to give vital information concerning himself and the goods if asked by the buyer, but it puts no requirement on the buyer to ask the seller for these facts. Usually the information is not volunteered, and not infrequently the buyer works through a third person. The new bill will provide for notification of the creditors of the merchant proposing to make the sale at least seven days before the sale takes place, and by other forms of publicity will make fraudulent sales impossible.

Says Tariff Law Is Fairest Ever.

D. L. Moore, a manufacturer of dress goods with offices at 81 Worth Street, told a TIMES reporter yesterday that the business done in the three months which had passed since the Tariff bill became a law had proved it to be the fairest he had seen in a business experience covering forty-three years. "So far as the textile industries are concerned," Mr. Moore said, "the law is exceptionally well balanced. It will protect the manufacurers from manipulation of yarn values, and will reduce speculation in them to a minimum. It will enable the manufacturer who buys his yarns to operate as freely as did the producer who spun his own yarns under the old law." It was Mr. Moore's belief also that on most of the cheaper constructions of cotton and woolen textiles the foreign mills would be unable to compete with goods made in this country. The higher-grade goods, he said, especially novelties, would get hit hardest. He predicted a rather stormy period of readjustment for mills making this kind of goods, and said that already many of the well-known cotton and woolen mills of New England were not running more than 50 per cent. capacity. The readjustment, he thought, would bring with it a lower scale of wages for the operatives in these mills.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Prices in the commodities markets receded slowly yesterday. The net decline in wheat extended from ⅛c to ⅝c. Corn and oats lost small fractions. Cotton started off in firm fashion, but later turned downward, ending with declines of from 2 to 6 points. Provisions and cotton oil were soft.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was inactive, but lower, prices at one time showing losses of ¾c from the previous close, although final figures showed net losses of ⅛ to ⅝c. The decline was due largely to a show of weakness abroad, where values were lower as a result of larger shipments from Australia, and in expectation of quite liberal world's shipments. Reports from Argentina were still of a bullish character, prices in Buenos Aires closing firm at an advance of ¼ to ⅜c. Europe was apparently not especially concerned regarding future supplies, and export bids were of a less satisfactory nature and generally below a working basis. Receipts at Western points were slightly smaller than last week, but the cash demand was slow, and supplies are still liberal.

The weather over the West was mild, and the crop appears to be maintaining its high condition. Broomhall estimated world's exports, exclusive of North America, at 7,600,000 bushels, which, with Bradstreet's American shipments indicated total world's exports of 14,312,000 bushels, which will compare with shipments last week of 13,600,000 and 11,720,000 last year.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at 98⅛c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; No. 2 red, $1.00½ elevator domestic; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.00¼ free on board, and No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.02¼ free on board.

CORN.

The corn market also experienced a reaction under active liquidation on the part of recent buyers. Receipts at interior points were still moderate, but there were predictions of a larger movement, and this appeared to discourage new buying, especially as the cash demand was light.

In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at 71c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive.

OATS.

The oats market, while not very active, was lower in sympathy with the decline in wheat and corn under selling by leading commission houses and influenced by reports of offerings from the Argentine. Receipts at primary points were on a slightly more liberal scale and stocks are large.

The local cash market was steady; standard white being quoted at 45½@46c; No. 2, 46@46½c; No. 3, 45@46c; No. 4, 44½@45½c; ordinary clipped white, 44@46c; fancy clipped white, 45½@47c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was inactive with small price changes and prices at a lower level as a result of a decline in the Western hog markets. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 26,000, estimated for Saturday 16,000; Kansas City received 4,000 and Omaha 9,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market experienced another setback under renewed aggressive operations on the selling side, and at the close values were 2 to 12 points net lower. The selling was due largely to an easier tone in the lard market, although a bearish interpretation was placed on the Census Bureau's report showing the amount of cottonseed crushed to Dec. 31 to be 3,009,759 tons, compared with 2,739,897 up to the same time last season.

COTTON.

The cotton market showed renewed strength at the opening yesterday, but prices soon turned easier under realizing and scattered selling, which appeared to be inspired by the heavy linters reported to Jan. 1 by the Census Bureau, rather a bearish view of the week-end figures, and rumors that private ginning returns for the period ending yesterday were heavier than entirely consistent with minimum views of the crop. The close was barely steady, and from 2 to 6 points net lower.

Cables were relatively firm, and the local market opened steady at an advance of 7 to 10 points, with March contracts selling up to 12.66, or a point above the previous high level reached on the movement. Bullish overnight spot advices from the South encouraged the demand, but the market met a good deal of realizing and became more or less unsettled in the later trading. Last prices were practically the lowest of the day.

The census report showing 396,934 bales of linters obtained to Jan. 1 this year, against 352,972 last season, proved heavier than had been expected.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged, to ⅛c higher. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 12.85 for middling upland; sales, none; delivered on contract, 600 bales.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows.

COFFEE.

Trading in the coffee market was inactive, and largely of a local character. Santos futures opened at an advance of 75@125 reis from the previous close, and while the official cable covering Thursday's markets showed Rio spots unchanged and Santos 100 reis lower, the special cable reported Santos 4s 100 reis higher. Cost-and-freight offers were comparatively small, and prices ranged unchanged to 15 points higher, with Santos 4s at 11.80, 4s and 5s at 11.50@12, 3s and 4s at 12.15, 3s at 12.35, and Rio 7s at 9.30. The European markets opened lower in response to our decline of Thursday afternoon, but developed a firmer tone during the day, and at the close Havre was ¼f net higher, and Hamburg showed losses of ¼@½ pfennig. Private cables from Europe said that there was a fairly active spot demand abroad. Total sales amounted to 51,000 bags.

The local spot market was steady, with Rio 7s quoted at 9⅜c.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A recent municipal ordinance in Colon requires every business place to display a sign indicating the nature of the business and the name of the proprietor, and imposes on the sign a tax of 25 to 50 cents.

Declared exports from the Kingston (Ontario) Consular District during October and November last year were valued at $229,687, an increase of $135,720 over the corresponding period of 1912.

According to the Consul General at Hongkong, the steady volume of imports of cattle from Australia into the Philippines is evidenced by the overhauling and refitting in Hongkong shipyards of two vessels for this trade, one of which is now fitted to carry about 440 head of cattle and the other about 500 head. Each ship is to make twelve round trips a year in the Wyndham-Manila cattle trade.

MUCH LAND UNTILLED.

Of 1,140,000,000 Acres Tillable, Only 27% Under Cultivation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Preliminary estimates by the Department of Agriculture show that of 1,140,000,000 acres of tillable land in the United States, only 27 per cent. of it is actually under cultivation. The estimates were based upon reports of 35,000 correspondents scattered in every State.

It is estimated that the United States, excluding its possessions, contains about 1,900,000,000 acres, of which 361,000,000 acres, or 19 per cent., are estimated to be non-tillable, but valuable for pasture or fruits. Only 21 per cent., or 399,000,000 acres, was estimated to be of no use for agriculture.

"For every 100 acres that are now tilled," says the department, "about 375 acres may be tilled when the country is fully developed."

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., and at the branch offices of the bureau, 315 Custom House, New York, N. Y., by giving the number of the item referred to:

12,360. BUILDING MATERIALS.—A foreign publication states that the Italian Government has decided to proceed with the reconstruction of public buildings in Messina. The plans for the reconstruction of the Palace of Justice and the Treasury, the cost of which is estimated at $475,000 and $100,000, respectively, have been approved. Works for the construction of the municipal office, provincial offices, and the education offices will be awarded by contract during 1914. It has also been decided to erect dwelling houses for the use of persons in Gov. employ, the cost of which is estimated at $800,000.

12,361. SODA FOUNTAIN AND CANDY STORE.—A seaport town of 4,000 persons and the distributing centre of an island of about 12,000 inhabitants, at present has no soda water or confectionery store. There is also quite a resident colony of Europeans and Americans. The climate is conducive to the consumption of cold or iced drinks, it being warm the year round.

12,362. REFINED COTTONSEED OIL.—A foreign importing and exporting firm desires to form connections with Am. exporters of refined cottonseed oil who may not yet be represented in Europe.

12,363. MATCH PARAFFIN.—A resident of a European country, who has been doing an extensive business in match paraffin from Scotland, wants to represent Am. exporters of this article.

12,364. AGENCIES FOR AMERICAN GOODS.—An Australian firm of importers would like to represent Am. manufacturers and exporters. At present this firm's interests are confined to groceries, hosiery, and electrical goods, but it is prepared to handle practically all lines.

12,365. HAIR ORNAMENTS.—A mfrs.'s agent desires to be put in touch with Am. mfrs. of hair ornaments, such as combs, buckles, fancy ornaments, and novelties of all kinds used for hair dressing.

12,366. MACHINERY FOR SAWING LARGE LOGS BY ELECTRICITY.—A request comes from the editor of a trade publication for the names of Am. manufacturers of machinery for sawing large logs by electricity, (with platinum or other poles.) The inquirer states that several thousands of such machinery sets will be required for the sawing of large timber in a foreign country.

12,367. GENERAL MERCHANDISE.—A European resident has organised an office with a good staff for the purpose of taking up general foreign agencies. He is particularly anxious to hear from American manufacturers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices React a Little—Treasury Cash and Gold Exports.

After five consecutive days of advancing prices, the rise on the Stock Exchange was checked yesterday by continued heavy profit-taking sales. The setback in prices, however, did not come until after further advances had been made. The sharp reaction which occurred shortly before the market closed only a little more than offset the improvement in quotations which had occurred during the earlier hours of the session. The market had the benefit of continued easing of money rates, of this and other specific indications of a favorable bank return to-day, and, furthermore, of the improved state of financial sentiment, which in a very important measure has contributed to the Stock Exchange betterment of the last ten days. The feeling has spread that the worst in the way of trade reaction had been seen, and that the country was again on the way toward enlarged commercial activity. To this feeling the news from Washington, particularly the outlines of the Administration's programme in regard to corporation legislation, has contributed in large degree.

The stage was reached yesterday at which some were inclined to put to themselves the question whether or not too much had been hoped for in respect to the special message soon to be read to Congress, but this attitude was met in other quarters with the view that, if disappointment is caused by the special message, it will be only because too much in the way of reassurance to the business interests of the country had been expected from that document. The questions at issue in such matters cannot under human limitations be settled offhand. The important thing at the moment in this regard seems to be that conciliation and co-operation are the aims, not only of the Administration, but of the business world as well.

Improvement in the affairs of some of the companies which will have shortly to provide for maturing short-term notes was indicated in some of yesterday's market developments. Noteworthy strength was shown by the securities of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and Wall Street heard very definite reports that arrangements had been about completed for the paying off of half of the notes of that road which mature next June, and for the renewal of the balance, it being rumored in this connection that cash needed for this purpose would be supplied by the chief Missouri Pacific interest. The tendencies now manifesting themselves in the bond market have but to continue for a while longer to make possible in most cases permanent provision for the temporary security issues which are falling due this year. It is most probable, however, that because of delay in working out permanent financial plans, or for other reasons, a good many notes will be replaced by new short-term issues instead of being definitely paid off. The great change for the better which has occurred in the money market will, of course, make such operations much easier of accomplishment. Yesterday's estimates of the week's currency movement indicated another large gain by the banks of this city, which already since the beginning of the year have reported a gain of cash of not less than $40,000,000.

This heavy cash inflow to New York was in part made possible by the special deposits put out by the Treasury last Fall with the banks throughout the South and West. This money, or much of it, has been released from the special uses to which it was put and has added largely to the surplus cash supply, which accounts for the very heavy gains which the banks at this centre have made since the completion of the preparations for the January payments. There is not as close a connection between this cash inflow and the gold export movement which began this week as there would be if these gold exports were being made without reference to any special inducements offered by the foreign markets and were being arranged solely on the basis of prevailing rates of exchange. At the same time there is no doubt that this gold outflow is facilitated by the very heavy and even abnormal piling up of cash in New York within the last two weeks. There is thus some association between the fact that these special Treasury deposits have remained in the banks beyond the time when they were needed for crop moving or other similar purposes and the shipment of gold to Europe.

If the return of these special deposits, or of so much of them as the banks still hold, was hastened it would probably have the effect of increasing the cost of gold shipments to France, but that would not necessarily put an end to the movement. The necessities of the Paris market are greater at the moment than those of any of the other important financial centres, and the help which we are extending through gold exports will no doubt prove of good effect in the international money market as a whole. At the same time regret would naturally be felt if the Government's cash in the banks should have the effect of unduly stimulating a gold outflow. The advisability of the Treasury recalling at a more rapid pace the balance of the special deposits still held by the national banks is now the subject of discussion in banking circles.

Last August, when the Treasury crop-moving deposits were announced, the Government had on deposit with the national banks approximately $53,400,000. This was gradually increased throughout the Fall until a maximum of $94,448,000 was reached on Nov. 24. Since that date the figure has been declining, the latest daily Treasury statement at hand showing deposits of $79,845,000. This is a total reduction of $14,600,000. These figures do not, of course, take count of the large installment of these special deposits which became repayable on Jan. 15. Even after that installment has been paid, however, there will be left a considerable balance of the $34,000,000 of these special deposits which were put out between August and November. Under the circumstances it might be desirable for the Treasury to consider the question of withdrawing more rapidly than was originally intended the rest of these special cash deposits of which the money market clearly is no longer in need. This would remove what might be regarded as an artificial stimulus to the gold outflow while putting no obstacle in the way of any gold movement based on the normal relation of our money market to those of Europe.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Union Pacific's Bonds.

While no holder of the Union Pacific's convertible bonds has followed the lead of the preferred stockholders by bringing suit to prevent the proposed distribution of Baltimore & Ohio stock and the reduction in Union's dividend, a number of bondholders have protested against a plan which will virtually destroy the convertible advantages of the issue. The suggestion has been made by some bondholders that in place of telling them that they should convert their bonds at the present prices the Union Pacific management might change the conversion price after the reduction in the dividend. The bonds are now convertible at 175 for the stock. It is extremely doubtful if Union Pacific, paying 8 per cent., will ever sell at that figure. For that reason these bondholders think that the conversion figure ought to be lowered proportionately with the cut in the dividend or the reduction in assets. If the conversion price were reduced to meet the dividend, it would be fixed at 140. It is believed that such a change could not be made without authorization of the stockholders.

To Care for Railroad Notes.

The Missouri Pacific notes maturing next June and the stock have shown a quick response to a report that the Goulds and Speyer & Co. had arranged to pay off any of the notes turned in at maturity and to extend the remainder. Another cause of uneasiness has been removed by the announcement by Newman Erb of plans for taking care of the Minneapolis & St. Louis 6 per cent. notes falling due in February. The details have not been made known, but it is understood that the usual form of paying part and extending the rest will not be followed.

Atlantic Coast Line Dissolution.

Attorney General McReynolds left Washington for this city yesterday. This led to a report that he was to investigate the breaking up of the Atlantic Coast Line Company, the Connecticut corporation which holds a controlling interest in the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. If that is the purpose of the Attorney General's visit, it is difficult to see how he can do anything but approve of the Directors' action, in so far as it concerns the holding company. At various times since the campaign against trusts was started suggestions have been made to the effect that the Coast Line Company might find it hard to justify its place in the Walters plan, but so far as can be learned, the decision to take control of the railroad out of the Connecticut company did not result from a suggestion from Washington. At any rate, the management seems to have done now what the Department of Justice might have come to recommend after an investigation.

One Reason for Selling Paper.

Further additions to the seasonal accumulation of money from the interior by local banks this week have been partially balanced by credits extended to commercial borrowers. One commercial paper broker reported yesterday that in the first two weeks of January he had sold more paper than in any full month last year. His clients were Western houses for the most part, but he could not say that the placing of mercantile loans on a broad scale represented an increase of business, or plans for an increase, on the part of the borrowers. A large part of recent transactions, he thought, represented efforts of mercantile firms to "square up" with their individual banks. When money was dearer last year than it is now, many houses, instead of having bills discounted at a high price in the market, obtained loans from the banks with whom they kept their deposits. Now that credit may be obtained through sales of paper at a comparatively low discount, they are desirous of liquidating their bank loans which have been out for several months, and do so through the proceeds of sales of bills. They could have their loans renewed, probably, at a cost about the same as the combined discount rate and broker's commission on their paper, but the object is less one of economy than of sentiment. By paying off their previous loans they strengthen their credit with the lending institution. Banks are not averse to having even their most favored customers wipe the slate clean now and then.

Difficult Market for the Trader.

When stocks advanced yesterday so far as to be characterized as strong, selling grew active, and within a short time most of the previous advantage was lost. These see-saw movements made the market a particularly difficult one for the trader to accurately exercise his faculty for guessing. Union Pacific, for instance, acted indifferently up to nearly 1 o'clock, swinging back and forth between 158½ and 157⅞, and then quickly mounting to 159⅛, only to retreat again to 158 at the close. Steel, after opening at 62¾, crept up to 63½, and was forced back a full point in the last hour. A survey of the stock list after the market closed showed that, in spite of fairly vigorous buying at certain periods of the session, an irregularity prevailed in final prices which could not be looked upon as an indication of the superiority of bullish interests. Neither could the bears get any encouragement from it.

Fertilizer Company Stock Goes Up.

Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred went above par yesterday for the first time since last September, when it sold up to 102. For an 8 per cent. issue, whose dividend record has not been broken since payments were first made, this stock has been selling for the past six months at prices to give buyers a high yield, and until recently it appeared to be neglected when other shares of the so-called investment class bore evidences of accumulation. Yesterday forty shares went at 100 not long after the market opened, and they were then let alone until the closing hour of business. A buyer took 100 shares in late trading at 102½, another hundred went at 103, and a third purchase of the same amount was made at 104. The issue stood at the end of the day substantially above United States Rubber first preferred, another 8 per cent. stock that not long ago was under par.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Further Sharp Reactions in the Oil Stocks the Feature of the Curb Market.

The oil stocks were reactionary in the outside security market, with declines reaching 10 points in Solar Refining and Standard Oil of Nebraska. Other losses of consequence were 7 points in Standard Oil of New Jersey, 5 points in Prairie Oil and Gas, and lesser amounts in several other issues. Standard Oil of Indiana was notable for a gain of 10 points, while an advance of 5 points in Washington Oil was also exceptional. In the industrial list Maxwell Motors first preferred rose a point. Among bond issues, New York State 4¼s, when issued, sold at 105⅝ to 106¼, and Canadian Pacific 6 per cent. notes at 101⅝ to 101⅞.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 17.—The Times says in its City article:

"The abundance of money depressed the rates for daily advances. There was a strong demand for bills, which were in poor supply, and the rates declined. This decline moved the chief Continental exchanges against London.

"Easy money conditions and the news that the strike situation in South Africa had taken a decided turn for the better had a stimulating effect on all high-class securities on the Stock Exchange, and, led by consols, prices moved up rapidly. Investment brokers reported a large business, and, as stock was scarce, prices readily responded. The gilt-edged securities were naturally affected more than the speculative markets, and, except that American shares closed rather below the highest points of the day, the markets were firm at the close all around the house. The tone of the South African market was good throughout. Business was on a larger scale than has been the case of late. No further decline occurred in Mexican Government bonds, although prices were rather lower at one time."

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Prices improved on the Boerse to-day.

SUGAR TRUST TO FIGHT.

Tells Stockholders of Failure to Agree with the Government.

The American Sugar Refining Company, in a letter to be mailed to its stockholders to-day, announces its intention of fighting the Government dissolution suit to the end, inasmuch as its recent efforts to come to an agreement with the Department of Justice were unsuccessful. The letter says:

"The unwillingness of the Department of Justice to accept the tentative offer by this company of a settlement of the Government suit renders necessary a brief statement of the facts to the stockholders of the company. Your company has been practically reorganized since 1907. In November, 1910, the Government entered a suit in equity, seeking the dissolution of the company for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"After practically three years the Government has finished taking its testimony. The evidence shows no monopoly at present existing, no restraint of trade, and no act, direct or indirect, in violation of law by the present management of the company. With a feeling that every effort should be made to terminate the expensive litigation, your company did make an effort to adjust its differences with the Government. It offered to make every concession it could in justice to the stockholders and still maintain its self-respect.

"These advances having been declined, the company proposes to defend the interests of its shareholders with confidence and vigor. The company is guilty of no restraint of trade; it constitutes no monopoly; competition is absolutely free and active; it has no agreements, contracts, or obligations of any sort with its competitors; it seeks unfair advantage in the way of trade; it is simply aiming to produce the finest quality of sugars, and to acquire the widest field of distribution; to educate the housekeeper and the manufacturer to the use of its brands, and to reach for and secure by legitimate means all the profitable business it can. Its campaign is one of education for the consumer.

"The effort to secure from the Government a recognition of these facts, and thereby ending a long and expensive lawsuit, having failed, the company now proposes to defend this suit with energy and confidence, and in this course it properly asks the co-operation and assistant of the nearly 20,000 shareholders."

EXTEND $10,000,000 OF B. & M.'S NOTES

ROAD'S DIRECTORS HOPEFUL

New Haven's Publicity Bills Under Searchlight—Kenyon Offers Bill Aimed at Railway Expenditures.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The holders of a majority of $10,000,000 of the notes of the Boston & Maine Railroad due on Feb. 3, agreed to-day to an extension of four months. The road's Directors hope that the minority holders will make the same concession. In any event, they say that the action of the majority has saved the company from possible bankruptcy or a receivership, for the time being, at least.

With $17,000,000 in notes coming due on June 2, the company will have to take care of the entire $27,000,000 on that date, but officials are hopeful that the balance sheet will then show improvement sufficient to encourage bankers to enter some sort of general refunding plan.

In February, 1913, when $10,000,000 worth of notes were issued, they were a legal investment in this State because the company was paying dividends. But when notes to the amount of $17,000,000 were issued, four months later, dividends had ceased.

The stock dropped steadily until it reached 35, the lowest in its history, and talk of a receivership was started. Many plans were offered for saving the road from such a fate, all with a view of taking care in some way of the notes falling due next month.

One plan suggested was the exchange of a certain amount of Boston & Maine stocks in the treasury for an issue of 5 per cent. bonds of the Maine Central. This was recently decided not to be feasible. Several other plans also involving the use of the Maine Central stock were suggested, only to be rejected. Within the last few days it was determined to ask the holders of the February notes to extend them, on the ground that by such action the notes would still continue to be legal. A sufficient amount to make up a good majority assented to the plan to-day.

The co-operation of the Department of Justice in the reorganization of the Boston & Maine, after its separation from the New York, New Haven & Hartford system, was pledged by Attorney General McReynolds in a letter received by Gov. Walsh to-day. Referring to that part of the Governor's inaugural message which dealt with railroad affairs, the Attorney General said:

"I am delighted with the calm, but forceful and energetic way in which you have brought the situation to the attention of the public. You may be sure of the hearty co-operation of this department to bring about the end you so earnestly advocate."

The firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which, in conjunction with Boston bankers, is negotiating with the Boston & Maine noteholders, declined to give any outline of the plans yesterday, but it is understood that some time before the maturity of the $17,000,000 note issue of the Boston & Maine a comprehensive plan for the complete overhauling and reorganization of the road's finances will have been formulated.

CLOSER SCRUTINY OF ROADS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Senator Kenyon of Iowa offered a bill to-day providing that no money be expended by any interstate railroad, nor any obligation incurred except for the construction, equipment, maintenance, or operation of the road, or in the legitimate development of the road or its traffic. No stocks, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness shall be issued by a railroad without the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the money so realized shall be expended only for the purposes set forth in the commission's consenting order. Exception is made of notes running for not longer than one year to an amount not in excess of 3 per cent. of the road's stock, bonds, and other securities.

The bill forbids a road to lease, purchase, or acquire interest directly or indirectly in a competing line, whether rail or water, to acquire its securities, guarantee its securities, or consolidate with it. The same prohibition is made in regard with non-competing lines except where the acquisition of the purchasable line would improve the service of the road. Even then, however, the acquisition can be made only with the commission's consent. No fines are provided in the bill, but imprisonment for not less than a month nor more than a year is prescribed for any officer or director of the road who violates the act.

Many of the transactions complained of in the affairs of the New Haven Road would come under this bill.

NEW HAVEN PUBLICITY BILLS.

C. W. Barron Explains Some of the Road's Advertising Expenses.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Hearings were resumed to-day before the Public Service Commission on certain expenditures by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, to which attention had been called by ex-Gov. Foss.

Clarence W. Barron, a publisher of this city, who had charge of much of the railroad's advertising, was one of the witnesses. He explained that payments of $95,650 to the Boston News Bureau and $63,477 to Doremus & Co. of New York, advertising agencies in which he was a partner, were for display advertisements in daily newspapers. On its so-called "Sail-from-Boston" advertising campaign the railroad spent $40,000.

The employment by The Associated Press of E. W. Prescott was explained by Edward McKernon, the Boston correspondent of that organization, who had asked to be heard. At an earlier hearing Mr. Prescott, who conducted a news bureau at the State House, had testified that he had been employed by several newspapers, The Associated Press, and the New Haven Railroad system.

Mr. McKernon said that Mr. Prescott's activities for the association were confined chiefly to notifying the office of spontaneous news at the State House in the absence of its regular legislative reporter. This was done by telephone. He said that Mr. Prescott had not written news articles for the association, and not a line of his matter concerning the New Haven ever had been used on its wires. The arrangement with him was terminated the day the office learned of his corporation affiliations.

CHICAGO BANK FIGURES FALL

Have Smaller Deposits, Loans, and Discounts, but More Resources.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—National banks of Chicago, according to statements made to-day, at the close of business on Jan. 13 had deposits less by $7,361,727 than at the same preceding period, while loans and discounts also showed a contraction amounting to $27,888,241.

The decrease in these two items reflects the recession in business since the last call. It is interesting to note the conservatism of the bankers as shown in their cash resources, this figure showing a decided increase, being $203,638,562, compared with $185,039,307 at the preceding call.

DISAPPOINTED IN TARIFF.

English Woolen Merchants Expected Larger American Orders.

Manufacturers and merchants in England, particularly those in the woolen industry, were disappointed that the new tariff law did not at once create a demand for English made goods in America, according to J. Hope Simpson, General Manager of the Bank of Liverpool, who has come to this country to speak at the dinner of the New York State Bankers' Association at the Waldorf next Monday night. Mr. Simpson is at the Belmont.

"Anticipating material reductions in the American tariff," he said, "English woolen manufacturers and others made extensive preparations to fill orders from this country. They thought that exports from England to America would increase considerably as soon as the Tariff bill was passed, but they were disappointed. Of course, there was some demand for English goods in America, but it was by no means up to the expectations of the manufacturers. At present they are making no further preparations, but merely waiting to see what the ultimate effect of the law in England will be."

Mr. Simpson would not discuss the recent currency law except to say that it was not generally understood in England, and that its effect upon the money market was an open question with English business men. He said that several features of the law had been received with favor abroad, but that judgment on others was being suspended.

Mr. Simpson said that business conditions all over the world were quieter than for some time, but that he did not fear any serious financial depression.

BAVARIAN APPEAL LOST.

Service Against Nassauer, Alien Then, Was Not Personal.

The Court of Appeals dismissed yesterday the appeal of Walburga Grubel from an order of the Supreme Court in this county which refused to recognize a Bavarian judgment against Gustav Nassauer, a New York merchant. Nassauer left Bavaria for this country in 1901, and went into business in this city. He did not file papers of his intention to become a citizen until June, 1906. In 1907, while Nassauer was still unnaturalized, judgment was taken against him in Bavaria in a suit brought by Grubel, and which was started without personal service, but by publication. Nassauer pleaded that this judgment could not be collected against him, and the Supreme Court upheld this view.

Grubel's appeal was based on the theory that at the time the judgment was obtained Nassauer was still a subject of Bavaria and bound by its laws, and that the New York State courts, by reason of comity, should enforce it. The Court of Appeals, however, pointed out that though comity among the States of the Union is enforced by the paramount law, still a money judgment recovered in one State against a defendant who was not served in that State cannot be enforced without the State. There is no reason, the court said, for holding judgments recovered in a foreign country in higher respect than those of sister States of the Union.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were again on a large scale, the sales totaling 73,730 shares, with fifty-nine different stocks represented. By far the greatest activity was in the final hour, when there were some remarkable changes in tone. Following a sudden rush up, prices gave way even more rapidly in the closing dealings. There was no special news to account for the offering down of the market, and it was generally attributed to a profit-taking movement on a large scale.

MORE SUBWAY BIDS INVITED.

Proposals for Two Sections of New Dual System Asked For.

Bids have been invited by the Public Service Commission for two more sections of the new dual subway system. The frist, which will be considered on Feb. 9, is Section 1 of the White Plains Road extension of the present West Farms Subway, from about 179th Street to Burke Avenue. It will be a three-track elevated line, and at Gun Hill Road it will be connected with the Webster Avenue extension of the Third Avenue elevated line, so that its trains will run downtown either through the Subway or on the elevated.

On Feb. 10 bids will be opened for the second section of the Jerome Avenue branch of the Lexington Avenue Subway. This will extend from about 182d Street to the terminus of Woodlawn Road. It will be a three-track elevated line, and as it will connect with the proposed extension of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated line at 162d Street the trains from Woodlawn Road may go downtown either by the Subway or by the elevated.

BOWDOIN'S ESTATE GOES TO HIS FAMILY

Great-Grandson of Alexander Hamilton Leaves Washington's Gift to His Son.

PARTICULAR AS TO HIS WINE

Will of Ex-Morgan Partner Stipulates That Children Shall Retain Contents of His Cellar.

George Sullivan Bowdoin, who died at his home, 39 Park Avenue, on Dec. 16, several years after his retirement from the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., left practically his entire estate to his wife and children. The will, drawn up in 1902, and a codicil drawn up in 1910, were filed for probate yesterday.

Mr. Bowdoin left to his wife, Julia Grinnell Bowdoin, all the paintings, statuary, books, ornaments, silver, furniture, and other household effects contained in his home at 39 Park Avenue, all his horses, carriages, and stable equipments, all his life insurance policies, Pew 50 in Grace Church, and $200,000. He had given to her previously the home at 39 Park Avenue.

Edith G. Bowdoin, his daughter, receives the house at 37 Park Avenue, with all its appurtenances, and Pew 51 in Grace Church. As joint tenant with her mother, she receives all her father's land at Bar Harbor, Me., including buildings, with their appurtenances, farm implements, furniture, horses, and wagons.

Mr. Bowdoin left to his son, Temple Bowdoin, now a member of J. P. Morgan & Co., twenty-eight acres of land at New Hamburg, N. Y., with buildings, farm implements, carriages, and horses. If Mr. Bowdoin's widow cares to live at this country seat she may do so provided that she notifies her son to that effect within six months of her husband's death. In addition to this property, Temple Bowdoin receives an undivided one-half interest in about 130 acres of land at Irvington, N. Y., which formerly belonged to Mr. Bowdoin's grandfather, James A. Hamilton.

"I also give and beqeath to my said son, Temple Bowdoin," the will sets forth, "the silver wine cooler, given by Gen. Washington to my great-grandfather, Gen. Alexander Hamilton, and bequeathed to me by my uncle, Alexander Hamilton, and all my family portraits, provided that so long as my wife shall retain and occupy our present residence she shadd have the right to retain possession of those portraits."

Mr. Bowdoin made this disposition of his wines:

"I bequeath and hereby direct that after my wife shall have taken from such of the wines as I shall die possessed of those she may want for her own use the remainder of such wines shall go to my son, Temple Bowdoin. I request him to make such division thereof as he shall deem best with my daughter, Edith, and my son-in-law, Daniel P. Kingsford, and I direct that my children shall not sell any part of these wines except to one another."

James, Lillian, and Harry Bowdoin, children of Mr. Bowdoin's uncle, James Bowdoin, receive $20,000 each under the will, and an additional $10,000 under the codicil. The codicil also provides that $10,000 shall be given to Mr. Bowdoin's valet, Henry Bloomfield.

The rest of the estate is divided into thirds. One third was left to Temple Bowdoin, and the other two-thirds was left in trust to Temple Bowdoin, the late J. P. Morgan, his son, J. P. Morgan, and Francis L. Stetson. This trust fund was to be divided into four parts, two parts to be for the benefit of his widow, one part for his daughter, Edith, and the rest for Irving B. Kingsford, his grandson, who is to receive the principal when he comes of age.

The executors of the will are Mr. Bowdoin's widow and son and Francis Lynde Stetson and J. P. Morgan. The late J. P. Morgan was named also. Mr. Bowdoin authorized those of his executors who were not partners in J. P. Morgan & Co. to settle and release all his interests in that firm.

BAD HOSPITAL CONDITIONS.

Children Contract Diseases There, Investigators Report.

The building of a new children's hospital on Blackwell's Island, the virtual abandonment of the present Infants' Hospital on Randall's Island, and sweeping reforms in the treatment of children throughout the city's whole municipal hospital system, were urged yesterday in a report of the Hospital Investigating Committee, which was submitted to the Board of Estimate.

The committee's investigators, who have been working under the direction of George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Henry C. Wright, recently appointed Deputy Commissioner of Charities, called attention in the report to the fact that many children were infected in the hospitals with diseases which they did not have when they were admitted.

According to the investigators they found one day in a single ward of one hospital, children who had these troubles: Tuberculohis of the knee, abcess of the neck, appendicitis, fractured skull, pneumonia, pulmonary tuberculosis, mastoiditis, paralysis of lower limbs, inflamation of the middle ear, endocarditis, and other diseases. Beside these there were six normal children in the ward whohe mothers were patients in the hospital.

The proposed new institution, says the committee, should be planned to accommodate ultimately 1,000 children. The committee points out that the city is planning to remove the penitentiary and workhouse from the island, and it urges that elevators be installed to furnish direct communication between the island and the roadway of Queensboro Bridge.

ROBINSON ASKS $500,000.

Echo of Sale of Baldwin Works in Broker's Suit.

Judge Hand heard yesterday in the Federal District Court the suit of George H. Robinson, a broker of New Rochelle, who was a member of the bankrupt firm of Fisk & Robinson, for $500,000 from Alba B. Johnson, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia. The action grew out of the sale of the works for $20,000,000 in cash and $10,500,000 of the common stock of the reorganized company and the cancelation of $2,800,000 worth of debts to Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia and White, Weld & Co. of this city while, it is alleged, negotiations were on foot for the sale of the property to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. for $25,000,000 in cash, $5,000,000 in stock of the reorganized company, and the cancellation of $2,900,000 of debts.

Mr. Robinson, the plaintiff, asserts that he was engaged as agent by Mr. Johnson to dispose of the Baldwin Works, and he alleges that while he was carrying on active negotiations with Jacob H. Schiff, Mortimer Schiff, and Paul Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the deal with Drexel & Co. was put through. Thereby, he asserts, he lost $500,000 commission, for which he is now suing. Mr. Robinson, after detailing his version of the negotiations with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with the sanction of Mr. Johnson, was cross-examined by John G. Milburn for the defense.

"In your talks with Mr. Johnson," asked counsel, "did you intimate you had financial interests or a syndicate behind you?"

"No," replied the witness, "I always told him that I was arranging for a satisfactory sale of the stock. As far as I can recollect I said nothing of a syndicate or any special interests."

The case was adjourned until Monday morning.

NEW TELEPHONE RATES.

Utilities Board Explains Application of Ten Per Cent. Reduction.

The Public Service Commission of the Second District issued a detailed statement yesterday of the way in which the 10 per cent. reduction in rates would work which the New York Telephone Company has granted from Feb. 1, until the pending investigation of its affairs has been completed. From this it appears there will be no reduction in toll charges on flat rate contracts in substitution for the payment of tolls of public telephone contracts. In the same way there is to be no reduction in contracts for interior systems of telephones for private or leased lines.

In the case of contracts for local service, which are subject to discounts on account of the telephones beig used by clergymen or charitable institutions for the temporary discontinuance of residence service, the 10 per cent. discount will be applied to the reduced charges. There will also be a 10 per cent. discount in the charges for apparatus used in conection with exchange service and for the extra listing of the names of subscribers.

The discount will also be allowed on the $12 flat charge for the coin box in connection with some public telephone contracts. The daily guaranteed use of local messages will be subject to the reduction also but there will be no discount in the charges for these messages.

BYRNE FOR APPEALS BENCH.

Gov. Glynn May Appoint Weeks to Gerard Vacancy.

Among the appointments which Gov. Glynn is to send to the Senate on Monday next, it was said last night, is that of James Byrne for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, to take the place made vacant by the election of Judge Willard Bartlett as Chief Judge. It was also said that the Governor is to designate Justice Samuel Seabury to sit as Associate Judge. Mr. Byrne is a member of the law firm of Byrne & Cutcheon of 24 Broad Street.

The Governor, it was said, has decided to appoint Bartow S. Weeks to the Supreme Court bench to fill the unexpired term of Justice Gerard, now Ambassador to Germany. John Mitchell, the labor leader, is to be a member of the new Workmens' Compensation Commission, according to report. William Temple Emmett is a candidate for Chairman of the up-State Public Service Commission, and it was said that the Governor may appoint him. The Governor has the appointment of another member of the up-State commission to take the place of James E. Sague, whose term will expire on Feb. 1.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Views of Dun and Bradstreet on the Situation.

Commenting on development in trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

> Changes in business conditions have been mainly in the direction of improvement and confidence is further strengthened. The first real cold snap of the Winter was decidedly favorable to those branches of retail trade largely dependent upon the weather, while the demand for fuel was also accelerated by the exceedingly low temperatures. A significant feature is the revival of activity in commercial paper, merchants and manufacturers finding it possible to provide for their requirements at considerably easier terms than heretofore. Almost without exception reports from the leading sections of the country indicate that mercantile and industrial enterprises are being undertaken with increased vigor, and it is gratifying that signs of improvement are clearly apparent in iron and steel.
> Bank clearings at the leading cities in the United States again make quite an indifferent comparison with those of a year ago, and also show a moderate decline as contrasted with 1912, the total this week, according to Dun's Review, amounting to $3,012,848,071, a loss of 9.7 and 3.0 per cent., respectively, as compared with the $3,337,780,212 and the $3,105,958,493 of the corresponding weeks in the two preceding years.

Bradstreet's says:

> Improvement is the keynote of this week's dispatches. Much of the betterment is sentimental in character, but at the same time considerable of it is actual and substantial. Foremost in the budget of news is the better state of employment incident to the resumption of operations in plants that had closed down over the holidays, particularly in the iron and steel industry; the freer buying of commercial paper, with banks seeking desirable grades and reporting supplies not equal to demand; the all-around ease in money following months of restricted credits and stringency, and betterment in demand for Spring and beyond, house buying, as well as orders from traveling salesmen, being relatively favorable.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Receiver for The New York Real Estate and Security Company Sells Four West Side Apartment Houses—Resale In the Old Silk and Woolen District—An Active Bronx and Suburban Market.

A transaction of more than ordinary importance involving the sale of four large west side and Harlem apartment houses formerly owned by the New York Real Estate and Security Company, which went into a receiver's hands a short time ago, was virtually closed yesterday. The deal will be consummated when the sanction of the United States Supreme Court is obtained, for which application has been made with the approval of the bondholders' committee of the bankrupt company. The transaction marks the first definite step by the receiver, James N. Rosenberg, to clear the financial difficulties of the New York Real Estate and Security Company.

The properties which he has contracted to sell as receiver for the company include the six-story house known as the Alabama, on the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 127th Street, 100 feet on the Drive by 147 on the street and irregular; the six-story house known as the Saranac on the southwest corner of Convent Avenue and 151st Street, 108.11 feet on the avenue by 86.10 on the street, and the two six-story houses known as the Douglas and Desmond at 2,022 to 2,028 Seventh Avenue, northwest corner of 121st Street, fronting 100.11 feet on Seventh Avenue by 95 feet in the street.

The Seventh Avenue structures were purchased from ex-Gov. Levi P. Morton last January, and were held at the time at $250,000. The Alabama was held at $350,000 when bougth last July.

These four properties have been purchased by a new corporation known as the Rossmore Holding Company composed of Matthew M. Edelman, Eugene Levy, and Elizabeth J. Waugh. Weschler & Kohn, as attorneys, represented the receiver, Mr. Rosenberg, in the transaction, and A. S. Gilbert acted for the Rossmore Company. The brokers in the deal were the F. R. Wood, W. H. Dolson Company.

In addition to these sales the receiver has made arrangements, subject to the sanction of the court, to sell the lease taken by the company from Caroline Cachard for nineteen years from May 1, 1914, on the three-story building at 20 East Forty-second Street to Agnes Daly, wife of Bernard Daly, the tenant of the property. The plot is 22 by 98.9.

The sale of a Bronx parcel owned by the Security Company has also been arranged by the receiver, being the five-story flat at 590 East 138th Street, 37.6 by 100 feet, between St. Ann's and Cypress Avenues. Joseph F. A. O'Donnell has contracted to buy it, subject to the approval of the court.

Broadway Sale Near Spring Street.

The gradually improved conditions in the old dry goods section of Broadway was reflected in the purchase by an out-of-town investor of the eleven-story commercial building at 520 and 522 Broadway, adjoining the southeast corner of Spring Street, a plot 50 by 100. Its assessed value is $285,000. It was sold through William A. White & Sons for the McKeon Realty Company, which took it recently from Joseph Guinet in exchange for the new eight-story building at 424 to 438 West Thirty-third Street. The same brokers recently sold 443 and 445 Broadway. These sales seem to indicate the beneficial influence which the Broadway subway is expected to exert in that district.

Deal in Midtown Loft Zone.

There were rumors of several big deals in the midtown loft zone yesterday, but the only one consummated involved the eleven-story store and loft building at 36 and 38 West Twentieth Street, sold by the Salisbury Realty Company, of which Edgar A. Levey is President, to Minna M. Coester.

The structure, which occupies a plot 50 by 92 feet between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, is assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $240,000.

Investor Buys on Grand Street.

A three-story building ocupying a plot 27 by 75 at 242 and 242½ Grand Street has been sold by Lewine & Kempner to Lillian Steinfield for investment. Hiram Rinaldo was the broker in the transaction.

Yorkville Apartment Traded.

O'Reilly & Dahn sold to a client 124-126 East Ninety-first Street, a six-story elevator apartment house between Park and Lexington Avenues. The seller, Elizabeth A. Toop, was represented by H. E. Hayes and J. A. Robertson. In part payment the buyer gave the eight-story loft building at 117 Lewis Street. About $150,000 was involved in the transaction.

Buys East Side Tenement.

The recently completed six-story new law tenement on the southwest corner of Avenue A and Sixty-seventh Street has been sold to an investing client of M. Rozetti by the Lawyers Mortgage Company. The structure occupies a plot 40.5 by 100 facing the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Resale of Harlem Dwelling.

Dr. Louis Bieber has purchased from the Augenblich Realty Company, for occupancy, the three-story dwelling, 119 West 119th Street, on a lot 20 by 100.11 feet.

This property was taken in exchange for the two six-story apartment houses at 190 to 198 Bradhurst Avenue, sold recently to Francis Hillenbrand. About $250,000 was involved in the trade and resale, which were negotiated by Benjamin Nauheim.

Builders Buy Big Heights Plot.

The sale of six lots yesterday in the Fort Washington district of the upper west side will speedily be followed by a building operation by the buyers, who will erect on the property three six-story apartment houses. The property sold includes the plot 150 by 112.9, on the north side of 175th Street, between Audubon and St. Nicholas Avenues. It has been sold by the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth Street Holding Company, of which David Zipkin is President. The buyer is the Mose Goodman Corporation, Aaron Goodman, President. The sellers have made a building loan on the projected operation, and the total investment, with the completion of the houses, will represent $250,000.

Bronx Borough Sales.

Smith & Phelps have sold for Edward J. Byrne the four-story apartment, on a lot 37.6 by 100, and known as 702 Garden Street. The buyer is an investor.

In the Van Nest section, Schano & Co. sold for John Ringen to a cash buyer, for $20,000, the southeast corner of Morris Park Avenue and White Plains Road, a three-story building, with stores, on a lot 25 by 100.

James T. Barry has purchased from the Herbst Realty Company a five-story and basement new law apartment house, on a plot 44 by 110, on the westerly side of Daly Avenue, 109 feet north of East 178th Street.

Sold for $6,570, Assessed at $14,000.

That Brooklyn property as well as Manhattan property is selling away under assessed valuations, was shown in the sale of the Stuyvesant Republican Clubhouse, at 464 Halsey Street, yesterday. It was sold in the Real Estate Exchange Salesroom at public auction for $6,000 over taxes and interest, amounting to $570. The purchaser was Harry W. Wiggins, one of the plaintiffs in the action to foreclose a mortgage on the property amounting to $8,000.

The building was purchased by the organization in June, 1896, for $11,000 from Mr. Wiggins, who took back a purchase money mortgage of $8,000 on the property, which covers a plot of ground 80 by 100 feet. The building is a two-story and attic frame dwelling, which was remodeled into a clubhouse shortly after the club took possession of it.

The property is assessed by the city at $14,000. In October of the same year in which the club was opened the organization gave secured bonds for $7,000 to the Hamilton Trust Company, subject to the mortgage of $8,000.

Brooklyn.

William C. Cahn of Manhattan sold a three-story brick building with a store at 4,519 Sixteenth Avenue, to Theresa Edelmuth. Mr. Cahn took in part payment a corner plot, 60 by 100 feet on the southwest corner of Fiftieth Street and Seventeenth Avenue. I. Salzberg negotiated the deal.

Max Wilner has sold to H. Weckstein a three-story single cottage, 1,242 Forty-ninth Street, on a plot 40 by 100 feet.

H. Journeay of Manhattan sold the southwest corner of Fiftieth Street and Tenth Avenue, a two-story two-family brick dwelling on a plot 20 by 100 feet, to E. Fuller, for investment.

Wood, Harmon & Co. sold at Hyde Park two lots on East Fifty-second Street, near Clarendon Road, to Frank W. Waggoner and Richard J. Harlan; at Kensington Park, one lot on Gravesend Avenue, near Eighteenth Avenue, to James S. Gordon, and one lot on East Second Street, near Eighteenth Avenue, to C. B. Roller, and at Flatbush Gardens, one lot on Avenue Q, near Kimball Street, to George Spanos.

Long Island.

Sarah Friedman has sold to Dinah Hauser twelve lots at Far Rockaway, with a frontage of 160 feet on the west side of Grandview Avenue, 320 feet on Sprayview Avenue, and 80 feet on Beach Avenue. A mortgage of $23,000 is held by the Riverhead Savings Bank.

L'Ecluse Washburn & Co. sold at Brookville, one mile from the Piping Rock Club, the residence formerly occupied by W. Burling Cocks, to Samuel W. Andrews, who will occupy it as his country residence.

$244,383 for Queens Buildings.

Suburban.

Dr. E. M. Holden of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has increased the size of his estate at Murray Hill, Hartsdale, Westchester County, by the purchase of about one and six-tenth acres from the Scarsdale Estates.

A Recent Buyer.

N. Y. R. E. Co. to Borrow $200,000.

Judge Meyer of the United States District Court granted an order yesterday on the application of Wechsler & Kohn, attorneys for James N. Rosenberg, receiver of the New York Real Estate and Security Company, to show cause, returnable on Jan. 21, why the receiver should not be allowed to issue and negotiate receiver's certificates to the amount of $200,000, for which to pay interest and taxes to save several properties from foreclosure proceedings.

December Building Report Favorable.

The December showing of building operations throughout the country is eminently satisfactory, that is, satisfactory in comparisons for the returns for other months during the latter half of 1913. There is a loss as compared with the operations of December, 1912, but it is a small loss, only 5 per cent., a much smaller loss than that shown in November.

The reports from seventy cities received by The American Contractor show that building permits reached a total valuation of $57,266,319, as compared with $60,280,282 for December, 1912, and a specially interesting circumstance is that a number of cities show rather phenomenal gains.

Of the seventy cities in the list thirty-three, or almost one-half, show gains, important improvement, besides the above, being recorded as follows: Birmingham, 136 per cent.; Columbus, 174 per cent.; Oakland, 108 per cent.; St. Paul, 126 per cent.; Topeka, 114 per cent.

The returns from sixty-nine cities show total building permits to the value of $722,378,100 for the entire year 1913, compared with $862,209,348 for the year 1912, a loss of 16 per cent. If the December report is any indication the pendulum has begun to swing again toward improvement.

Leases.

Amos F. Eno has leased the old Metropolitan Skating Rink at 1,680 to 1,684 Broadway, extending to 810 to 814 Seventh Avenue, for a short term to George F. Kerr, a Western theatrical man.

Worthington Whitehouse has leased for Emery L. Ferris the five-story American basement dwelling 96 Park Avenue, adjoining the corner of Fortieth Street, for a term of years to Dr. I. Seth Hirsch.

COLUMBIA'S RADIUM ONLY A CURIOSITY

Little-Known Tube in Museum There Has Never Been Used in Medicine.

BRIGHT, BUT NOT STRONG

Radium Institute to Test and Grade Product to be Revived at Early Meeting.

A tube of radium from Mme. Curie's laboratory, that dates back to the days before it was known that radium had a use in surgery, has been for more than a decade in the Columbia University Museum, and its presence there has not been generally known. It is the third such tube to be found here within the last two months, and, like the two previously brought to the public attention, it has long lain in a scientific laboratory.

The tube has been only a museum curiosity. Each night it has glowed upon a museum shelf with a test tube filled with pitchblende on one side of it and on the other a tube of polonium, the product Mme. Curie discovered in her search for radium and named after Poland, where she was born.

Prof. Charles F. Chandler, now professor emeritus, bought the tube of radium from Mme. Curie at a time when he was buying samples of all of the rare earths and minerals for display in the Chandler Chemical Museum, which occupies a conspicuous place in Havemeyer Hall at Columbia University.

After the radium arrived it was put on display in the museum and has never been used. How much radium is in the tube and how much strength it has is not known, because no one has regarded it as other than a museum specimen or taken the trouble to test it for its radium contents.

The tube of radium is placed inside of a larger, open-ended test tube, and cotton stoppers have been placed in both ends of the outer tube. Both inner and outer tube have taken on a peculiar purple discoloration that has grown more marked each year.

Neither Prof. Chandler, who looked at his radium tube yesterday for the first time in several months, nor Prof. Peagram, who is making experiments with radium, would venture a positive opinion as to what caused the peculiar effect upon the two glass vessels containing the radium. But both expressed the opinion that the gamma rays of the radium penetrated both glass containers and had some chemical effect upon a property of the glass, coloring it to a rich purple.

The radium tube in the Chandler Museum is about equal in size to the tube of Dr. Earp-Thomas of Bloomfield, N. J., who obtained his radium from Mme. Curie in 1900. Prof. Chandler expressed the opinion yesterday that the medical world had probably not suffered very much for lack of his radium because in the days before Becquerel received the burn that resulted in the discovery that radium had therapeutic qualities radium was produced for its radio-activity only and the best glowing radium was likely to be least suited for medical use.

Prof. Chandler said that experiments enough were made with radium obtained in the early days to convince him that his own specimen contained a strength 7,000 times that of uranium, whereas the pure radium bromide salts which are sought for by the surgeons have a strength 2,000,000 times that of uranium.

On account of the widely varying qualities of radium tubes now on the American market and of the great temptation to exploit tubes of doubtful value on account of the readiness with which patients will now seek out surgeons announcing that they have radium tubes, Prof. Chandler and a number of associates have decided that it is a good time to found a clearing house in this country for authoritative news of radium and also a laboratory to which all radium in use in surgical work can be brought to be tested and rated by a standard that will be recognized all over the world.

"Our own tube of radium here in the museum suggests the need for such a clearing house," said Prof. Chandler, "for while it will glow very brightly and have all the superficial appearances of genuine radium, at the same time we know it has only an infinitely small proportion of the material which the surgeon must have in considerable quantity to get results.

"To do the work we have in mind we are planning to revive the Radium Institute of America, whose work has been materially retarded through the final illness and death of Prof. William Hallock, founder of the institute. It was his dream years ago to have a radium institute to pass authoritatively upon all matters connected with radium, and that idea we will now try to carry to completion.

"In about three weeks we will hold a public meeting, probably at the Chemists' Club in East Forty-first Street, and will listen to papers about radium from some of the most distinguished experimenters both in its use in surgery and in its use in chemical laboratories.

"The officers and Board of Directors who will push forward the institute until it takes the position it is entitled to take are Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President; Dr. Robert Abbé, First Vice President; Prof. Edgar F. Smith of the University of Pennsylvania, Second Vice President; Prof. George B. Peagram of Columbia University, Secretary; and Dr. Abbé, Prof. Bergen Davis, Prof. C. F. Chandler, Dr. Butler, Prof. W. J. Gies, Prof. Elwood Hendirck, Dr. Hugh Liebler, Prof. Willy Meyer, Prof. Peagram, Dr. Hugh Schweitzer, and Prof. E. F. Smith, Directors.

"One vacancy on the Board of Directors will be filled at the meeting to be held early next month."

AIM TO CHEAPEN RADIUM.

Experts at Work on New Methods of Extraction.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 16.—Two important discoveries, which, it is expected, will materially lower the cost of radium, have been made at the University of Pennsylvania to simplify the process now being used to extract radium from pitchblende and carnotite.

Prof. H. S. Lukens of the Chemistry Department and Prof. D. H. Kabakjian of the Physics Department have been working for several months to solve the problem of getting the radium separated from the other substances, after the pitchblende or the carnotite, whichever may have been used, has been put through one step in the process. The radium is then either in the solution or in the residue after the solution has been taken off, and in whichever state, it is so blended with other substances, either barium, calcium, strontium, silica, sulphates, &c., that the subsequent handling of the material gives opportunity for a variety of methods for extracting it. Profs. Lukens and Kabakjian have not yet announced details of the processes perfected.

About 1,000 pounds of carnotite have been purchased by the department from Colorado sources for this research.

BRAVE POLICEMAN DIES.

Meadows Never Recovered from Injuries Received in Saving a Woman.

John S. Meadows, formerly a partolman attached to the Rockaway Beach Precinct, died yesterday at his home, 143 Ninth Street, Long Island City, of heart disease, induced by injuries he suffered in August, 1912, when he rescued Mrs. Samuel Goldstein from her burning home, 226 Rockaway Boulevard. Meadows responded to the fire alarm with the reserves.

Mrs. Goldstein was reported missing, and the patrolman ran into the house and found her unconscious on the third floor. He carried her to safety, and then fell unconscious. Both Mrs. Goldstein and Meadows were sent to the Rockaway Hospital. Mrs. Goldstein recovered, but Meadows was never able to resume his duties, so he received a merit mark for his [illegible] retired six months [illegible] old, and leaves [illegible] and a son.

RETURN OF CROP DEPOSITS.

Banks Ready to Pay First Installment After Getting Extension.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Advices are being received to-day from public depositaries throughout the country by the Treasury Department regarding payment of the installments of the crop-moving deposits due by the banks receiving such deposits from the Government last Fall. About $34,000,000 was deposited with banks of the Southern, Middle, Pacific Coast, and Rocky Mountain States under Secretary McAdoo's decision to transmit from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 to national banks in those parts of the country where funds to move the crops were needed.

The money was to be returned in four installments of 25 per cent. each on Dec. 15, Jan. 15, Feb. 15, and in March, respectively. A number of the banks returned their deposits on Dec. 15, but others were not desirous of making their first return on that date, and they received an extension of thirty days. This period ended yesterday, and advices received by the Treasury showed that a number of the banks receiving this extension were ready to pay their first installment yesterday.

A third group of banks was not even ready to pay back the first installment on Jan. 15, and asked for a still further extension. This request has been granted by Secretary McAdoo, who allowed them to pay only half the installment on Jan. 15 and the other half on Feb. 15. Under this arrangement the third class of banks receiving the deposits, which had asked for two extensions, were required to pay back 12½ per cent. on Jan. 15 and 37½ per cent. on Feb. 15.

BRADLEY GUARDS DAUGHTER

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 16.—When the case of Joel M. Foster and Delilah F. Bradley, on the chareg of adultery, was called in the Recorder's Court this afternoon the girl was carried in on a stretcher, having been brought in an ambulance from the sanitarium where she was sent from the police station on Wednesday during the nervous breakdown which followed her rearrest.

The father ignored the physician who had been attending her, presumably under instructions from Foster, and brought in Dr. W. T. Henderson, who certified that the girl was able to appear in court.

At the request of the attorneys for both Foster and the girl's father the case was continued to Jan. 19. Foster's attorneys announced that a report had reached them that an attempt was to be made to get Miss Bradley out of the city and back to Pemberton, N. J., even if her father had to handcuff the girl to him, whereupon W. P. Mayer and G. R. Ellison, who had signed the $5,000 bail bond for her, asked to be relieved of their responsibility. This finally was agreed to, and Mr. Bradley was allowed to assume the bond.

On leaving the court the father and Dr. Henderson had Miss Bradley driven to the City Hospital instead of to the sanitarium, and Mr. Bradley took charge of her. He removed all her clothing with the exception of her night attire, and is guarding her bed to-night. It is expected that he will forfeit the bond and take her home to-morrow, or as soon as he possibly can.

SUFFRAGISTS TO CANVASS.

Plan to Get Views of Congressmen on Proposed Constitutional Change.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Members of the Congressional Committee of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association will begin a canvass at Washington next week to determine the views of each member of Congress on the proposed Constitutional amendment granting votes for women.

This was made known to-day by Mrs. Medill McCormick, Chairman of the Congressional Committee, who will go to Washington on Sunday to assist in the beginning of the work, which will be under the supervision of Mrs. Sherman M. Booth of Chicago, a member of the committee.

A meeting of the entire Congressional Committee will be held in Washington on Monday or Tuesday to discuss plans for the coming year.

GLYNN'S PLEA FOR MILITIA.

Universal Peace Far Off, He Says—America Not Well Protected.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—"The morning of universal peace has not yet arrived," said Gov. Glynn, in an address to-night at the annual dinner of the National Guard Association. He hoped for universal peace, he said, but expressed the belief that the powers were not yet prepared to relinquish war as a means of settling disputes. Accordingly, he urged greater support of the National Guard among citizens generally.

"Those qualified to speak," he said, "are almost unanimous in declaring that if a sudden crisis should arise, the nation would not be in a position to meet it in a manner worthy of its rank and resources.

"America does not need to be convinced of the necessity for properly protecting America. What America needs is an awakening to the fact that America is at present not properly protected."

TRANSVAAL STRIKERS YIELD.

Men Returning to Work—Martial Law Is Still in Force.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 16.—Although the strict press censorship under the martial law makes difficult the securing of accurate news concerning the strike situation, it is known that the railway strike is almost ended, that the situation at the mines is improving, and that the projected general strike has been abandoned. The Government, however, is determined to maintain martial law and keep the burghers mobilized until normal conditions are completely restored.

Among the amusing mistakes that have resulted during the operation of martial law was the arrest to-day of the Mayor of Pretoria, while he was actually engaged with a strike committee, endeavoring to induce them to have their men return to work. The zeal of the burghers also has resulted in the arrest without proper authority of hundreds of peaceful citizens of Germiston.

PRESS NICARAGUA TO PAY.

England, Germany, and Italy Want $1,000,000 Due Their Nationals.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 16.—The British, German, and Italian Governments, through their respective Ministers here, have demanded that Nicaragua pay the debts due their nationals, which amount to more than $1,000,000. The German Minister, in addition, demanded that promissory notes of the Nicaraguan Government for such debts be received in payment of customs duties.

The Government refused to accede to the demands of the Ministers on account of its embarrassed financial condition, and notified the American Minister to this effect.

TITANIC SAILOR IN COURT.

Man Who Saved 45 Persons Says He Can't Support His Wife.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Albert Horswill, who said he was in charge of the last lifeboat to leave the Titanic, and saved forty-five women and children, told Judge Uhlir in court here to-day that he was unable to support his wife. Horswill, 38 years old, married an 18-year-old girl last November and deserted her a week ago.

"It would have been better if I had gone down with the Titanic," said Horswill. "I am working in a warehouse, but can't make enough to support one, let alone two."

Judge Uhlir sent the couple away together, after telling the sailor he must support his wife.

VERDICT OF $12,000 FOR WIDOW IS UPSET

Her Husband Saved Railroad Laborer's Life at Cost of His Own.

ENGINEER NOT NEGLIGENT

Erie Wins in Court of Appeals, Which Says Imperiled Man Had Fair Warning.

Mrs. Mary O'Brien, whose husband, John O'Brien, foreman of a track gang on the Erie Railroad, was killed on June 27, 1908, while saving the life of one of the members of his gang, had her verdict of $12,000 against the railroad company set aside yesterday by the Court of Appeals. O'Brien's action is analyzed in the opinion of the court which granted the railroad's appeal and demand for a new trial. The court said:

"Plaintiff's intestate was an employe of the defendant in the capacity of foreman over a body of men, including one Vitalli, who were engaged in the work of repairing the tracks and roadbed of the defendant company near a station known as Turners, (Harriman,) situate between Paterson, N. J., and Port Jervis, N. Y.

"About 10 o'clock in the morning of June 27, 1908, an express train bound west on track 1 approached the spot where the accident occurred at a rate of 50 miles an hour. East of Turners Station there is a curve in the tracks. A locomotive traveling westerly over the curve in question would be visible from where the accident occurred for several hundred feet.

"The evidence of Vitalli discloses that at the point where he was at work a train coming from the east could be seen for a distance of about twenty-five rails, each about 30 feet in length. Vitalli was at work on track 1, his back toward the east, the direction from which the train was approaching. While thus employed he heard plaintiff's intestate (O'Brien) call out several times, 'Look out, look out!' but did not think O'Brien, the foreman, was calling to him. Thereupon the intestate came near to him and exclaimed:

"'What are you going to do, going to be killed, or do you want to die?' and pushed him (Vitalli) off of track 1 and on to track 2, the east-bound track. As intestate was stepping off track 1 he was struck by the locomotive, and as a result thereof was killed.

"It was asserted by the plaintiff that defendant was chargeable with negligence by reason of a failure of the engineer to give warning by the usual signals of the whistle or of the bell; that he failed to maintain an outlook or reduce the speed of the train while rounding the curve, and in failing to see Vitalli on the track.

"On behalf of the defendant it was claimed that the whistle was sounded at the whistling post east of the curve; that the automatic bell upon the locomotive was ringing and continued to ring down to a point west of where the accident occurred, and that the vision of the engineer was limited in rounding the curve to a distance of about 150 feet.

"The trial Justice charged the jury that 'it was the duty of the engineer in the exercise of due care to maintain a cautious and earnest outlook upon the track ahead, and if the track ahead was such a place as a curve, where his vision was limited much beyond the ordinary vision on a straightaway track ahead, it was especially his duty to be on the alert and to have his locomotive under such control that in case he did find by such vigilant outlook some obstacle in the way he could, so far as reasonably possible, check the speed of his locomotive and avert, or help to avert, an impending collision.'"

The Court of Appeals in its decision mentioned the exceptions of the railroad's counsel to this part of the charge and quoted its own decision in an earlier case:

"An engineer is not bound to stop his train the moment he sees some living object upon the track. He has the right in broad daylight, when his train is perfectly visible and its approach must be heard and known, at least in the first instance, to assume that the object, whatever it is, will leave the track in time to escape injury."

The court then went on to say:

"Assuming that the engineer in charge of the train saw Vitalli on the track he would have the right to assume that Vitalli would leave the track in time to escape injury. The engineer was bound to exercise only reasonable care in the management of the train. As it was not due to stop at Turners Station, negligence cannot be attributed to the act of the defendant in running through a country district at the rate of speed stated, nor to a failure of the engineer to have his train under control in approaching the curve in expectation of finding a person upon the track west of the curve. Such a rule would materially interfere with the running of trains and impose upon the defendant a rule of conduct heretofore disapproved by this court."

GREENFIELD NOT CRUEL.

One-Time College Editor Answers Wife's Complaint.

George Sidney Greenfield, one-time editor of The Harvard Lampoon, filed his answer yesterday to the suit of his wife, Sarah A. Greenfield, for a separation. In her complaint she accused her husband of cruel treatment, said he was addicted to the use of morphine, and that he was compelled to spend long periods in sanitariums. Also, she said, he would not work, and that while his mother was rich she could not get money enough from her husband or her mother-in-law to maintain herself.

In his answer Mr. Greenfield admits that he uses morphine, and that he has sought, by treatment in sanitariums and elsewhere, to be cured of the habit. But he denies the charge of cruel treatment. He says he met his wife in a theatre in 1907, and became acquainted with her without the formality of an introduction. Shortly after this bit of romance, he says, she visited him while he was in a sanitarium in Stamford. On Dec. 27, 1907, they were married.

The marriage was kept secret. Mrs. Greenfield was introduced to her mother-in-law as "Miss Ford." But very shortly Greenfield needed some money because his wife, who was a trained nurse, "had stopped working." Greenfield says his wife is of a very violent temper and called him a "drug fiend," and constantly annoyed him by demands for money, and that she "constantly used him as a catspaw to obtain money from his mother."

The answer contains the statement that his marriage to her is void for the reason that about a year before his marriage to her she had been married to a man named Callender, that this former marriage was never annulled, and that no divorce had ever been obtained.

On Jan. 14, 1911, the answer says, the plaintiff began an action for a separation. In order to avoid the scandal the plaintiff was induced to discontinue the action on the receipt of $2,500 paid her by her mother-in-law. The defendant says he has no income save that from a trust fund of $10,000 left him by an aunt in January, 1910.

Eugenic Marriage Law for Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16.—A eugenic marriage law, a State working colony for drunkards and drug fiends, a Bible school, a circulating library, and a night school in the State penitentiary and additional authority for the Governor to use the militia, were among the recommendations of Gov. Mann in his message to-day to the Legislature.

SECOND SOCIAL EVIL REPORT

Rockefeller Bureau of Hygiene Publishes Its European Study.

The Bureau of Social Hygiene, established by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., issues to-day through its publishers, the Century Company, the second volume of its series of publications dealing with the social problem. The author is Abraham Flexner, and Mr. Rockefeller himself contributes an introduction in which he states the function and aims of the bureau and explains that the object of the present volume is to give, on the basis of personal investigation, an absolutely reliable and up-to-date account of European policies and experience in dealing with the problem. Mr. Flexner was chosen as an unbiased student, and to his task devoted practically two years.

The countries included in the study are England, Scotland, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Germany, and Austria-Hungary, in each of which the more important cities were visited. The subject was studied from the standpoints of law, demand, supply, efforts to control through regulation, medical examination, segregation, &c. Mr. Flexner finds that the evil is much more extensive than is popularly supposed, and that this mode of life is largely a transient status, many women eventually abandoning their immoral life and taking up some decent occupation. For this reason, he urges, it is extremely important that the law should take no step that is calculated to hinder such a woman's return. That the career of these women is terminated by early death, he says, there is no evidence.

Mr. Flexner notes a marked change in attitude and opinion toward the evil, particularly on the part of medical authorities. He gives a full account of efforts by education and legislation to check and restrict immorality. He also observes that there is a very considerable misconception in America as to what has been done abroad in the way of sex education, and indicates what in his judgment are the limits of its possibilities.

From the evidence he collected, Mr. Flexner suggests that in this country the social evil is a socio-economic problem, complicated by individual factors and influences. To a perceptible extent, he says, it is proved that both demand and supply are purely artificial, and therefore capable of modification by social and individual efforts. He instances the so-called "white slave" movement as an example of successful prevention, asserting that in his judgment there is no such thing in Europe as systematic trading in innocent girls. Current reports on the subject of the white slave traffic he finds to be, as a rule, baseless exaggerations.

Regarding police regulation and medical examination, Mr. Flexner finds that police licensing and regulation are rapidly dying out; they exist now only in Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Italy, and Belgium, and in most of these countries the system is decaying. The number of women enrolled, he says, is the merest fraction of the whole. A comparison of street conditions in regulated and non-regulated cities gives no evidence whatsoever favorable to regulation. Licensed or tolerated disorderly houses have been suppressed in most countries, and even where they are permitted or tolerated, they are rapidly disappearing. No European city now attempts segregation, and the disorderly house is found to be the most objectionable form of the evil.

The methods adopted in medical examination, Mr. Flexner finds, do more harm than good; the amount of disease detected is negligible; examinations are irregularly attended and badly carried out, and they result in concealing disease rather than in bringing it out for treatment. He gives reasons for believing that satisfactorily executed examinations under police auspices are impossible.

Where police regulation has been abolished, Mr. Flexner found that the abolition has nowhere been detrimental to public order; indeed, that the only really orderly towns were without regulation. He praises the voluntary system of treating disease which has been instituted in Italy, Denmark, and Norway.

His general conclusion is that, formidable as the problem is, the evil can be affected for better or worse by laws and institutions. Police repression alone cannot stamp it out, and indirect methods of social amelioration and reorganization must largely be relied on.

SEVEN YEARS FOR GUNMAN.

Ex-Convict Gets Maximum Penalty Under Sullivan Law.

Seven years in Sing Sing, the maximum penalty under the Sullivan law, was imposed yesterday on Gaetano Avitiable, an ex-convict, who pleaded guilty before Judge Crain in General Sessions to a charge of carrying a revolver. Avitiable was arrested on Oct. 4 by Detective Caputo in the basement of 328 West 106th Street, after he had shot another Italian. He was indicted for assault, but Assistant District Attorney Bostwick agreed to accept a plea of guilty on the Sullivan law charge.

"The Sullivan law," said Judge Crain, "was created for such men as you. The police say that you are a desperate character, and at the time of your arrest you were charged with shooting a man who had incurred your displeasure. This city is no place for you."

Both Tarpon Fishing in Florida and Chase of the Polar Bear.

Thrilling stereopticon and motion pictures showing tarpon fishing in Florida waters and polar bear hunting in the arctic regions were the feature of the annual dinner of the Blooming Grove Hunting and Fishing Club at the Biltmore Hotel last night. William Edward Coffin, President of the Camp Fire Club of America, directed the exhibition of the Florida pictures. They showed Mr. Coffin and others fishing for tarpon in a small canoe with a five ounce rod. Tarpon jumping out of the water were also shown.

Dr. Arthur W. Elting of Albany, N. Y., who recently returned from a hunting expedition in the extreme north, showed the polar bear pictures.

Howard S. Hadden, the President of the Club, in his annual report, said that 1913 had been the best year of the club's life. During the year more members availed themselves of the clubhouse at Glen Eyre, Penn., than ever before; the year's record of fish and game successes is the largest in the club's history; and the club's profit for the year was more than $2,000, the first profit ever recorded. Mr. Hadden also reported that many improvements had been made to the clubhouse.

Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary of the Game Commission of Pennsylvania, and William S. Haskell, counsel to the American Game Protective and Propagation Association, also spoke. The toastmaster was Judge Norman S. Dike.
